Jackson, Mississippi: a proud city of growth and development . . . a wise city that teaches its youth to practice sincere hospitality, to appreciate beauty and decency, and to strive for improvement.

Like faithful mail-carriers, students battled every form of nature to push through the noisy halls... rain-filled days always seemed to make classes a little easier to bear, and going home lost its appeal.

Serious studying was often confused with wistful day-dreaming and careful clock-watching . . . classes were nerve-racking during oral recitation and spur-of-the-moment tests . . . Spring Fever broke out before Christmas and no one ever found an effective antidote.

"Professional" was the big word with "ambition" as a helper . . . music, drama, and art flourished in the melodrama and the musical . . . even the tiniest talent did not remain hidden for very long.

By the end of the year, teachers' nick-names had been erased by the founding of lasting student-faculty friendships . . . bored, lazy, or honestly confused students wore weary paths to the teachers' desks.

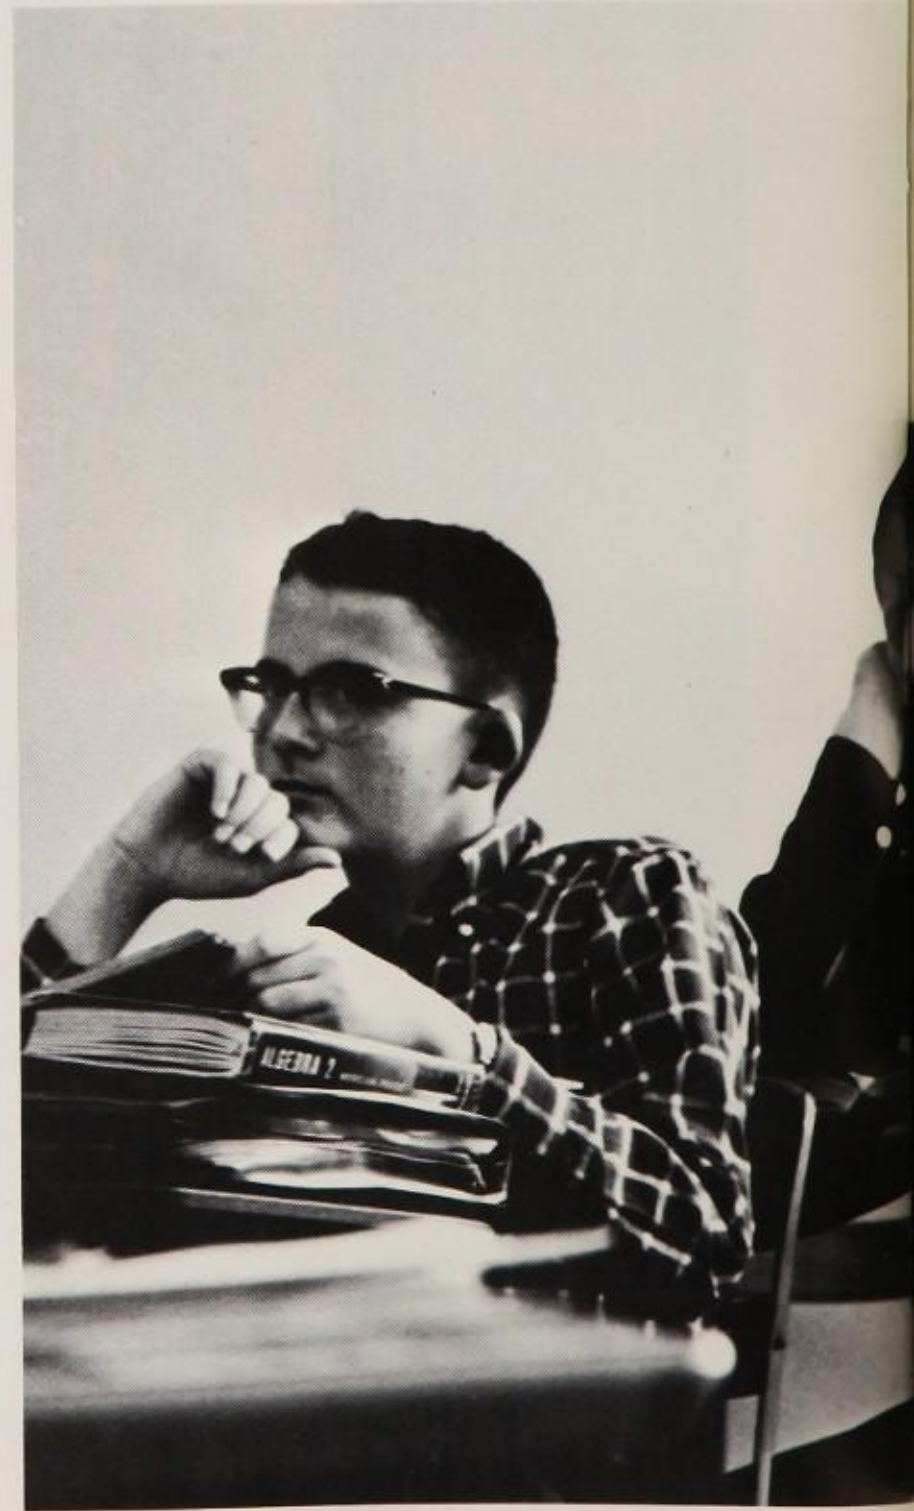

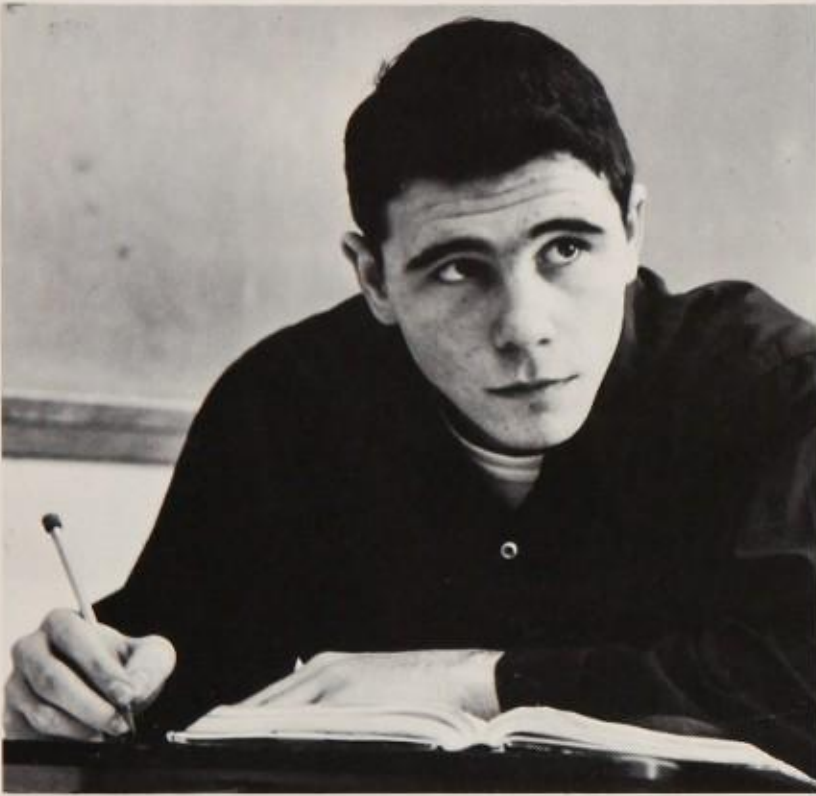

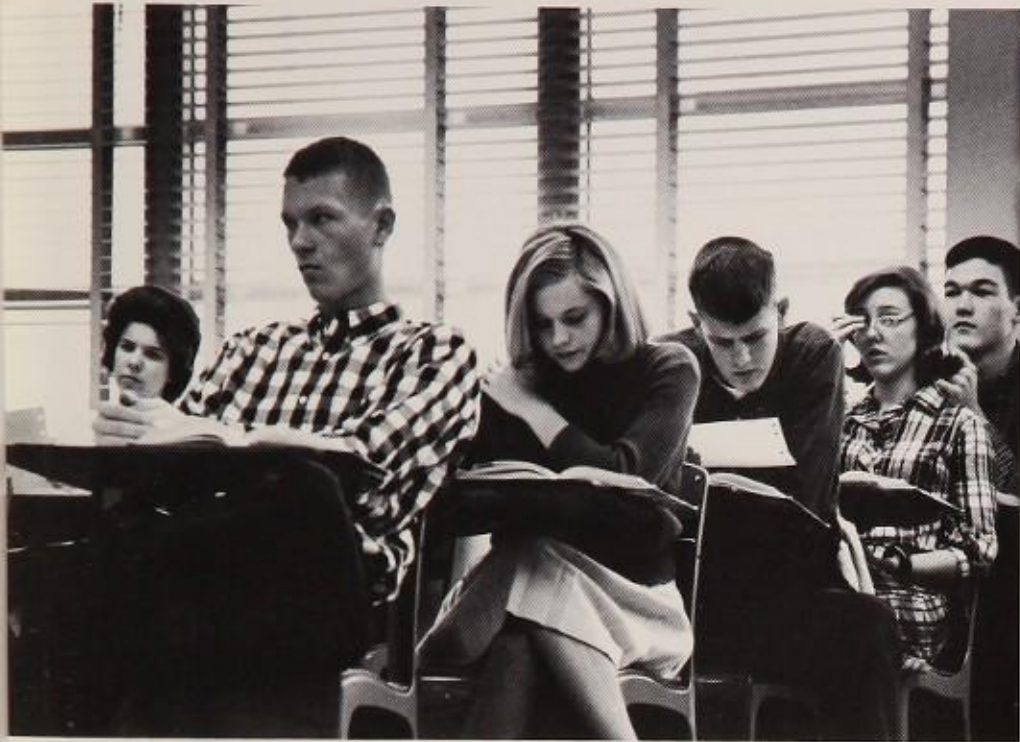

Those five precious minutes before school began were packed with shouted greetings and whispered confidences . . . the youthful clamor of the busy day sharply contrasted with mid-afternoon's strange hush.

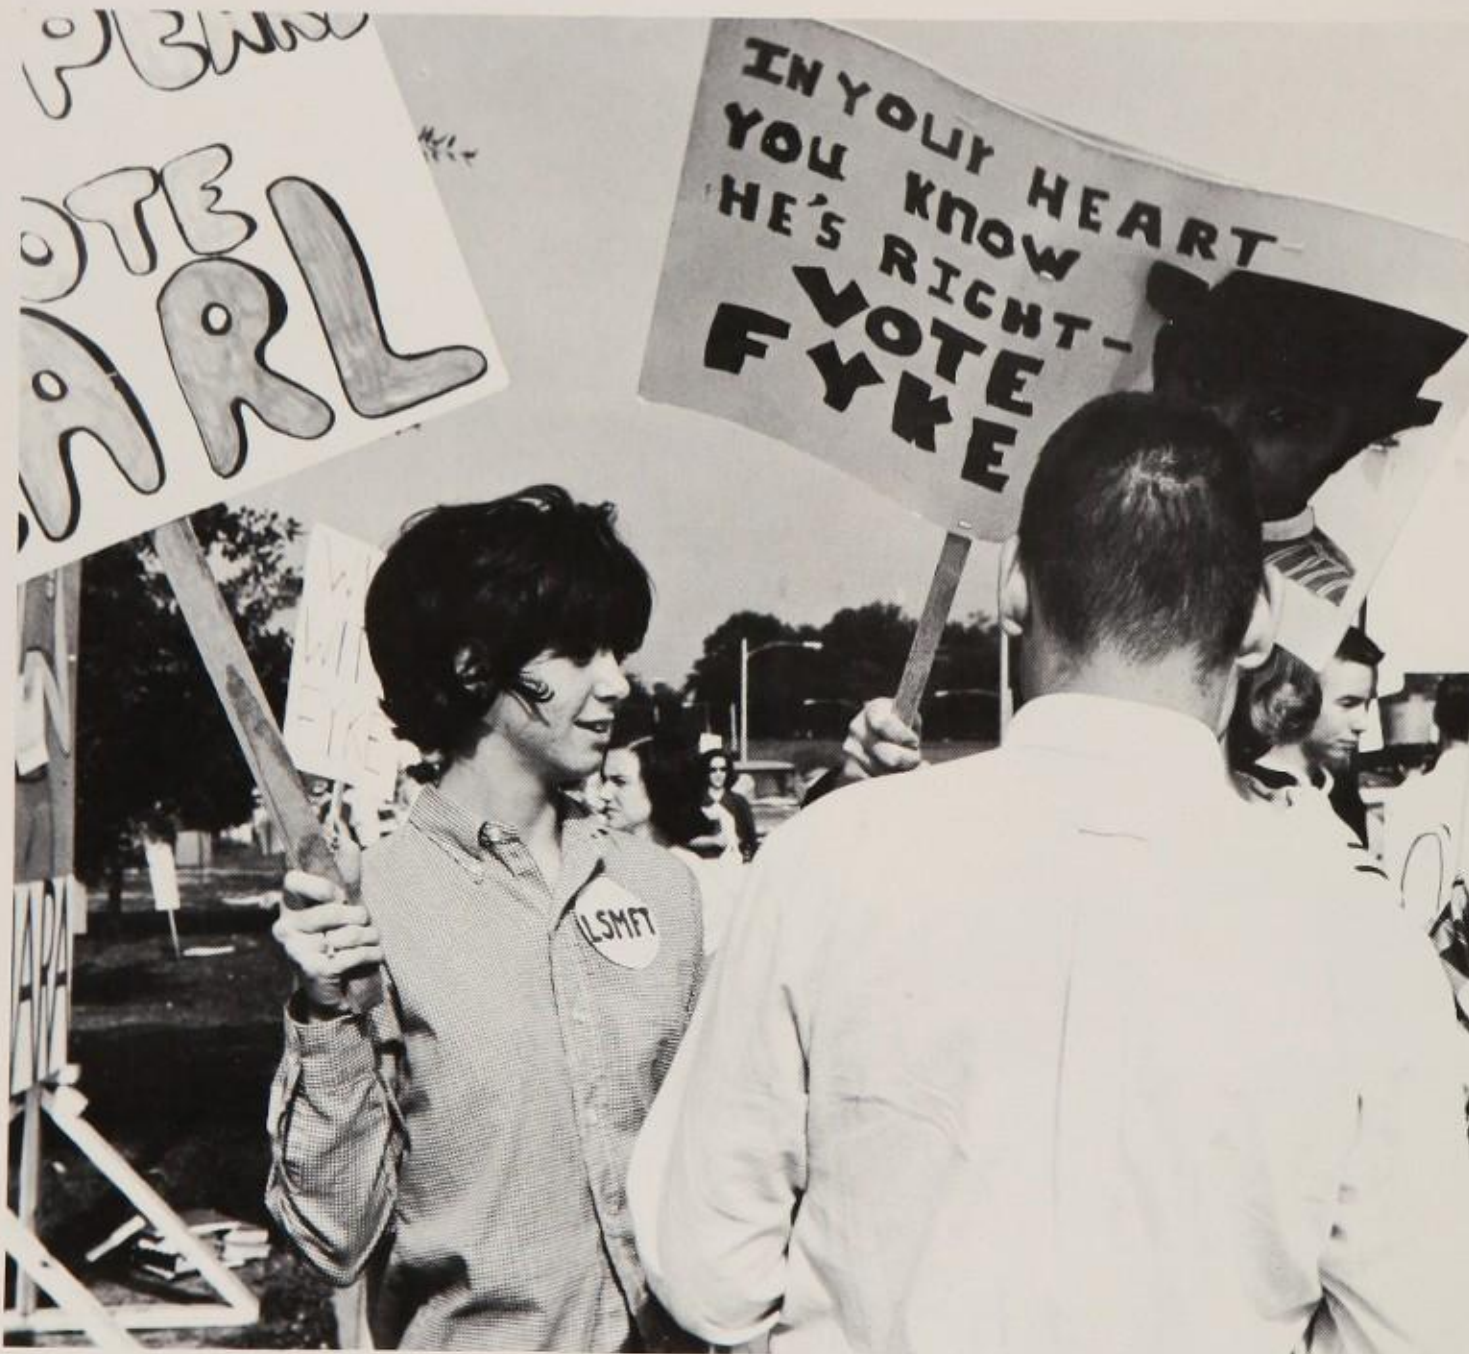

Listening in the classroom, a major part of learning, was often marred by note-passing and mind-wondering . . . high school scrapbooks should include a record of a lecturing teacher's monotonous drone.

Loyal supporters worked feverishly under the careful survey of the dreaded elections committee... blackened eyes, pin-on campaign buttons, and pickets shouted, "I'd rather fight than switch!" and "Strike with Fyke!"

Résumé

Dedication

His quiet wit and endless supply of "true stories" make him a favorite of journalism students; his knowledge and versatility demand respect. Guiding the Hoofbeat to its present degree of excellence, coaching the tennis team, sponsoring the Quill and Scroll Society, and officiating at sports events, Mays B. Hunter displayed qualities that enable the Résumé staff to proudly dedicate to him the yearbook for 1965.

Mr. Mays B. Hunter

Bleating horns, double-parked sport cars, warning bells, and a mad dash to first period . . . colors days and thunderous pep rallies, bus rides and football games . . . well-earned victory dances, scores of senior parties, dates, and lonely Saturday nights . . . morning watch; "Your attention please, for one necessary announcement," . . . red corsages on pink prom dresses . . . backstage study hall, midnight rehearsals, cokes, nabs, and the sounds of music . . . standard Class Day whites, final cramming for exams, cumbersome mortarboards, "Hail to thee, our Alma Mater, thou art strong and true" . . . "and we will not forget though we be far, far away . . . that through the years we'll see you in the sweet afterglow."

Student Life

"Scalp what red men?" worry Eddie Adams, Bill Garth, and Mike Coker as students cheer the Mustangs to victory in the pep rally preceding the game with Yazoo City Indians.

"We're the C-H-A-M-P-S!", chants Co-Head Cheerleader Susan Stone before student packed bleachers.

Pep Rallies

Spice Everyday Routine

During activity period of the day of each football game, the packed gymnasium throbbed with the rhythmic cheers of an enthusiastic student body. Eight award-winning cheerleaders taught new yells, team members stressed the importance of student support, the Murrah Misses performed precision drills, and the pep band blared the fight song:

Hail to the Mustangs valiant,
Hail to the Blue and Silver,
Hail, hail to Murrah High School,
Fight for her fame.

On with the noble spirit,
On with the Blue and Silver,
Hail, hail to Murrah High School,
We will win this game!

Crowded into the gymnasium, the entire student body explodes with a final round of "two-bits."

"Mustangs Great," shouts Senior Cheerleader Pat Thompson in a pre-game pep rally.

"Go you Mustangs!" urges Co-Head Cheerleader Carolyn Bruno to the football team before their road trip to Greenville.

Displaying their "smiles, styles, and winning ways," Murrah Misterys Bill Sims, Bill Casper, and Bob Anderson perform in the Provine pep rally.

Leading the roar of the student body in the pep rally before the Meridian game, Senior Cheerleader Sally Fran Ross proudly exclaims, "We've got the Mustangs on our team — they're g-r-r-r-reat."

During the impressive half-time ceremony, drum major Denny Douglas stands with martial rigidity as the court is presented on the field.

Student Royalty Highlights Homecoming

Construction of elaborate displays and the selection of the royalty ushered in Homecoming festivities. Friday's activities began with a pep rally where the maids were formally presented to the student body. The Homecoming court included Seniors Carolyn Bruno, Lynn Olson, and Susan Stone; Juniors Susan Holder and Kyle Sours; Sophomores Connie Craft and Mary Welch.

A spirited Mustang squad defeated Central 21-6 in the night's contest. Half-time entertainment glistened with the coronation of Queen Carolyn Bruno and the announcement of winning homeroom decorations.

Laughing and dancing, hundreds of students crowded into the vibrating Olympic Room to celebrate the climax of a tiring, full-filled Homecoming week.

Anxiously awaiting the announcement of the queen, Bill Garth and Carolyn Bruno exchange apprehensive smiles.

Windy City

Hosts NSPA Delegates

Representatives from the Hoofbeat and Résumé staffs joined with delegates from Central and Province to travel to the National Scholastic Press Association. The students spent the Thanksgiving holidays attending seminars on various phases of high school journalism, touring Chicago, and enjoying performances by Henry Mancini and the New Christy Minstrels.

The convention introduced the newest developments in photo-journalism and presented lectures concerning modern methods of literary publication.

This is the Windy City—dynamo of industry, heart of the Midwest, "City of the Big Shoulders."

And these are two of Murrah's delegates—Sherry Edwards and Kathy McKinnon, showing the results of four days in the bustling city.

"Hey, who does that guy think he is, wearing 007," notes Youth Congress delegate Joe Davis to Margaret Atkinson.

"Now listen people; this is the way it has to be," explains William Richardson at the Hi-Y Legislature.

Legislators

Attend Mock Congresses

In December Murrah's delegation to the State Youth Congress began its campaign for Speaker of the House. Joe Davis and Bill Norton presented nomination and campaign speeches for Murrah, supported by Mary Helen Nader, William Richardson, and Margaret Atkinson.

In a similar meeting, Coker Palmer served as Clerk-of-the-House at Hi-Y Legislature and Charlton Jones was elected Speaker for 1965.

"Oh, no! Not the gall bladder again," moans Steve Buchanan while he attempts to remember his lines.

Melodrama

Revives Gay Nineties

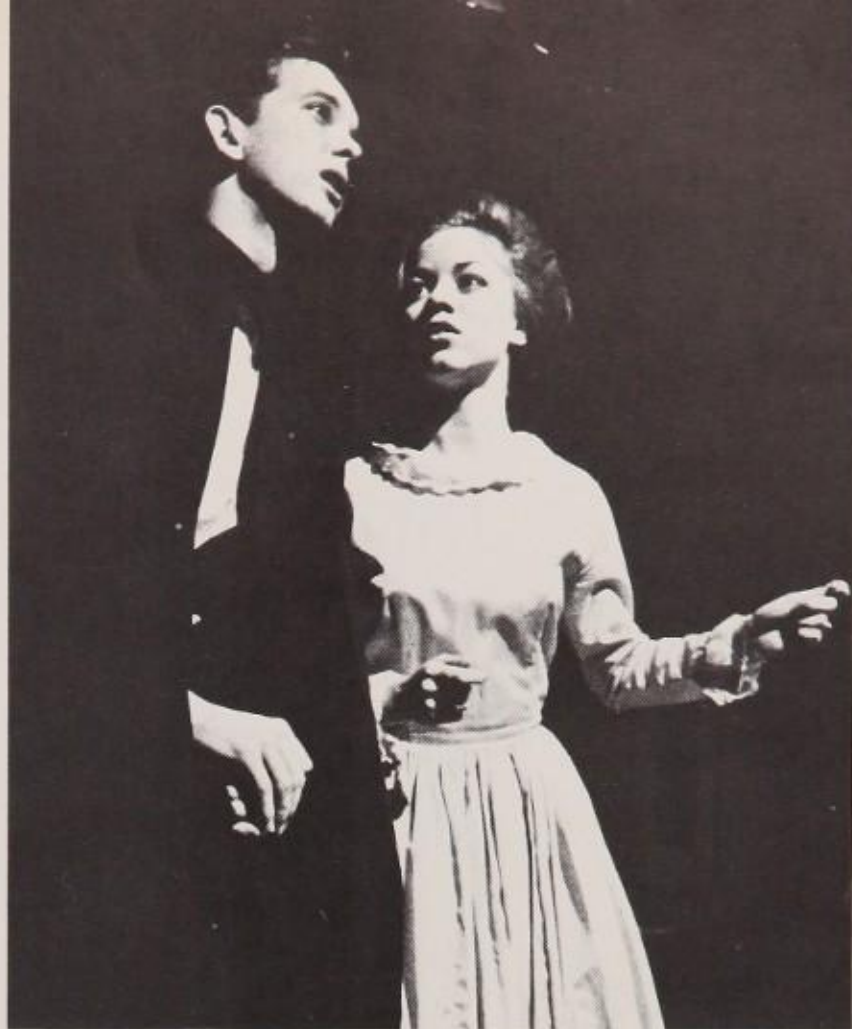

Colorful specialty acts and light-footed can-can dancers brightened the scene changes of the melodrama staged in January.

"Look, if I want to sing 'Love Potion Number Nine,' I'll sing 'Love Potion Number Nine,'" defiantly decrees Dolores Thomas.

"Just try and arrest me!" taunts Tank Gainey to Pat Griffin.

In the three-act play, the mustached villain, portrayed by Bill Harper, attracted boo's, hisses, and a barrage of peanuts from the enthusiastic audience. Millie Sullivan, in the role of the distressed heroine, scorned wealth for her loyal love to the valiant hero, Steve Buchanan. Supported by active Thespians and members of the Theater Guild, Sara Jones and Tim Helgeson completed the cast of main characters.

"Sara, my contact is killing me; and villians aren't supposed to cry," mutters Bill Harper to Sara Jones.

* "Whoop it up girls," urges Miss Patton from the wings.

"I've danced with many girls, and I haven't found one my size yet," moans Pat Griffin.

Spring Prom

Provides Welcomed Respite

Hosted by the Junior Class, the Junior-Senior Prom was a bright event in spring's busy social calendar. Hundreds of students in semi-formal attire danced until midnight to the swinging sounds of the "Mystics" from Auburn, Alabama. Rosy lights and beaded doorways transformed a downtown ballroom into a perfect setting for the Seniors' last prom.

Exhausted dancers lean on their dates in order to stand up during the last dance of the Junior-Senior Prom.

"Okay, Ringo, are you the one who shorted my electric guitar?" accuses one of the "Mystics."

Spring Musical

Presents Varied Talents

Capacity crowds filled the Murrah auditorium for four performances of Rodgers' and Hammerstein's musical comedy, The Sound of Music. Cathedral chimes and a chanting nuns' chorus set the scene for the true story of a singing Austrian family who is forced to flee over the Alps during World War II.

Realistic scenery, effective lighting, and a well-rehearsed orchestra added to the talents of cast members to present a successful production.

"Honesty may be your policy," storms Maria, portrayed by Ann McCullough, "but no child is going to tell me I look like a high-school sophomore."

Scott Young, as the Mother Superior, counsels the confused postulate, wisely advising her to "follow every rainbow until you find your dream."

With a singing houseful of lovable children, the Trapps could hardly be "an ordinary couple."

"Alas, we're trapped in gold-plated chains."

"There's no way to stop it: a rose is a rose is..."

"I hope the judges don't notice the broken heel on my shoe," worries Mary Fowler as she walks down the long ramp.

As Mr. and Miss Murrah High School, Brad Farber and Carolyn Bruno, walk toward the stage, the entire court applauds.

Résumé Pageant

Features Student Celebrities

Spotlights roamed over an eager audience and drums rolled as the 1965 Résumé Feature Pageant began. The pageant, the only money-making project of the annual staff, disclosed the winners of a school-wide election. On a ramp extending into the audience, the Travelers and boys' quartet performed several numbers.

Selection of Murrah's loveliest girl from five beauties was made by a panel of distinguished judges. Class favorites stepped forward; and finally, to climax a night of tense anticipation, two excited students received the coveted titles of Mr. and Miss Murrah High School.

Okay, Lynn Olson, stop hugging Becky Hendrick and begin kissing the editor — after all, he was the one who told you.

While Bill Sims is attempting to tell Mary Alice Welty that she must not tell anyone she is a beauty in the Feature Pageant, she shows mild signs of surprise and excitement.

Class Day

Honors Murrah's Upperclassmen

Clad in traditional white attire, the 1965 Senior Class marched into the overflowing auditorium for the Class Day program. Following the Alma Mater, "The Halls of Ivy" by the Murrah Singers, and Senior Class President Tim Coker's address, Mr. Merritt presented academic and civic awards, and Student Body President Brad Farber presented Murrah M's.

After the processional march, the seniors used the remainder of the day, proclaimed a holiday for all upperclassman, for skiing, swimming, and worrying about exams.

The different moods of Class Day are expressed in these faces: William Richardson, Cindy Netterville, and Wayne Barber wait expectantly to hear Johnny Guyton's name called out again; Cliff Chunn meditates on the afternoon activities; Joe Cooper snores quietly; and Brad Farber ponders the loss of those four letters.

"Let's see, if I melt down all this gold and silver, I can make a good-sized anchor for my sailboat," speculates Johnny Guyton as he adds to his collection.

Senior Graduates

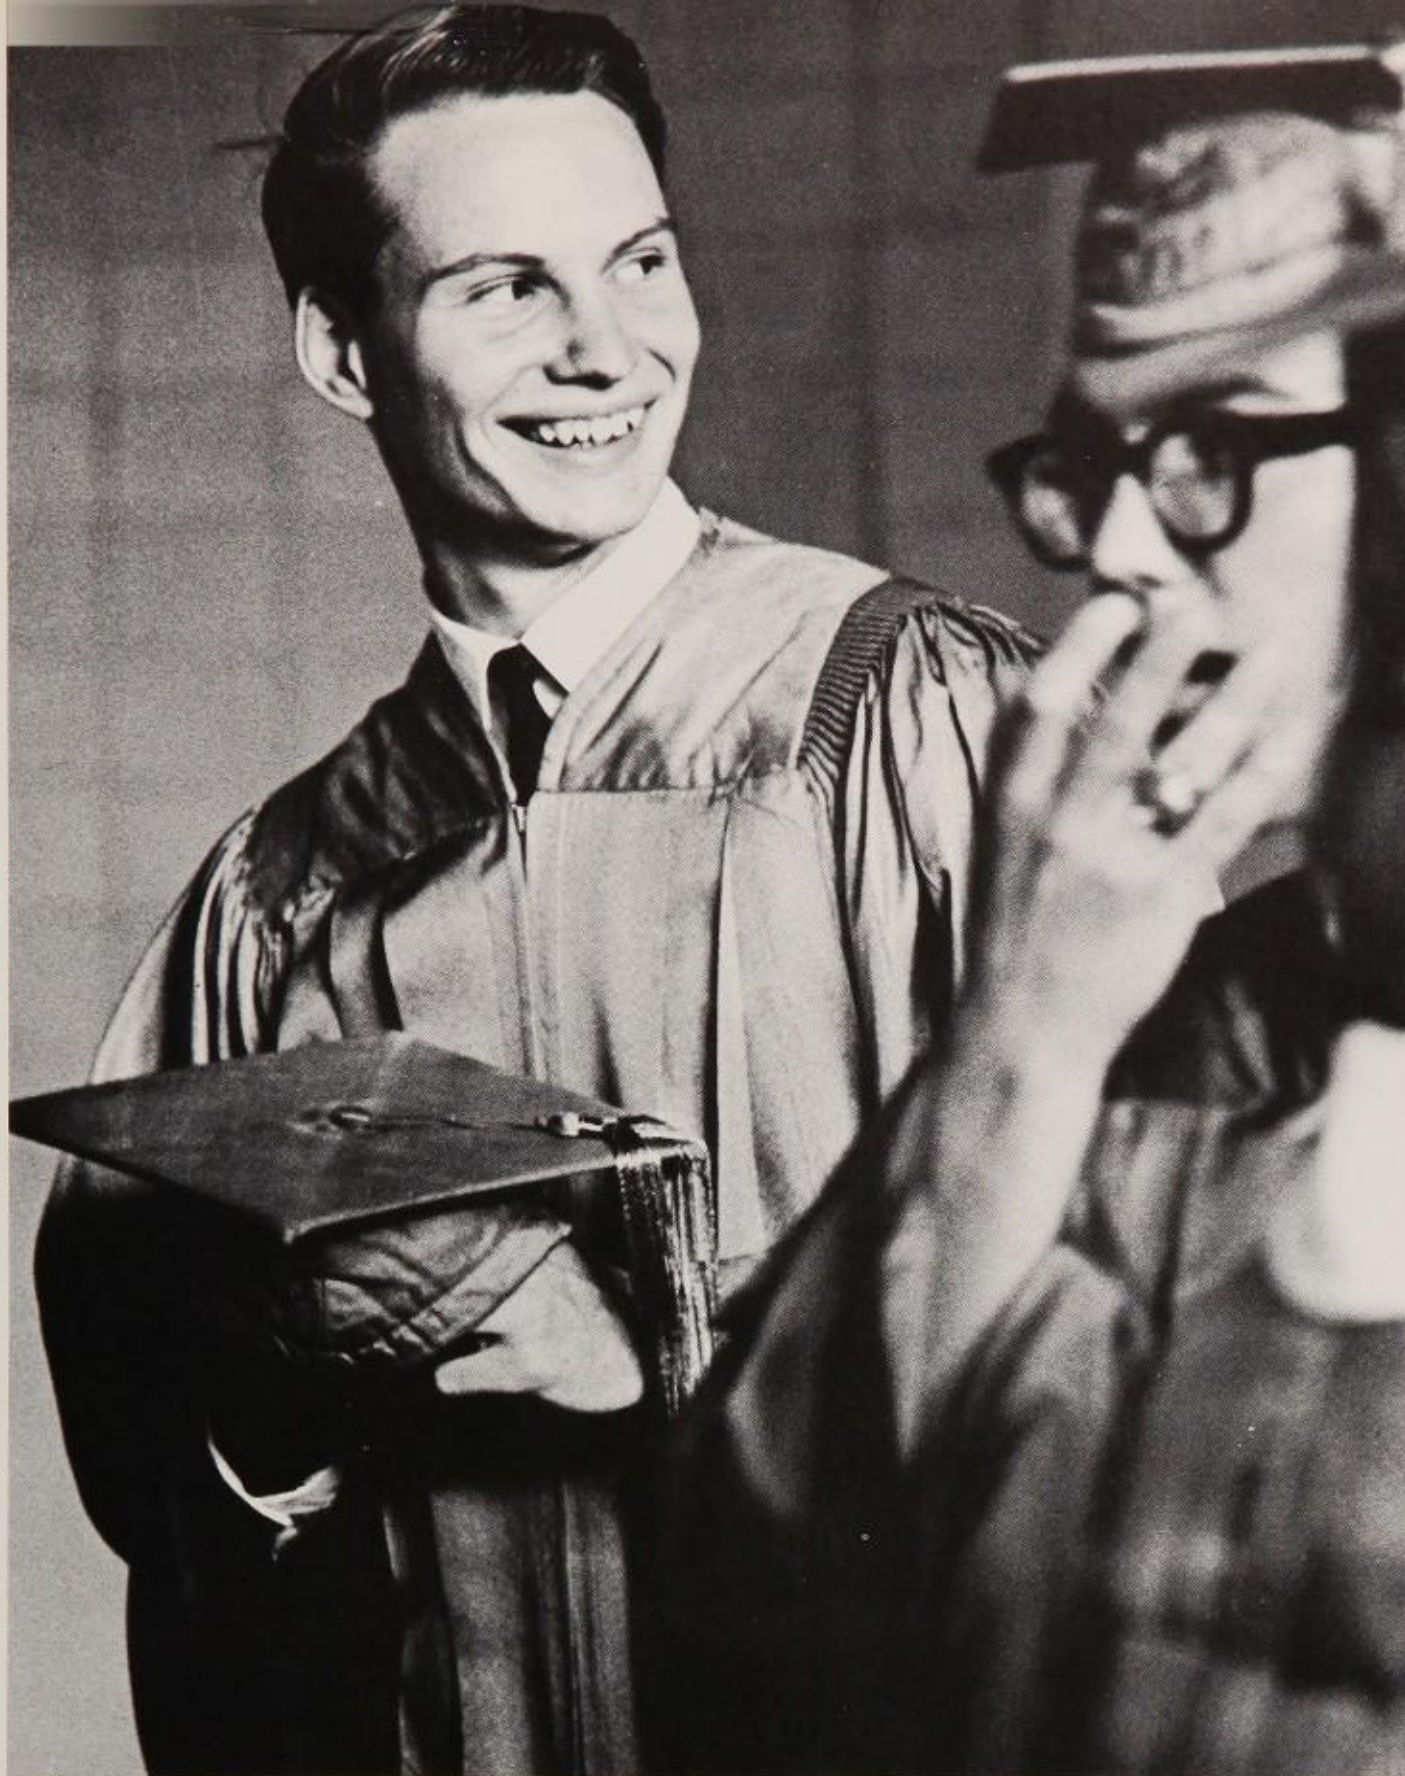

Receive Diplomas In Coliseum Ceremony

Amid rustling grey gowns, balanced mortarboards, and swinging tassels, 474 graduating seniors gathered in confused lines circling the amphitheater of the State Coliseum. Organ chords signalled the procession: three steps apart, roses up, square corners, and a big smile for Mother, Daddy, and all the family.

Senior Class President Tim Coker told the future citizens: "We, now, as high school graduates, have made good our standing place. Now it is our opportunity to go out into the world and achieve, for it is through achievement that others judge us, and not by what we feel that we are capable of doing...We can achieve our purpose if we want to, for as Herman Melville said, 'What I've dared, I've willed. And what I've willed, I'll do.'"

Peggy Abshier receives her diploma from Mr. J. W. Underwood, thus climaxing twelve years of public school education.

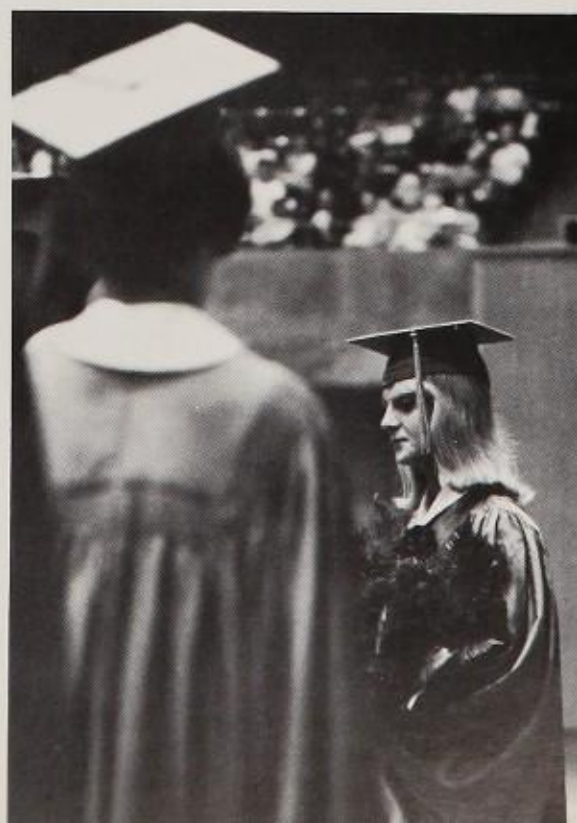

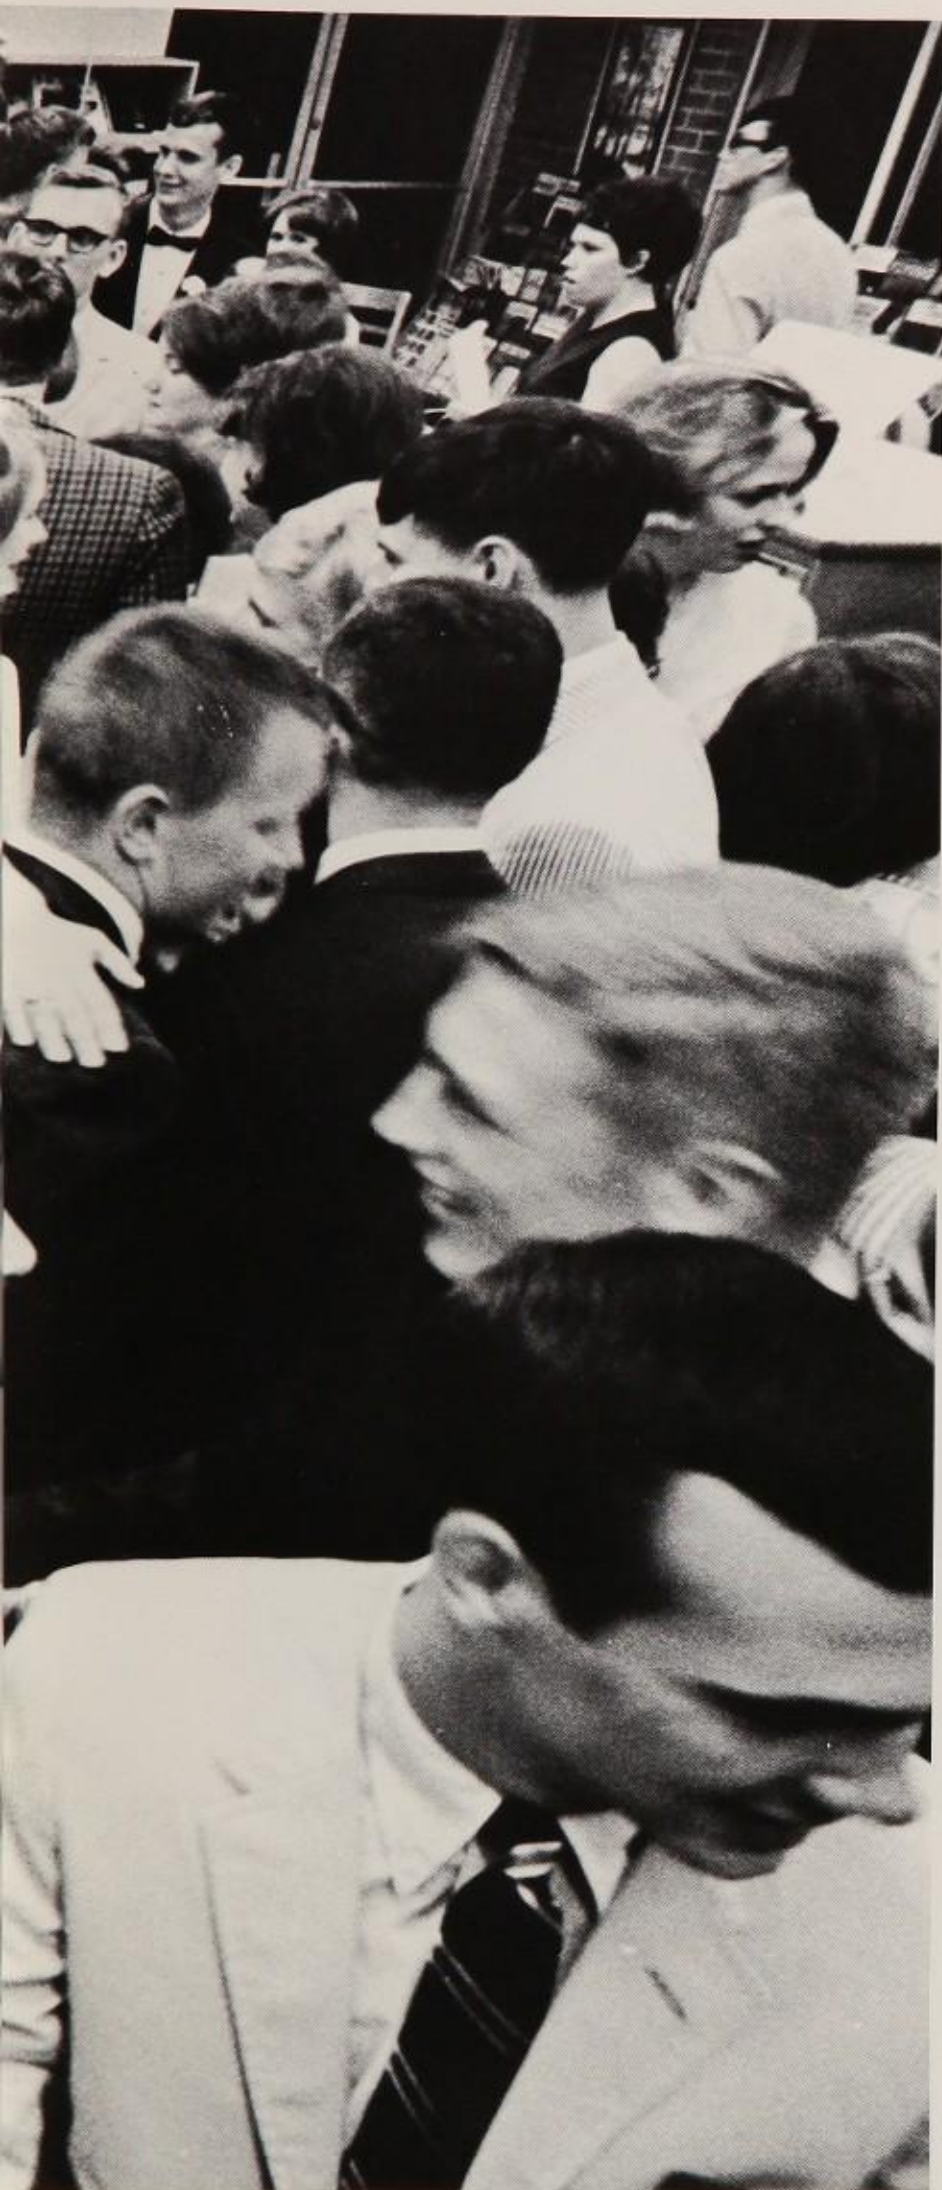

Allen Bennett receives welcome congratulations as Bennett Smith yawns in anticipation of the endless night's activities.

"I don't see how he ever made it," marvels Bryan Barksdale.

Phyllis Houston concentrates on balancing her mortarboard and holding her flowers erect as she marches.

Ballots, decisions, and elections... qualifying tests and all those finalists and winners... monthly additions to the Hall of Fame... civic awards: Pilot Club, Rotarian, D.A.R., Kiwanis... rumors: "I've heard who the beauties are, but it's a secret so don't tell"... a spring-themed Feature Pageant full of surprises and happy tears... letters, all M's, but some for honor points and others for football, golf, debate... Class Day—just a glorified awards day—with the presentation of certificates of merit to top students in each field of study... trophies for service, the precious Danforth medallion, a Betty Crocker of our very own... national recognition for Murrah's addition to the elite group of Presidential Scholars.

"This oak tree has possibilities as a sailboat mast, Johnny," observes Elta Posey, recipient of the NCTE Award, for the benefit of Johnny Guyton, Presidential Scholar, as Susan Stone, Fort Rosalie Chapter Girl of the DAR; Ann Little, Optimist Girl; Lewis Perdue, first place winner in the State Science Fair; and Bill Garth, Optimist Boy of the Year, look on.

Billy Skelton, Exchange Club Boy, relates his experiences with the mayor in City Hall, while all but Carol Ann Halliday, Power and Light Girl, and Cay Barton, Pilot Girl, listen attentively. Billy's audience includes Sylvia Enloe, Power and Light Girl; Norton McKeigney, recipient of the Fisher Body Automotive Design Award; Sue Howard, DAR Girl; and Bob Anderson, DAR Boy and Exchange Club Boy of the Month.

"You know, this old cannon could come in handy during the pantie raids at Ole Miss next year," proclaims Paul Wilson to the other Rotarians of the Month — Bill Sims, George Purvis, Tim Coker, Joe Cooper, Billy Nelson, Johnny Guyton, and Brad Farber — gathered in front of the Old Capitol.

"Go, Mississippi; keep rolling along," sings radiant Bill Garth to the Exchange Club Boys of the Month — Denny Douglas, Cliff Chunn, Bill Sims, Chester Mixon, Dalton McAlpin, and Ronnie Tomlin — while the golden eagle spreads his wings over the Capitol.

Johnny Guyton, Paul Wilson, Bill Casper, and Ronnie Forman examine conic sections.

Finalists Judy Thames, Anne Smith, and James Woods, who share the same French class, attempt sight translation of modern French novels and textbooks.

High Scorers

Become National Merit Finalists

Nineteen Senior students became National Merit finalists because of their outstanding scores on qualifying tests and the Scholastic Aptitude Tests administered in the fall. These students received certificates of merit and letters of recognition to colleges. Johnny Guyton and David Thornhill qualified as National Merit Scholars and received valuable scholarships.

William Jordan, Alpha Humble, Beverly Morgan, and Jeff Mangin discuss the use of hydrogen sulfide in chemical analysis.

High scorers George Purvis, Steve North, David Thornhill, and Larry White, active members of the school's three publication staffs, discuss trends in journalism.

Margaret Atkinson, Karen Johnson, and Bing Witty ponder whether or not Steven Ammann's National Merit scores will get him into MSCW.

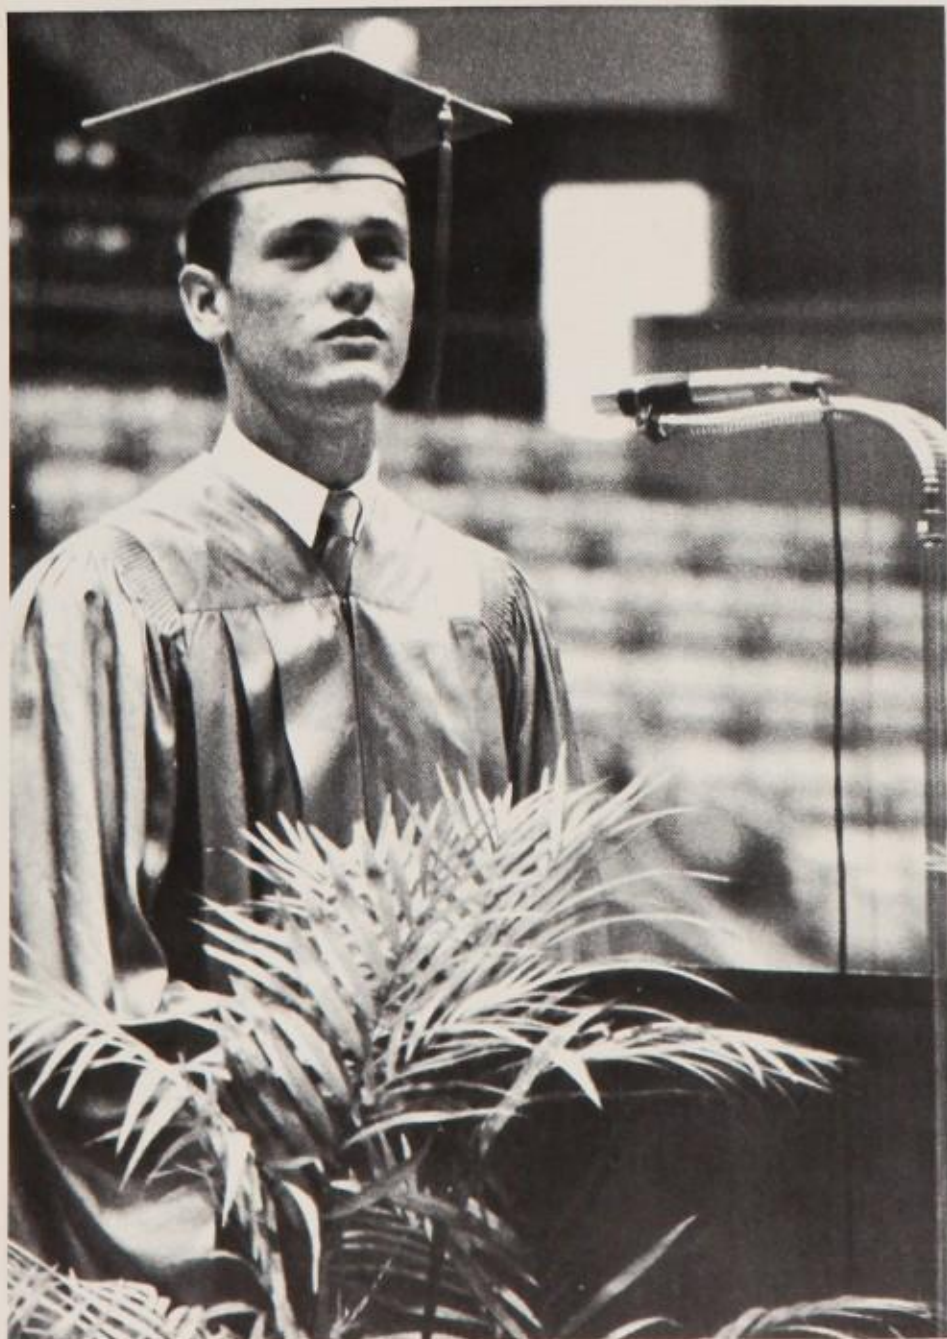

1965 Hall Of Fame

Presents Eight Prominent Seniors

Trish Bradley

Trish Bradley has established journalism as her main interest—serving as co-editor of the All-American Hoofbeat and secretary of Murrah's chapter of Quill and Scroll. Trish, a three year letterman on the tennis team, has been a member of the Red Cross Council, Mu Alpha Theta, National Honor Society, and the Thespian Society.

A member of the Theater Guild and scribe of the Publicity Club, Trish was chosen Most Dependable by her fellow students in Who's Who. On Class Day she received the Danforth Foundation Award. She plans to attend the University of Mississippi next fall.

Tim Coker

Tim Coker, Senior Class President, was chosen Most Versatile in the Feature Pageant and Most Dependable Boy in Who's Who. Serving as treasurer of the Student Council, Tim was secretary of Mu Alpha Theta and the Thespian Society, Rotarian of the Month, and a member of the National Honor Society, Murrah Singers, and Music Masters.

Besides lettering in baseball for three years, Tim has been a member of the football team. As co-captain of the Shrimp Bowl Champions, Tim was named quarterback on the All Big 8 second team, the most valuable player in Jackson, and best all around player at Murrah during the 1964 season.

Tim, who will major in music at Southern, received the Lions Club Award on Class Day.

Carolyn Bruno

Carolyn Bruno, Miss Murrah High School, has been active in Murrah affairs since the tenth grade. Elected a sophomore cheerleader, Carolyn continued in this position for two more years and served as co-head cheerleader as well as Homecoming Queen her senior year.

Carolyn, who has been a homeroom officer for three years, has led her class as secretary-treasurer and reporter. A member of the Murrah Singers and the Thespian Society, Carolyn has received the coveted titles of Miss Junior Class in the Feature Pageant, and Most Courteous and Silver Lady in the Hoofbeat sponsored Who's Who.

Planning to attend either Southern Methodist University or Ole Miss next fall, Carolyn was the recipient of two honor letters and the Sertoma Club Service-to-Mankind Award in Class Day ceremonies in May.

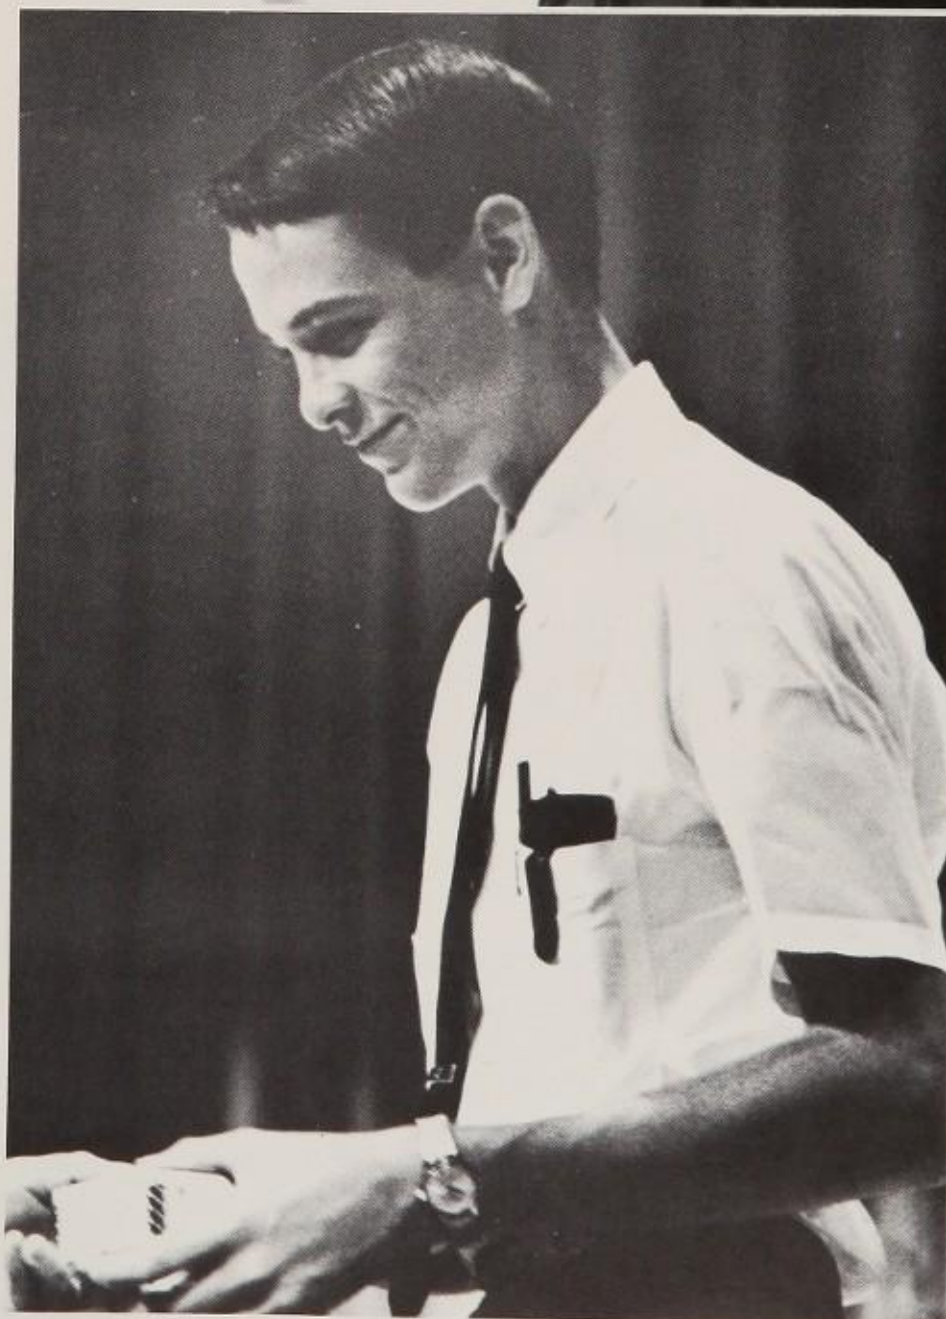

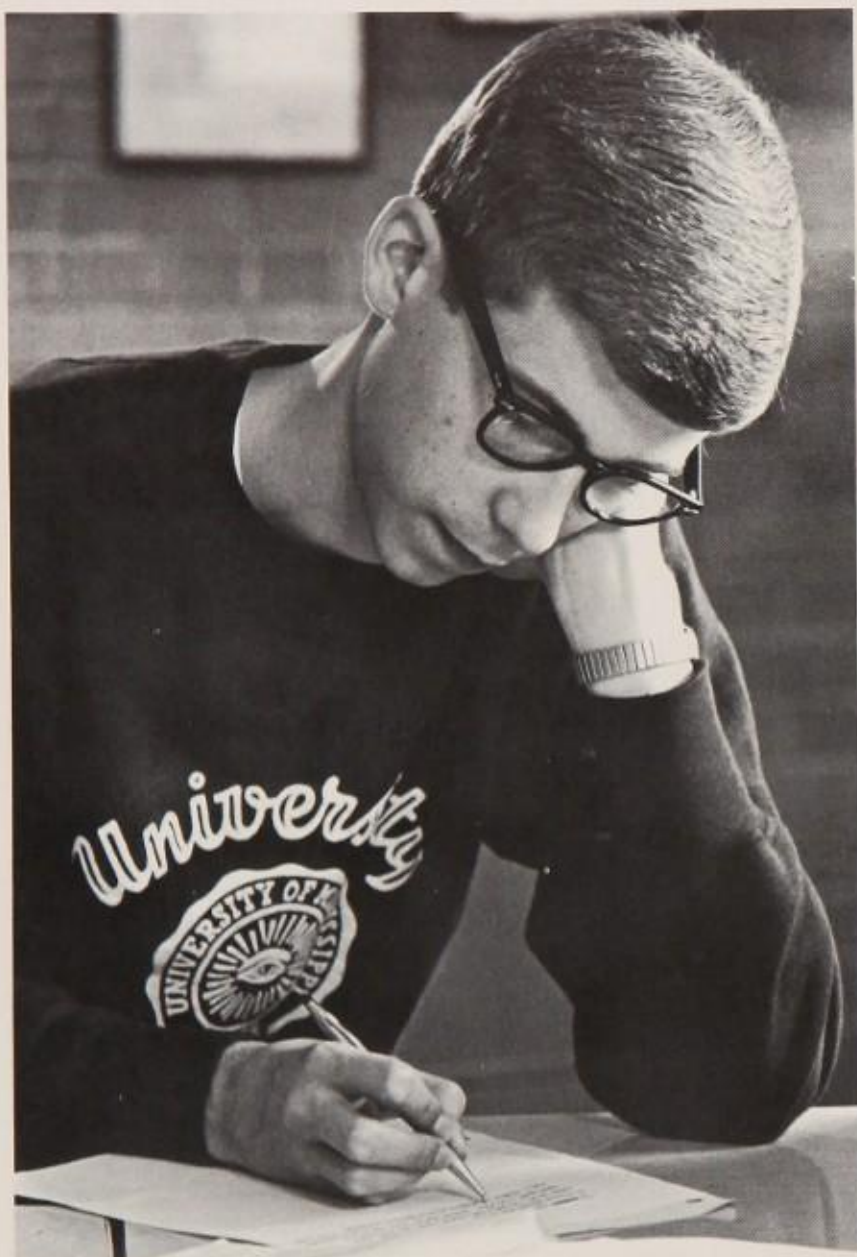

Johnny Guyton

Following in the footsteps of his two older brothers, Johnny Guyton attained the presidency of Mu Alpha Theta, first-place finish in the Mathematics Contest, and the title of Most Intellectual Boy. Johnny, a tennis player for three years, became editor of the Pleia-des, a National Merit Scholarship recipient, and a member of the National Honor Society, Red Cross Council, and the Student Council.

Excelling scholastically, Johnny has maintained a straight 'A' average since the seventh grade. A telegram from President Johnson notified Johnny that he had become one of the 121 Presidential Scholars in the country.

On Class Day, Johnny, who will attend Ole Miss next year, received the Civitan Club Scholarship Award, American Association of Teachers of English Award, the Baush and Lomb Award, the Mississippi Society of Professional Engineers Mathematics Award, the National Council of Teachers of English Award, and three Murrah's 'M's.

Bill Sims

Versatile Senior Bill Sims has been in the midst of all school activities. His working on the Resumé for three years earned him the position of yearbook editor and vice-president of Quill and Scroll.

As president of his homeroom, Bill was a member of the Student Council—serving as chairman of the Citizenship and Courtesy Committee, the SASC campaign, and the Elections Committee.

Having maintained an 'A' average since the seventh grade, Bill has been a member of the National Honor Society, the Red Cross Council, and the executive board of Mu Alpha Theta. For his theatrical work, Bill became scribe of his Publicity Club and a member of the Thespian Society. He has been a Sophomore Orientation Leader for two years.

This "Murrah Mister" was elected a Senior Favorite in the Feature Pageant and Wittiest Senior Boy in the Hoofbeat sponsored Who's Who. He was honored by civic clubs as Rotarian of the Month and Exchange Club Boy of the Month. Planning to study law at Ole Miss next fall, Bill received three honor letters and the American Legion Citizenship Award during Class Day ceremonies.

Cliff Chunn

Athlete Cliff Chunn, chosen Mr. Senior Class in the Feature Pageant and Most Dignified in Who's Who, was the recipient of the "Spirit of Murrah" award given annually by the Hoofbeat staff. As co-captain of the football team, Cliff has lettered three years. Participating in both basketball and track, Cliff lettered in these sports his senior year.

As president of his homeroom, Cliff has served in the Student Council and as Sophomore Class President, Junior Class Vice-president, and Senior Class Secretary. An Exchange Club Boy of the Month, Cliff was named to the first team All Big 8. He received an athletic scholarship from the University of Mississippi at the end of the season.

Eminent Seniors

Enter Murrah's Hall Of Fame

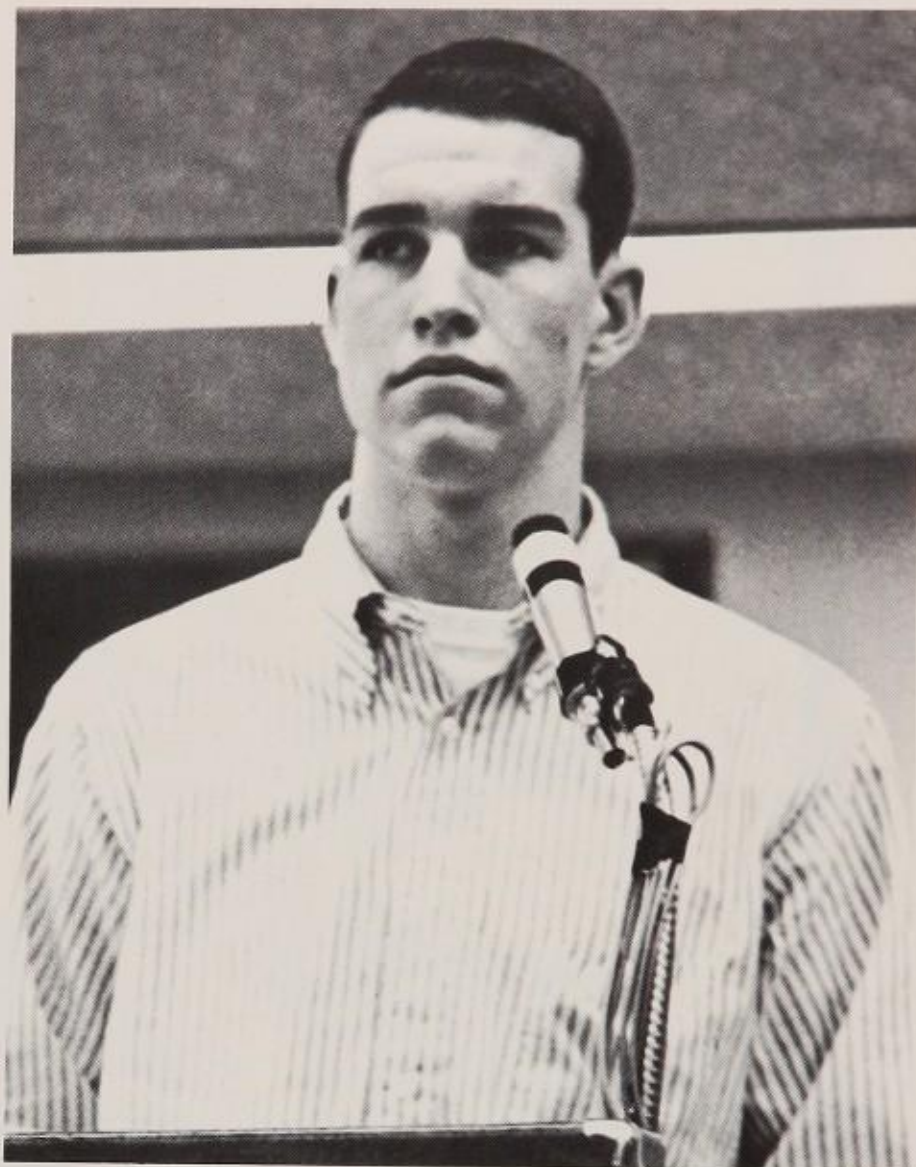

Susan Stone

Susan Stone certainly has earned her place in the Hall of Fame. As co-head cheerleader, Susan exemplified her tremendous spirit—becoming “Best School Booster” in Who’s Who. Throughout Murrah she has received such honors as Miss Sophomore Class, Jolliest Junior, and Miss Senior Class.

An honor student, Susan was secretary of the National Honor Society and a member of Mu Alpha Theta, Red Cross Council, Thespian Society, and the Murrah Singers. She has led her class as secretary and reporter. This Homecoming maid was named Good Citizenship Girl by the Fort Rosalie Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Susan, a Sophomore Orientation Leader, received two honor letters and the American Legion Citizenship Award in Class Day ceremonies. She plans to attend MSCW in the fall.

Brad Farber

Brad Farber, Mr. Murrah High School, has demonstrated his leadership ability throughout his high school career. As student body president, Brad has represented Murrah at the Mississippi and Southern Associations of Student Councils Conventions and the Tri-City School Council.

Brad has been honored as a Rotarian of the Month, Mr. Junior Class, Jolliest Junior, Blue Knight, and Most Promising Future Citizen. A Murrah Singer, Brad has been president of the Medico-eds Club and chairman of the Sophomore Orientation Program.

Participating in basketball, Brad, Murrah’s leading scorer, made the All-City first team and All Big 8 team. A quarter-miler in track, he outraced everyone in Mississippi—winning a track scholarship to Ole Miss. On Class Day Brad received two honor letters and the Kiwanis Club Leadership Award.

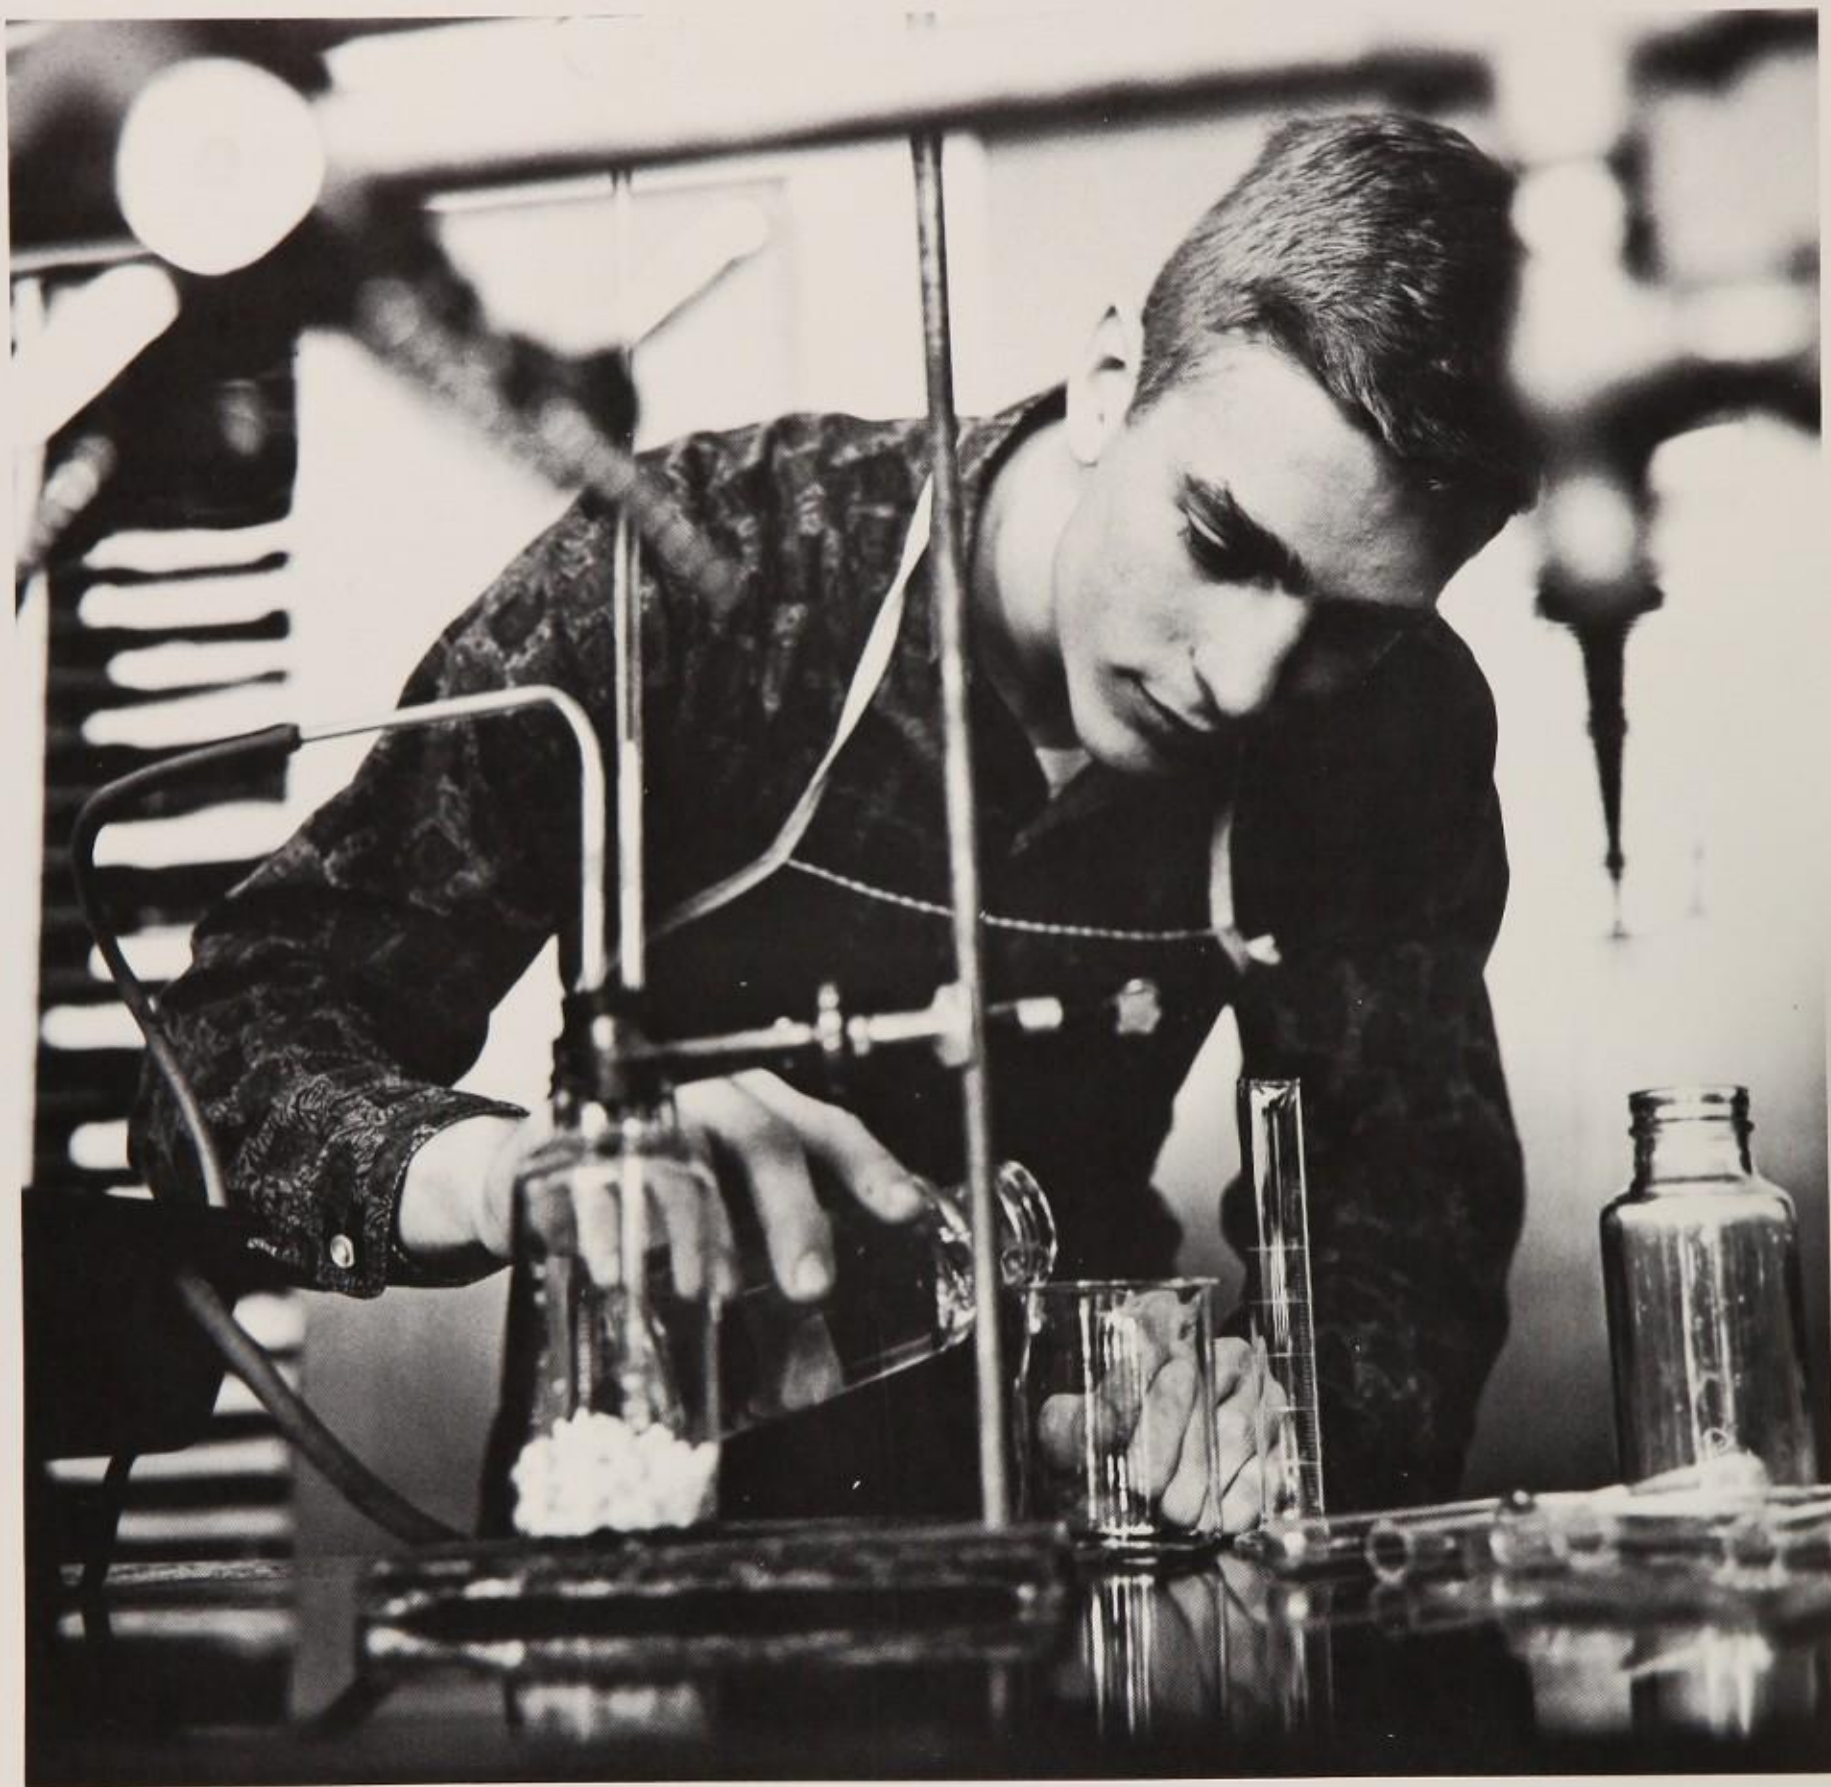

Dissected frogs and hydrogen sulfide just after breakfast . . . faculty meetings in the library, teachers' teas, and gossip sessions in the lounge . . . pink slips from the Attendance Office, orange subject-choice cards from the counselors, and corridor passes . . . special appraisals, term tests, and nine-weeks' report cards . . . language lab, typing time-tests, term papers, and projects . . . Academic Life

"Let's see...one-half liter H_2O , 12 grams $C_6H_{12}O_2$, and one cup Hershey's cocoa...that'll do it," muses Bill Garth.

"I know I saw that one move!" declares Charles Ozier as Shirley Karstens watches for further signs of life in previously inanimate geometric figures.

Science, Math

Spur Inquisitive Minds

Murrah's science program drew student interest through the use of the "discovery method," extensive equipment, and a comprehensive science library. This year ushered in junior trigonometry classes and a second semester program of advanced analytics. Next year, the regular sophomore mathematics course will include plane and solid geometry.

Ronnie Forman and Bill Casper "rediscover nothing" as they find zero on a complex trigonometric graph.

Facial expressions tell the story as Karen Camp and Kathy McKinnon face the inevitable dissection of a clam.

"Make that 32° instead of 23° ...I was reading backwards," corrects Don Blythe to his lab partner.

"This makes me seasick!" mutters Cathy Sloan as June Burwell bears it in silence.

"Whenever I feel afraid I whistle a happy tune," says Elta Posey, mustering her courage before an oral report.

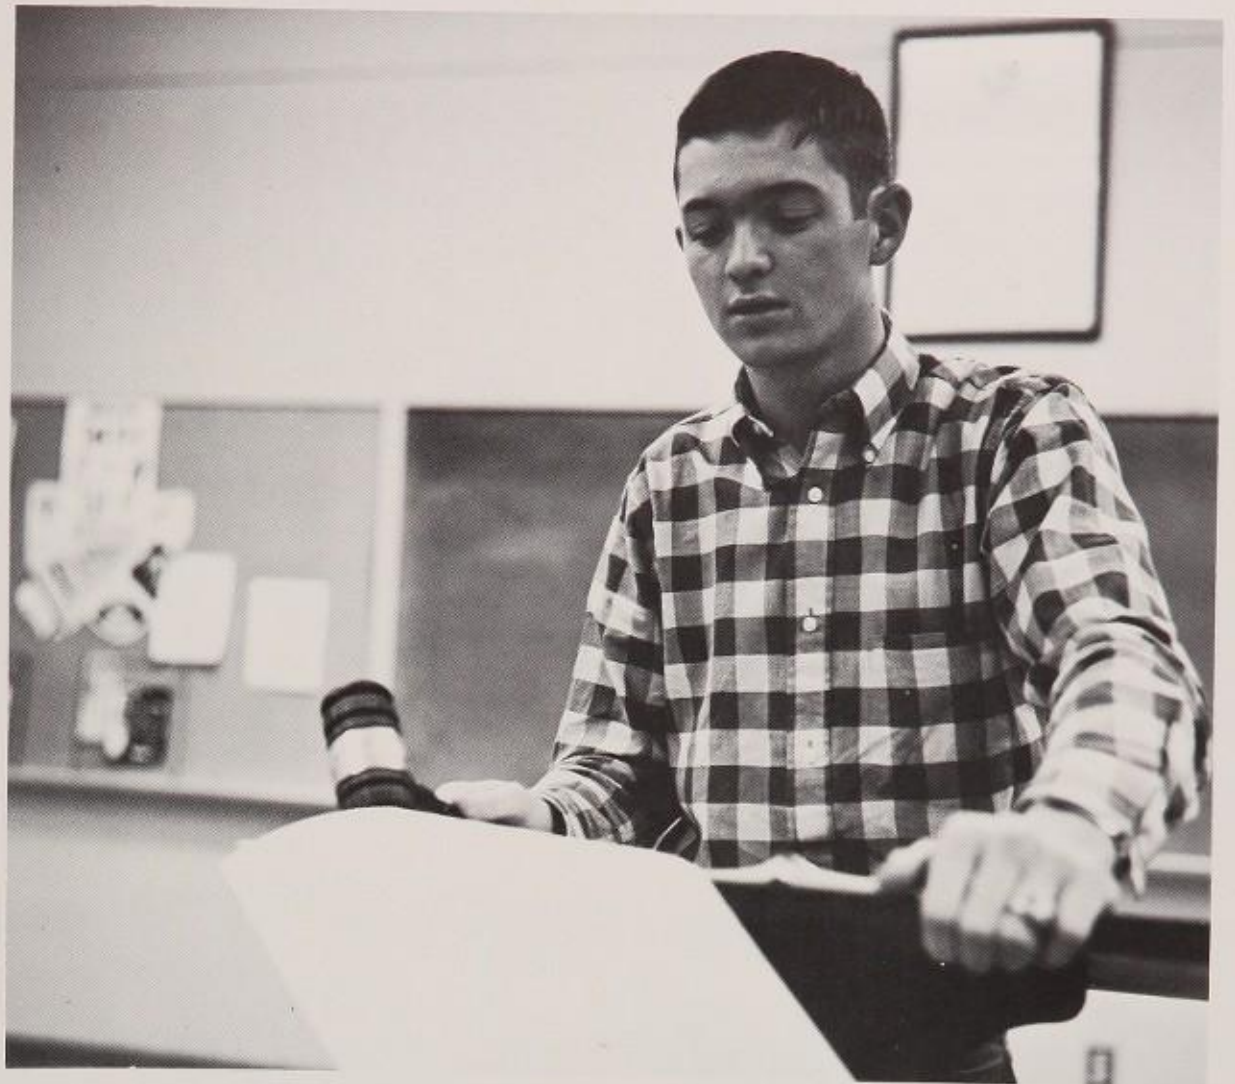

English, Speech

Develop Self-Expression

Teaching students to express their ideas effectively has always been a major objective of Murrah's English and speech departments. In English classes emphasis was on literary expression. After studying methods employed by some of the world's greatest writers, students drafted original prose and poetry.

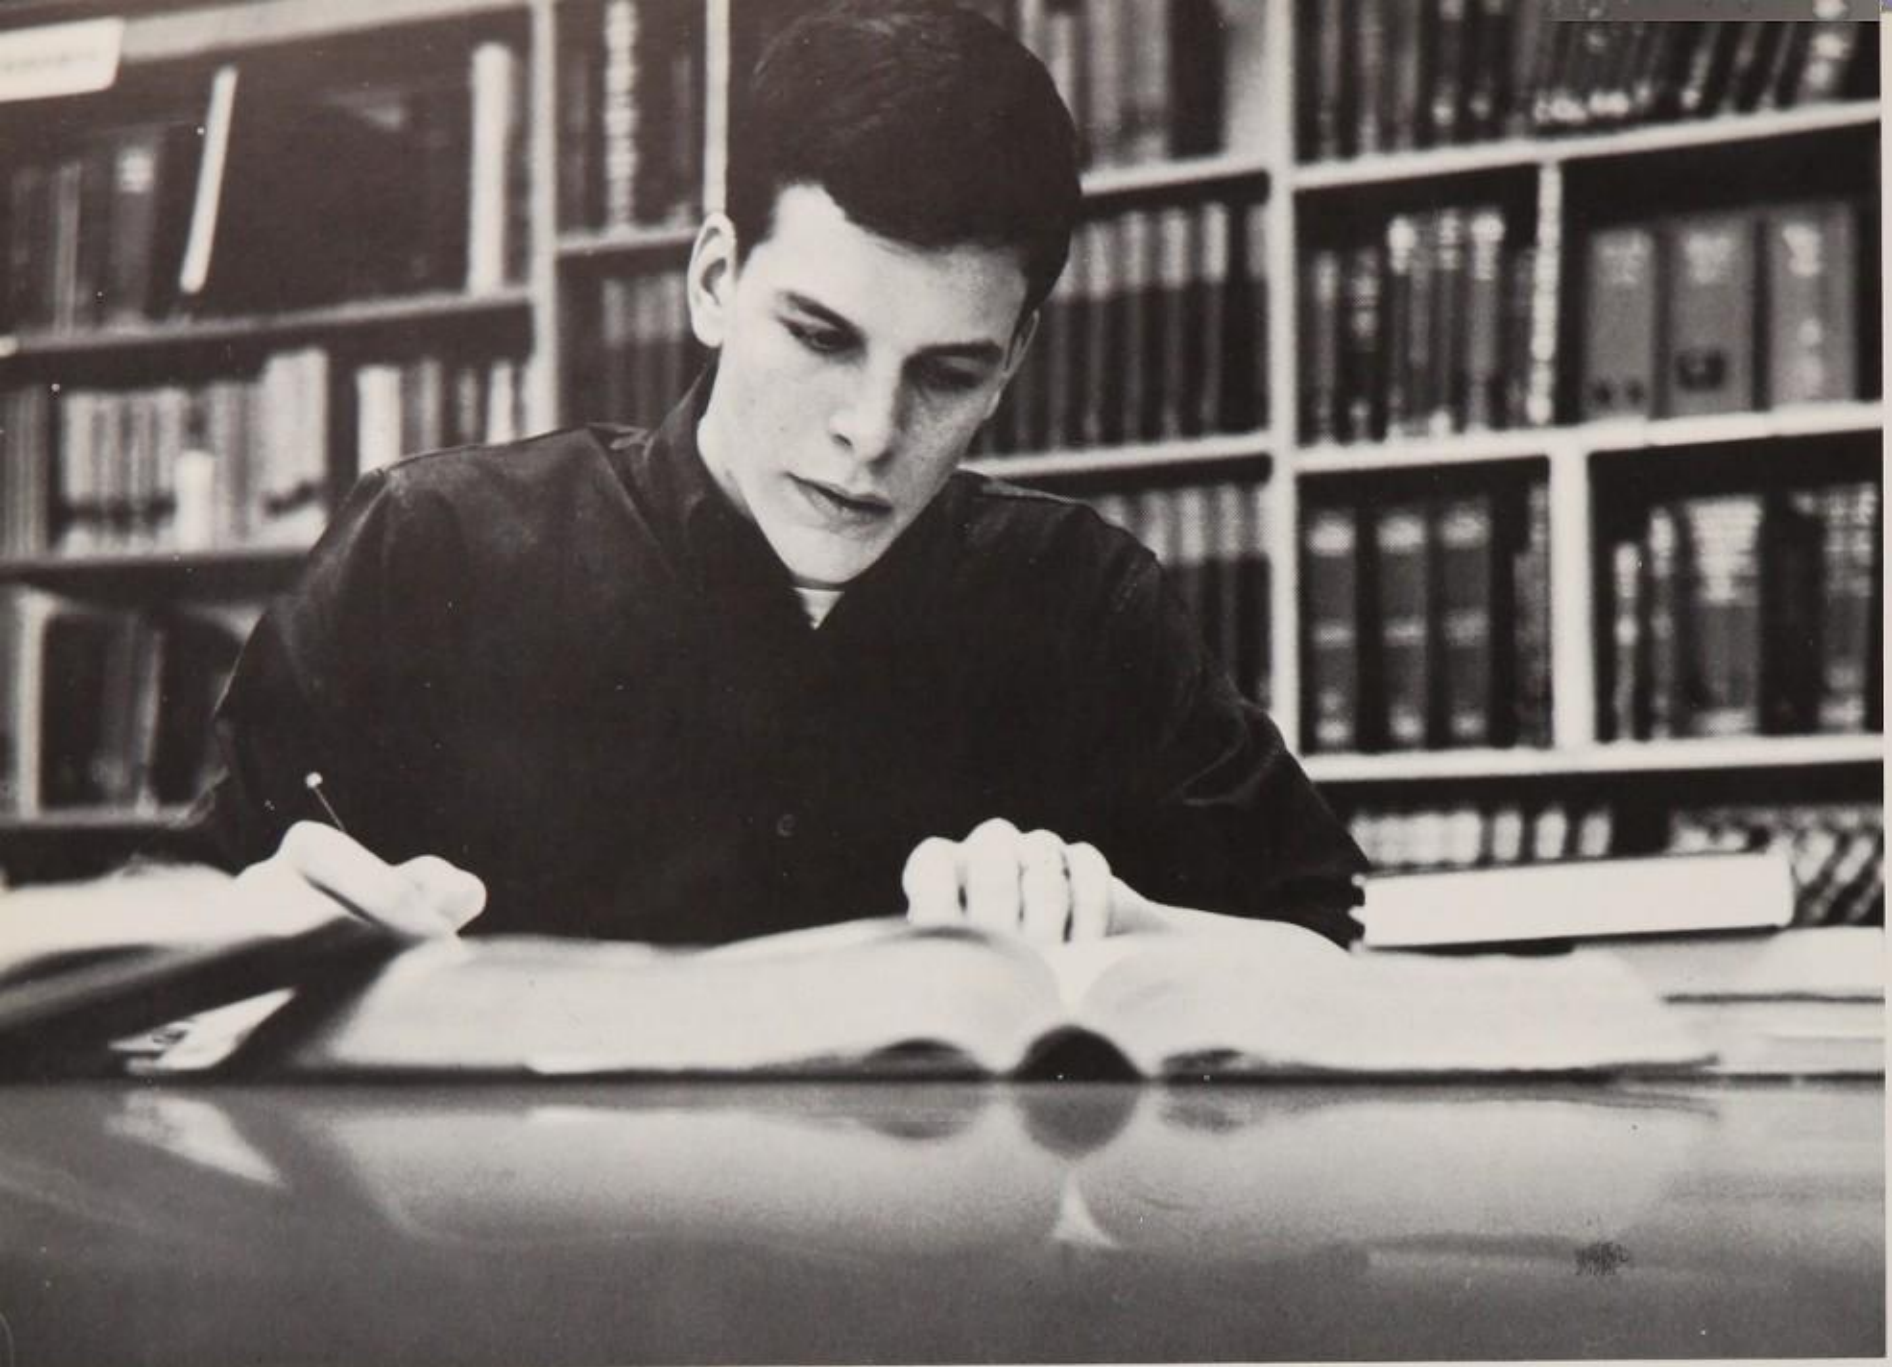

Speech emphasized oral and dramatic expression. Students made extemporaneous and prepared speeches and presented pantomines.

"Does everything seem dull, out of focus?" questions Joe Davis in an effort to help his speech class during a hot debate on senior privileges.

"And when I hold my arm this way my sleeve is too short, but when I hold it down it's too long!" laments Mary Helen Nader.

Jim Martin carefully copies passages from encyclopedias for his history paper.

Alice Rhea and Jody Nader spend long classroom hours on their history notebooks.

Languages, Social Studies

Stress Foreign Interest

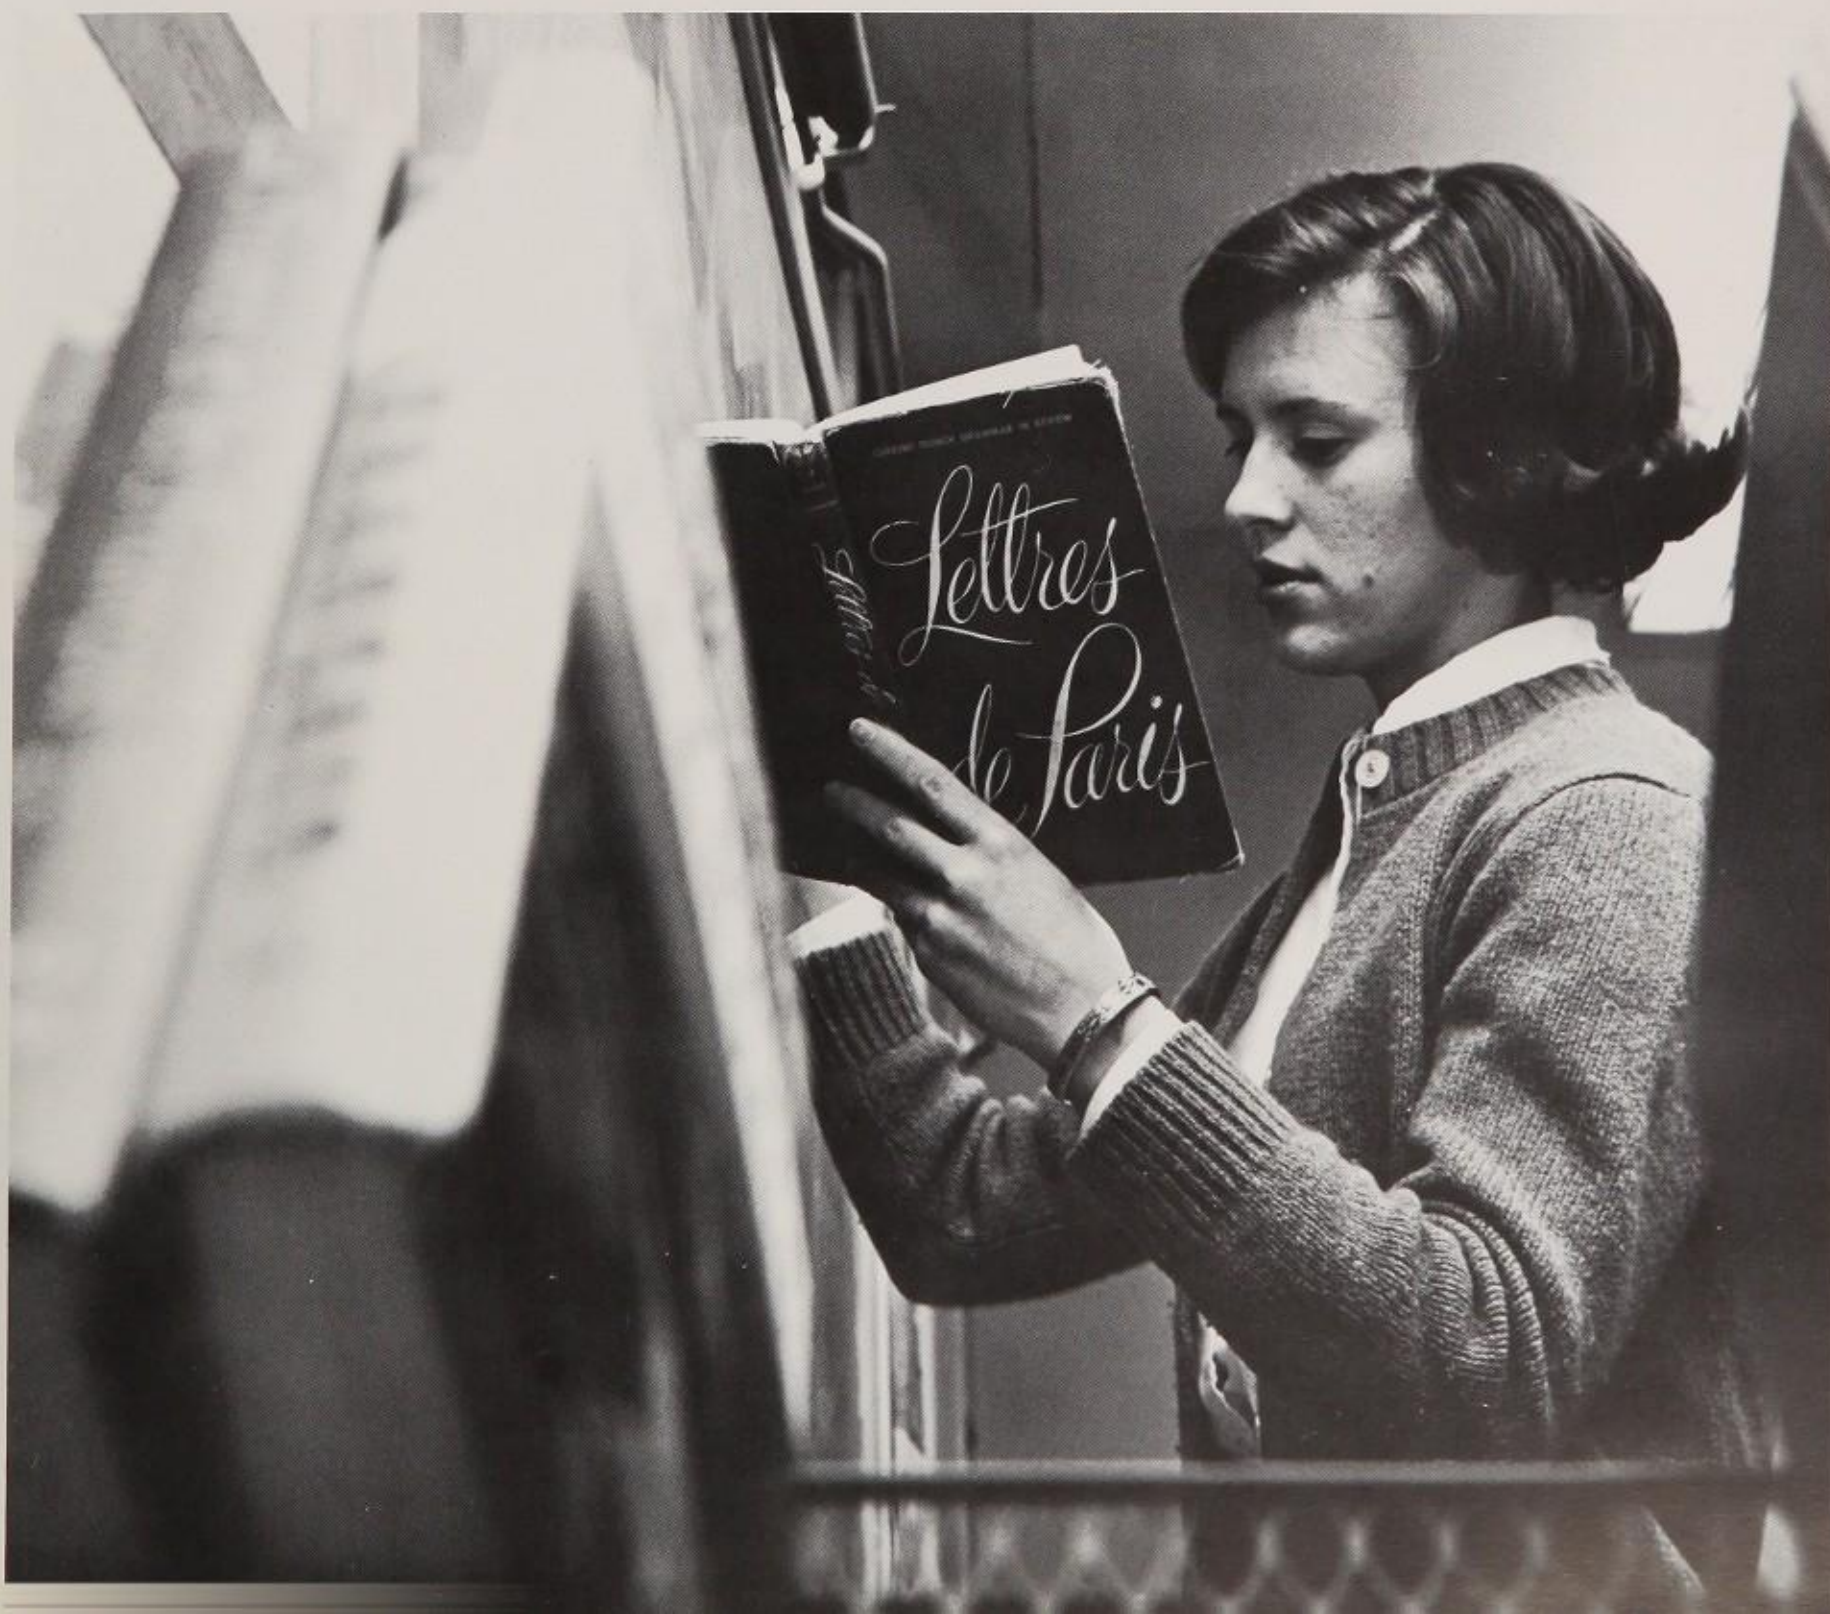

This year, more students than ever before participated in Murrah's foreign language program, which offered French, Spanish, and Latin. The language laboratory greatly aided students in learning to speak and understand the language or languages of their choice.

Social studies courses developed well-informed citizens. Students studied the history and government of the United States and other nations and kept informed on current events by reading weekly news magazines.

"All the souvenirs behind me came from Spain except Mr. Lyon's sombrero," confesses Jenny Stone.

"This sentence can't possible be right; c'est la guerre," moans Linda Hines!

Journalism students study the Hoof-beat for stories which can be camouflaged and easily rewritten as weekly assignments.

"So, la, re...pick up dress today...do, fa...cancel dentist appointment...la, re, me..." Barbara Edwards' mind wanders from the score at band practice.

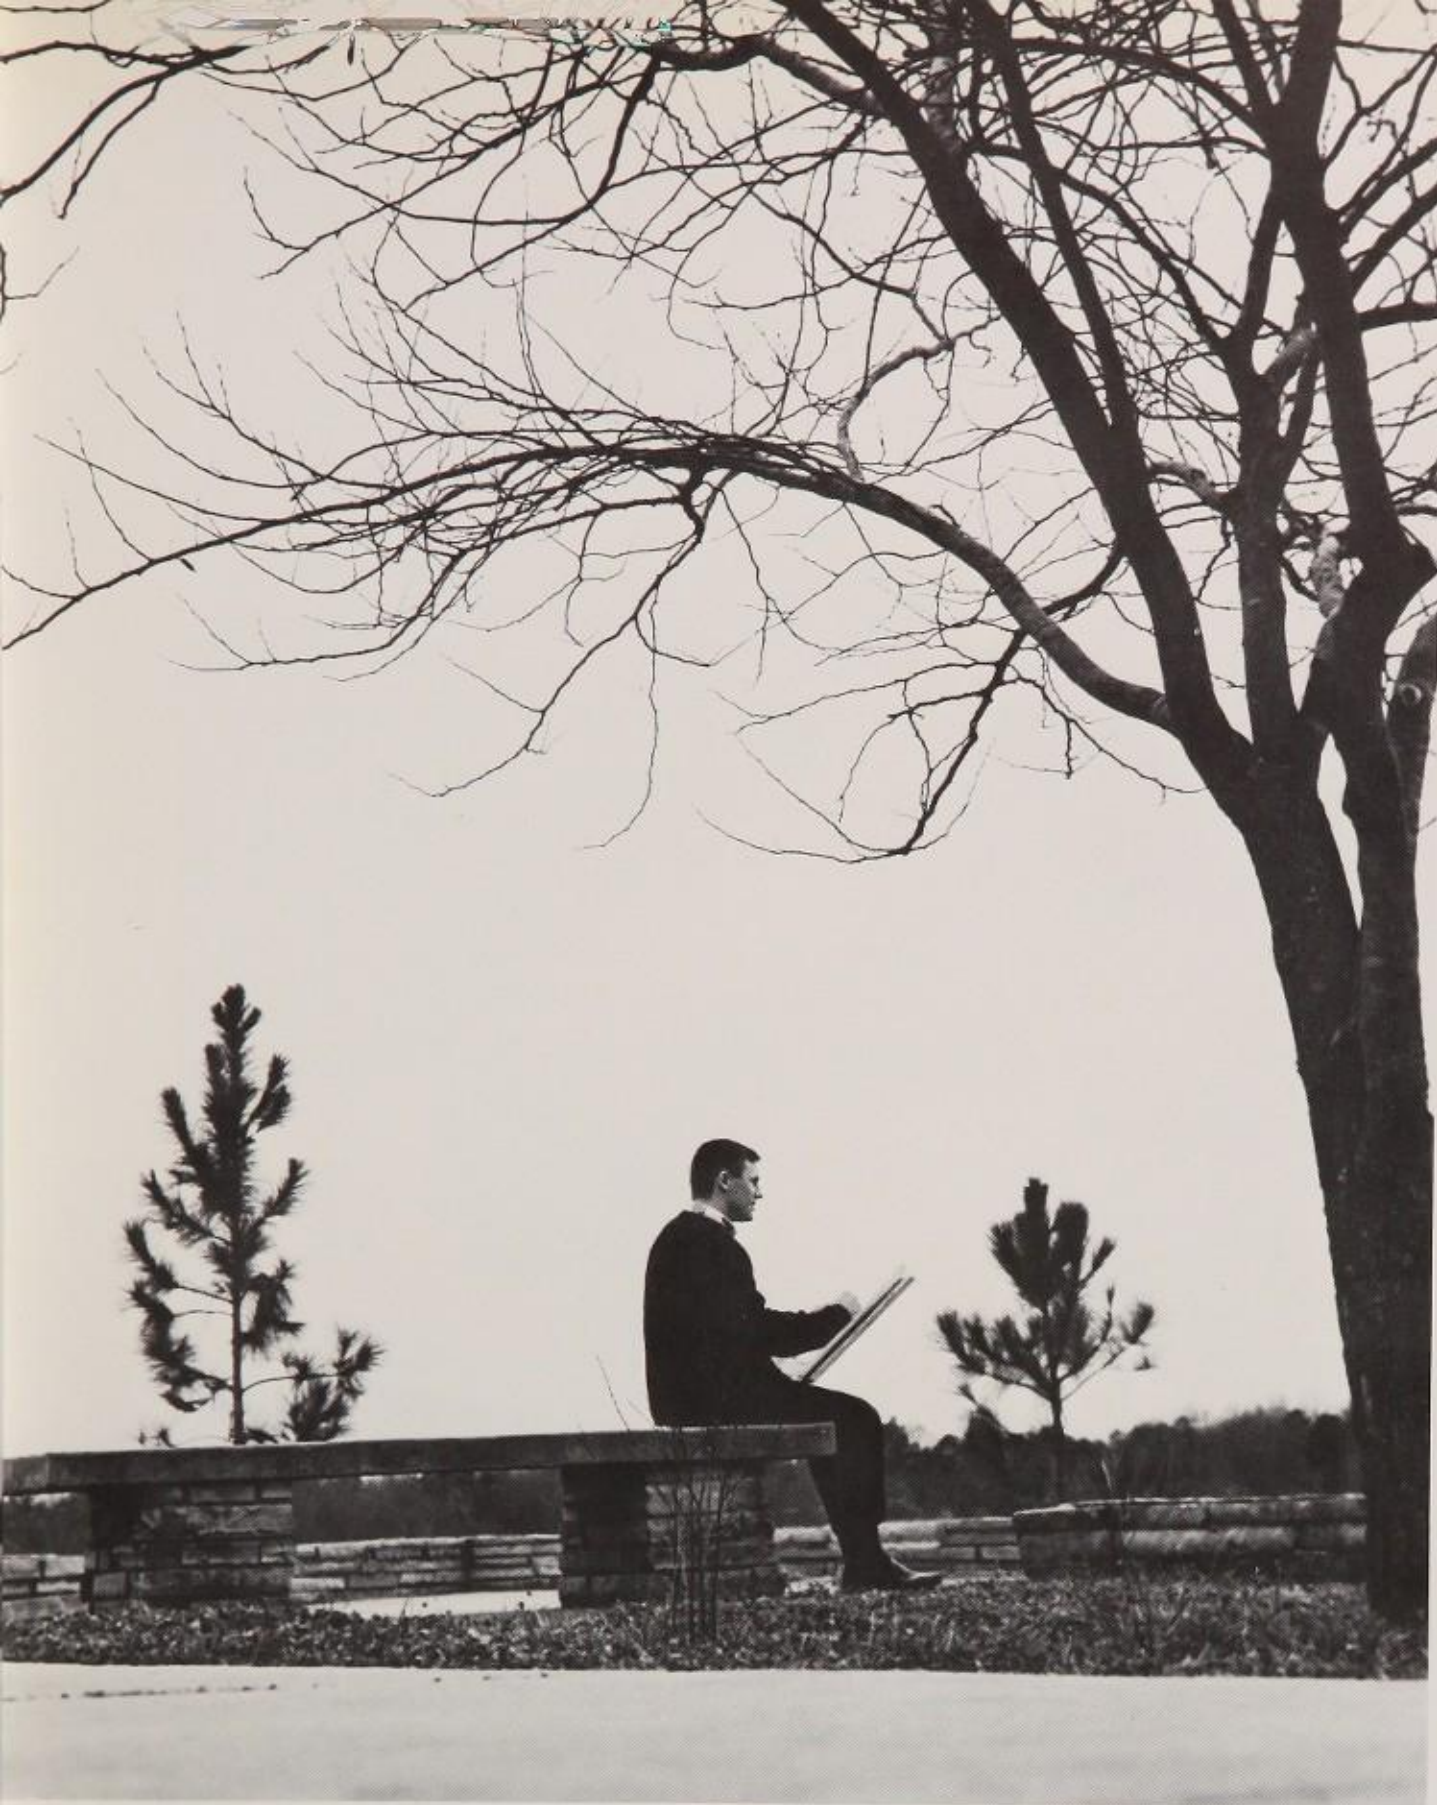

Electives

Impel Gifted Students

Art, music, and journalism courses encouraged Murrah's creative students. First and second year elective courses provided training for beginning and intermediate students, while third year courses challenged serious students who might be considering careers in these creative fields.

Typing students endeavored to acquire a skill which will be beneficial to them in college and throughout adult life.

One of Murrah's finest creative art students, Pat Fortier, captures the Mustangs in practice.

During a nerve-racking time test, typing students frantically hunt, peck, and yield to bitter defeat.

"Now, if I run lots of hot water, the drain won't stop up, and Mrs. Starling won't find out that I poured the cheese sauce into the sink," schemes a homemaking student.

"I hope my insurance payments are up to date," worries Donald Nichols.

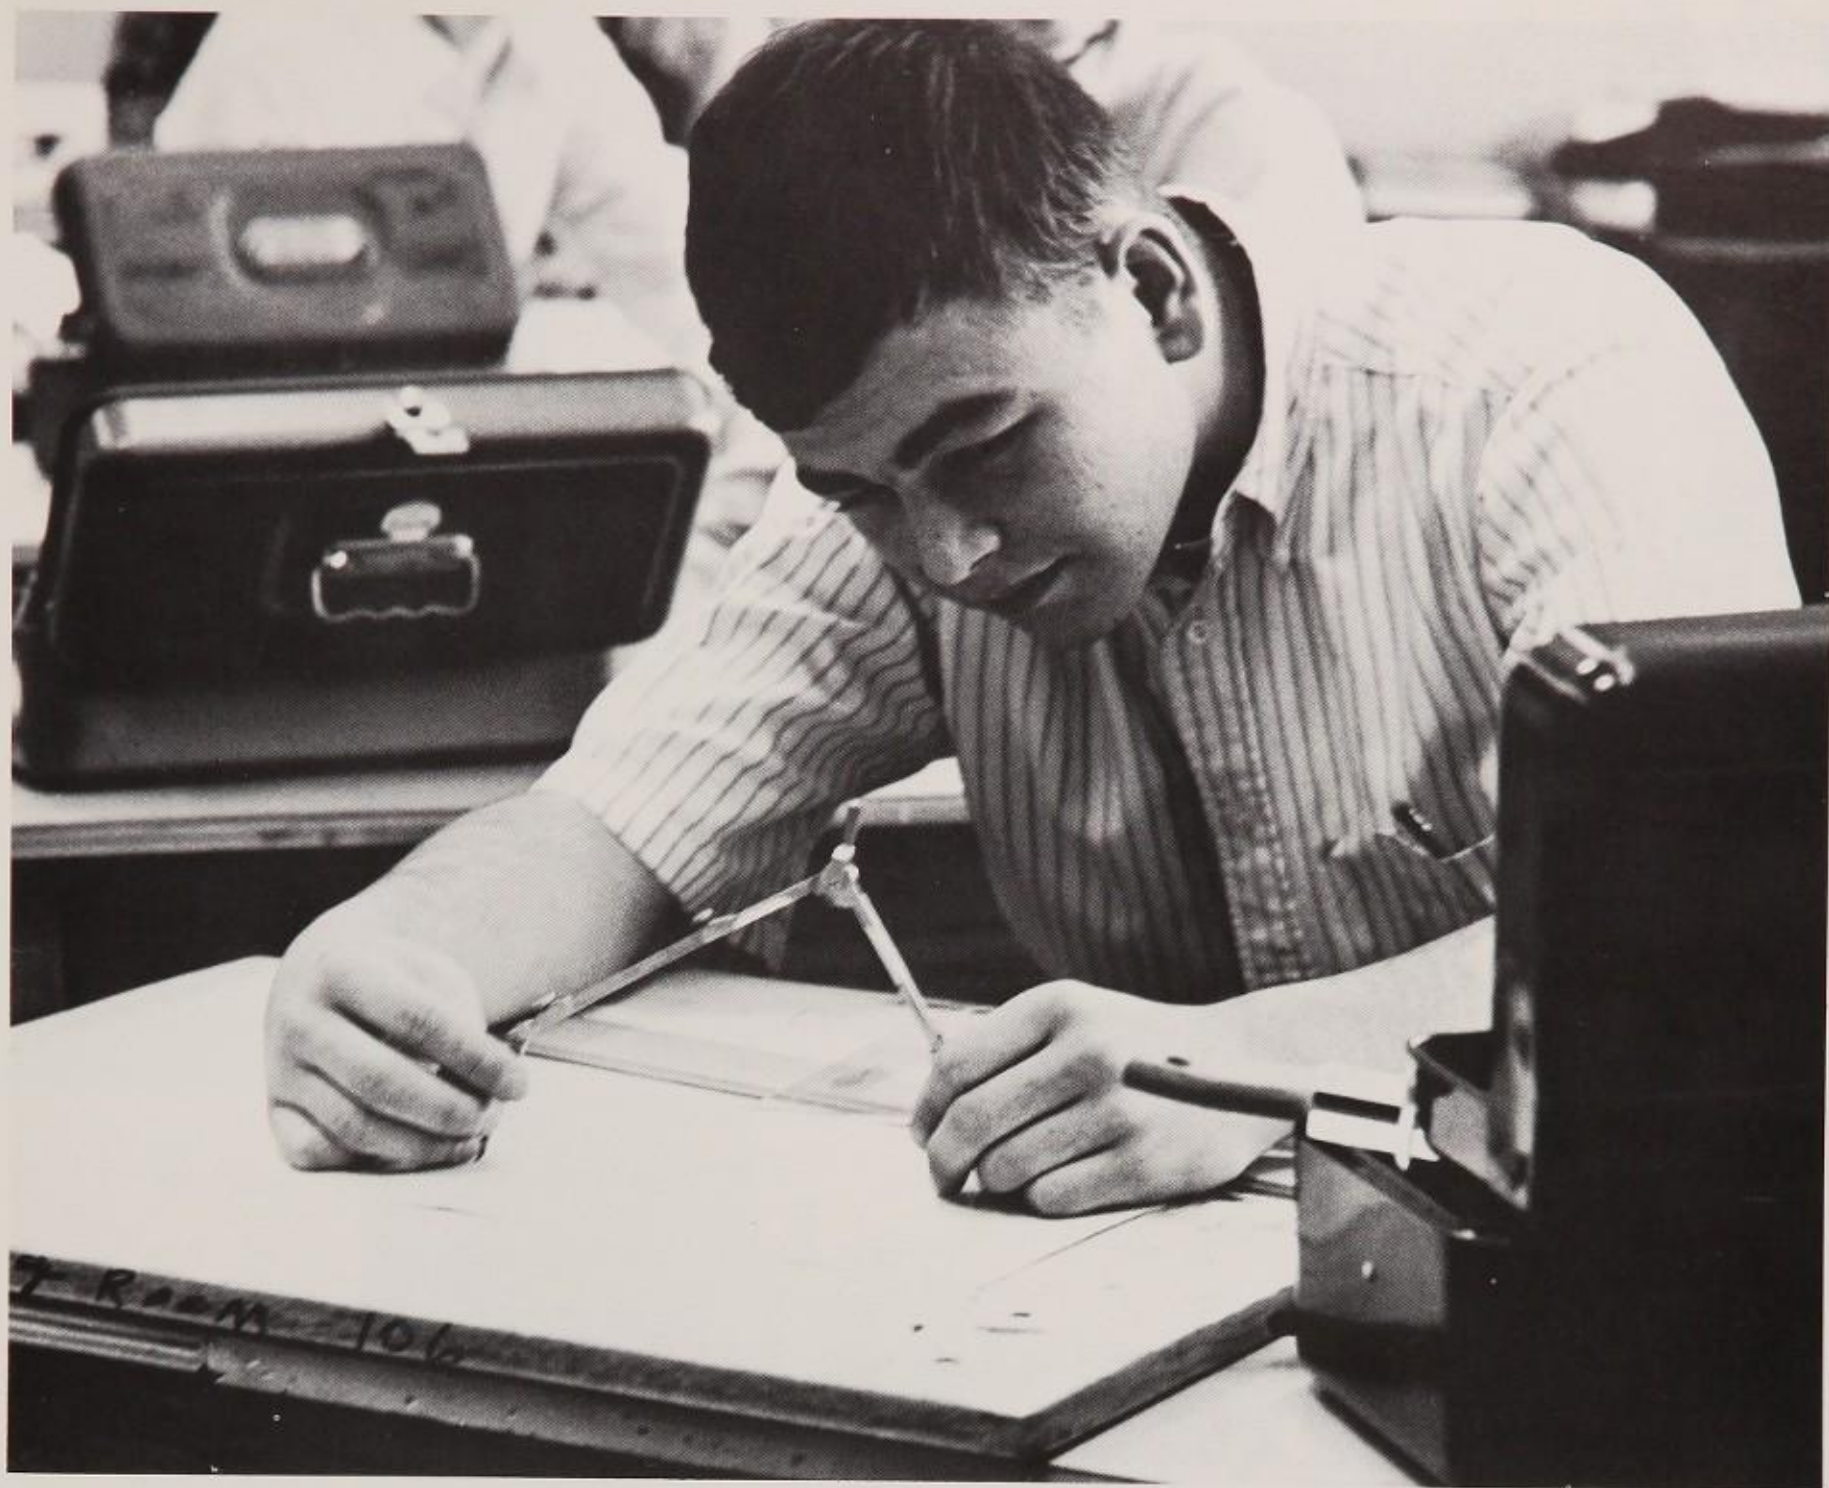

Varied Courses

Teach Practical Skills

Besides learning cooking and sewing fundamentals, homemaking students strove to master the fine points of managing a home. The girls studied nutrition as a supplement to cooking; in the sewing field they learned professional finishing techniques.

Industrial arts students prepared themselves for vocations in architecture and building. Emphasis was placed on mathematical accuracy and skillful production.

The driver education course, which utilized visual aids such as films and charts, has resulted in accident prevention and improved attitudes among Murrah drivers.

"Miss Spann's circle-drawing technique would be much faster," mutters Gus Pooley in exasperation.

"Let's get this straight: step 1, fasten seat belt; step 2, check oil guage; step 3, adjust rear view mirror; step 4, start motor." Hey, David Trewolla, you forgot to shut the door!

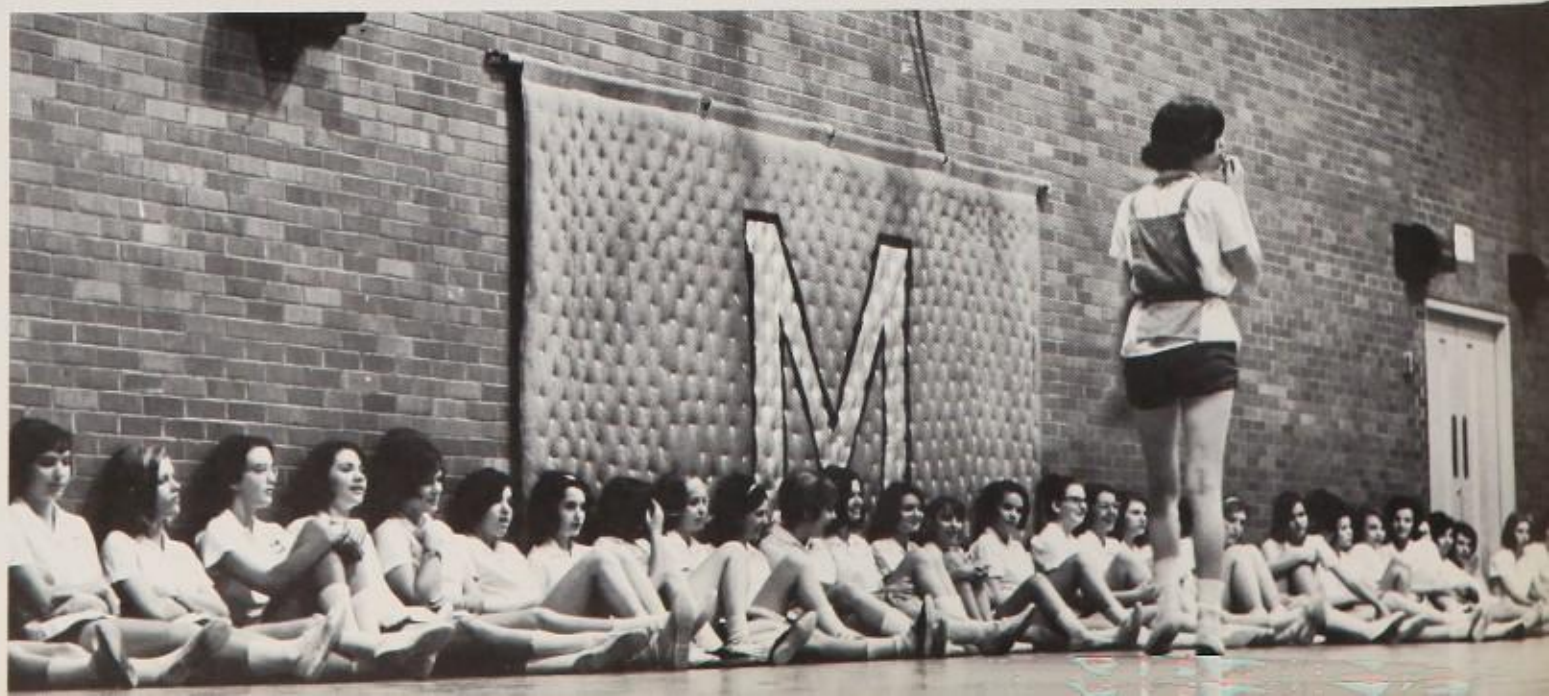

...And Jane Hubbard put Hansel and Gretel into the oven.

In the hushed atmosphere of the library, Bryan Barksdale searches the shelves for reference material for a research paper.

A girl's gym class' ratio of players to non-players is one to fifty.

"No fooling, my role had a 'Howard Johnson's Seal of Approval' stamped on it," insists Red Morgan to a group of classmates during the hectic lunch period.

Lunchroom Library, Gym

Break Classroom Routine

In physical education classes, physical fitness was developed by group sports and formal exercises, with tests given periodically to measure a student's progress. Murrah's lunchroom offered a nourishing lunch and a relief from classroom pressures.

With the addition of about a thousand new books this year, the library was better equipped than ever to meet the needs of students for supplementary reference material. It also provided an opportunity for student assistants to earn honor points while they became familiar with fundamental library science.

"Aw, c'mon, Coach, be a sport," pleads Bob Miller as he scales the gymnasium wall in an effort to escape the impending wrath of his gym instructor.

"I must go down to the seas again, to the lonely seas and the sky..." sighs Principal James E. Merritt.

"Is this a receipt which I see before me?" questions Mrs. Sims.

Principal

Leads Murrah With Aid Of School Board

In order to succeed, an organization must have strong, capable leadership. Murrah possesses this kind of leadership in Principal James Merritt and the Board of Education, headed by Dr. Kirby P. Walker.

The five board members make an annual visit to Murrah and at all times work in close association with Mr. Merritt in determining the most beneficial school policy.

"Gentlemen, before I present my report on the new mathematics program, I'd like to say that these Tootsie Rolls really hit the spot," muses Mr. R. B. Layton, Director of Curriculum.

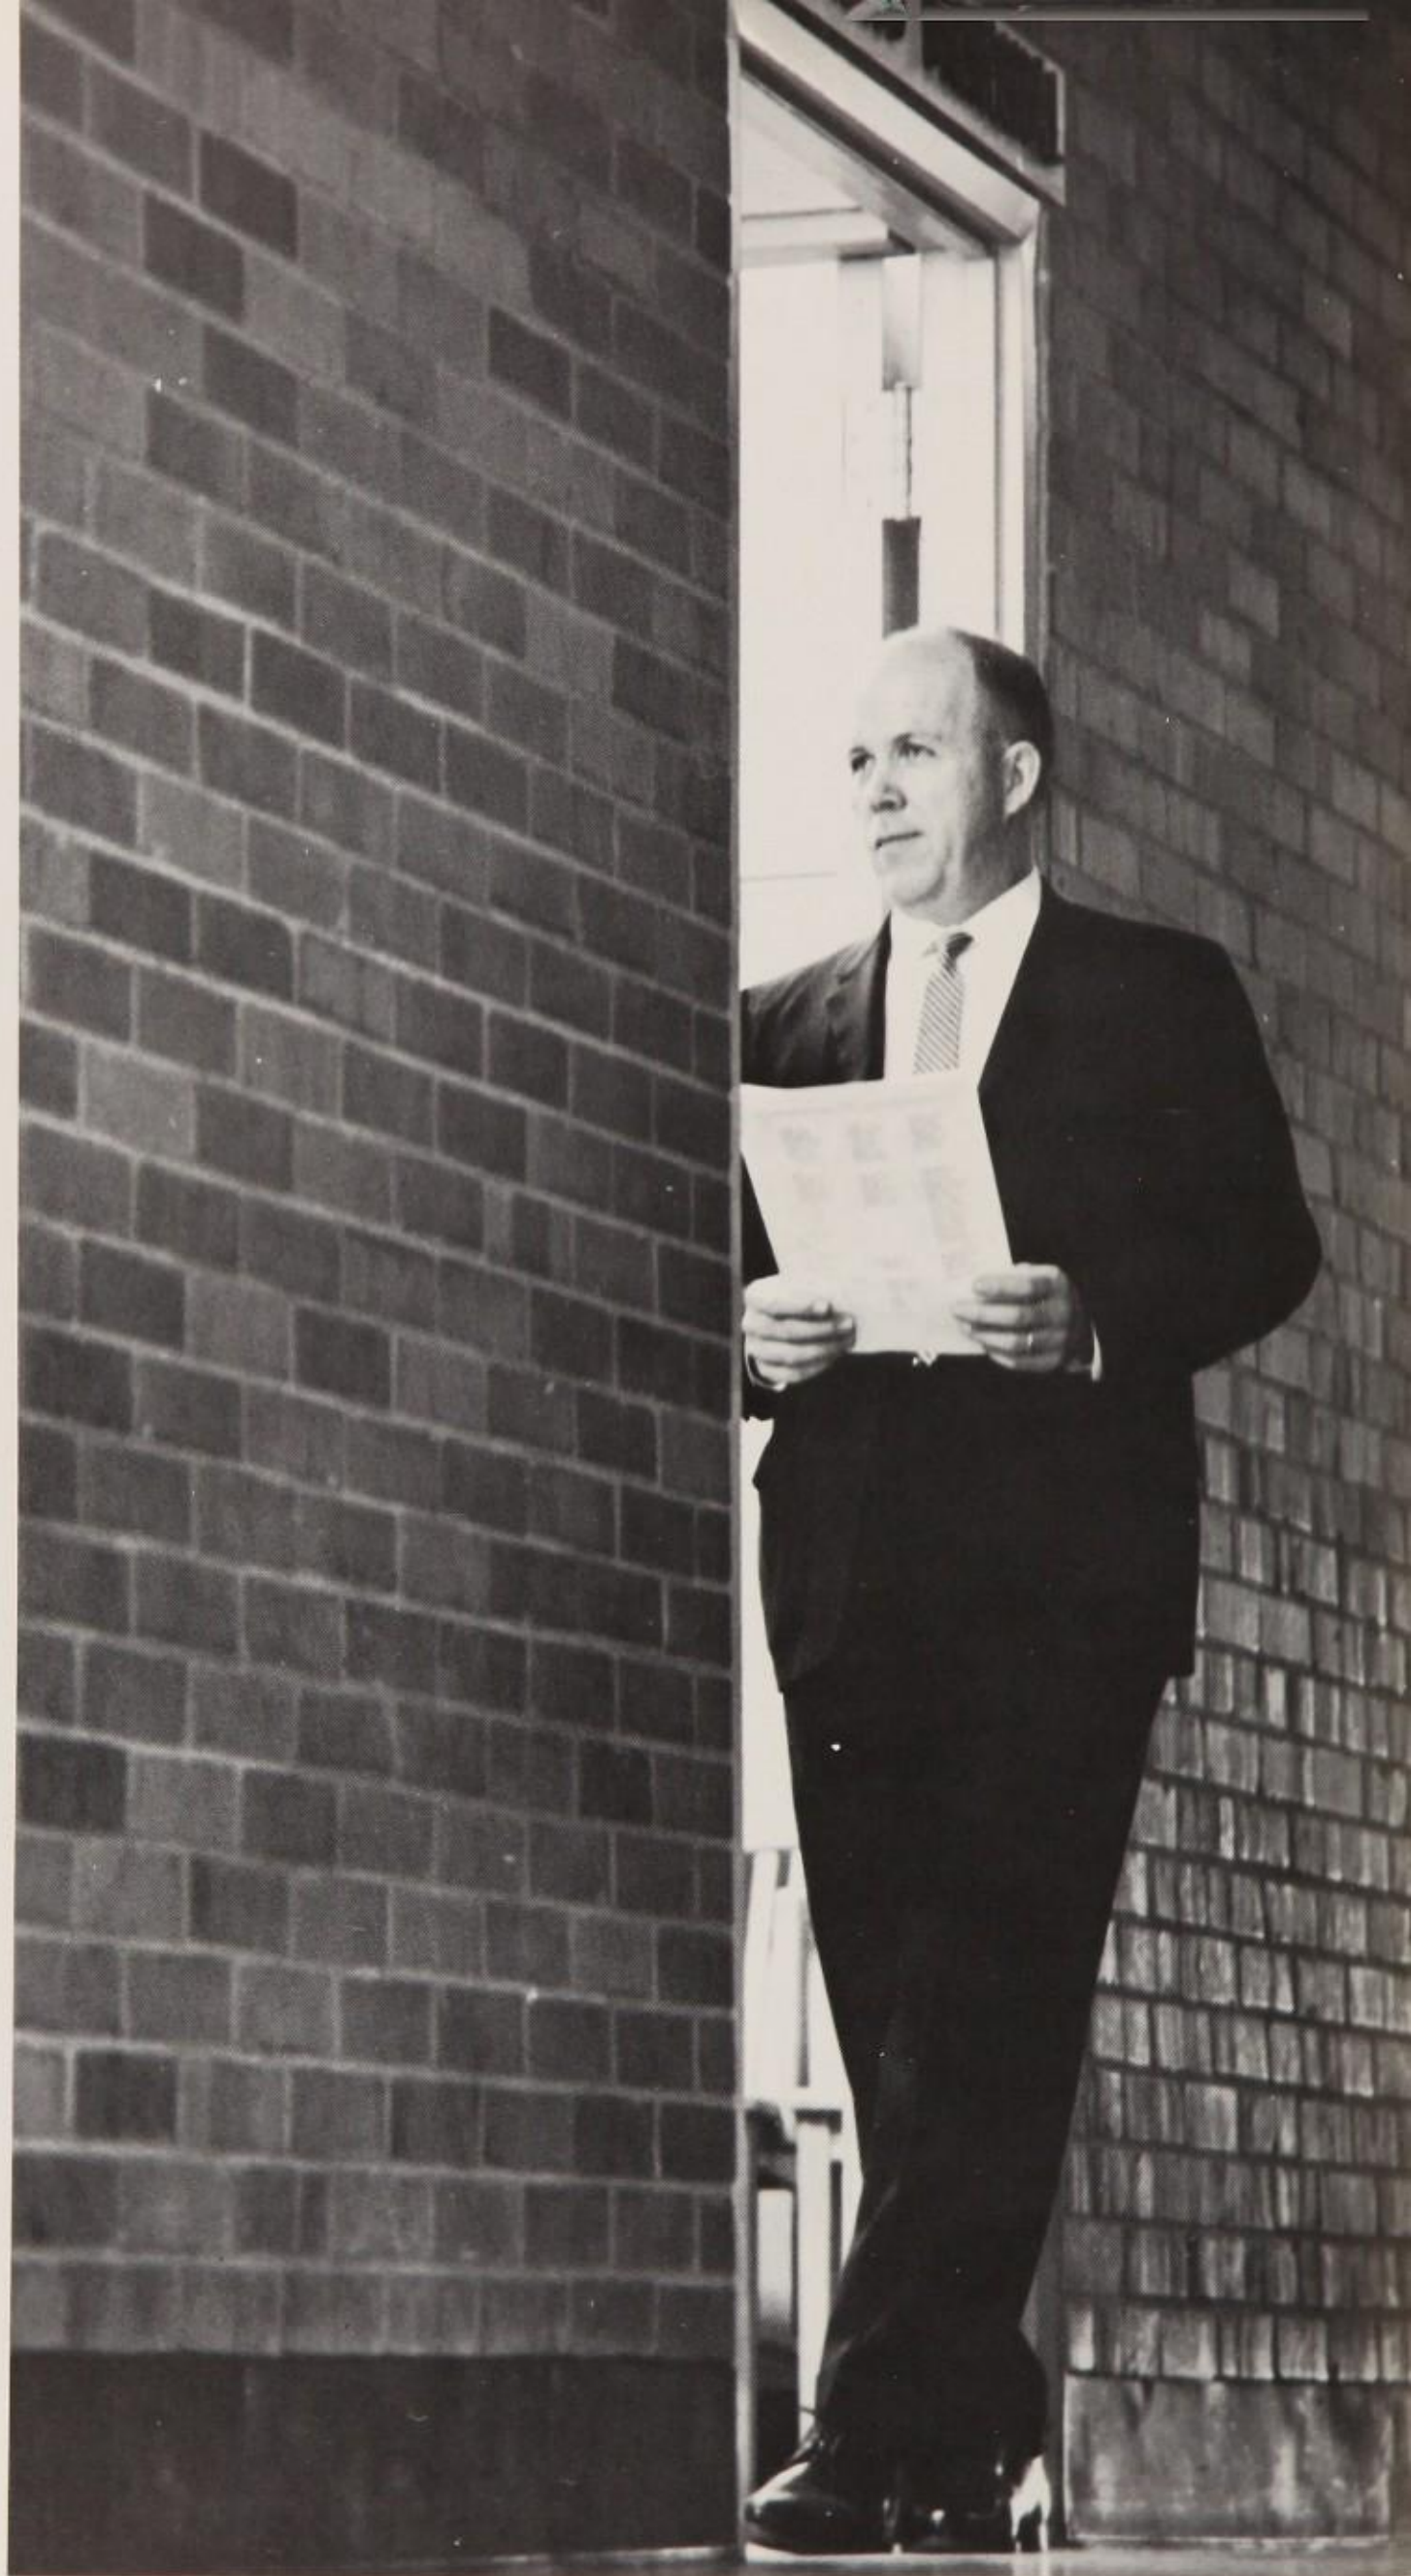

"The next time you send me pencils without erasers, it won't be the pencil that's broken," jokingly comments Dr. Kirby Walker.

"Mr. Pleasant, have you ever dreamed of a perfect day—no absences, no tardies, no dismissals?" asks Mrs. Myers, hoping for the "El Dorado."

William J. Pleasant,
Assistant Principal

School Officials

Counsel, Instruct Students

With Murrah's enrollment at an all-time high, the duties of Mr. Pleasant and the counselors became increasingly demanding. Although the position of assistant principal has existed for only two years, Mr. Pleasant has become indispensable in handling such matters as the lunchroom schedule, attendance maintenance, and school bus service.

Besides assisting students with individual problems and college applications, Murrah's four counselors successfully devised more than 1600 class schedules this year.

"Don't you think you should take at least one full credit subject next year?" questions Mrs. Curran.

"Don't look so cheerful, Miss Breland. We're only half way through these schedules," admonishes Miss Carter.

"If X students would only take Y courses, then we could put you in advanced driver education," explains Mr. Hunt.

"A passport to let me out of the cage!" sighs Mrs. De Poyster.

"Yes, Miss Carter," responds Miss Breland.

"Hey, what's wrong, Mary Alice Welty?" taunts William Richardson as Coker Palmer and the rest of the Student Council grin knowingly.

Bill Jones prepares to move that President Farber smile during the meeting.

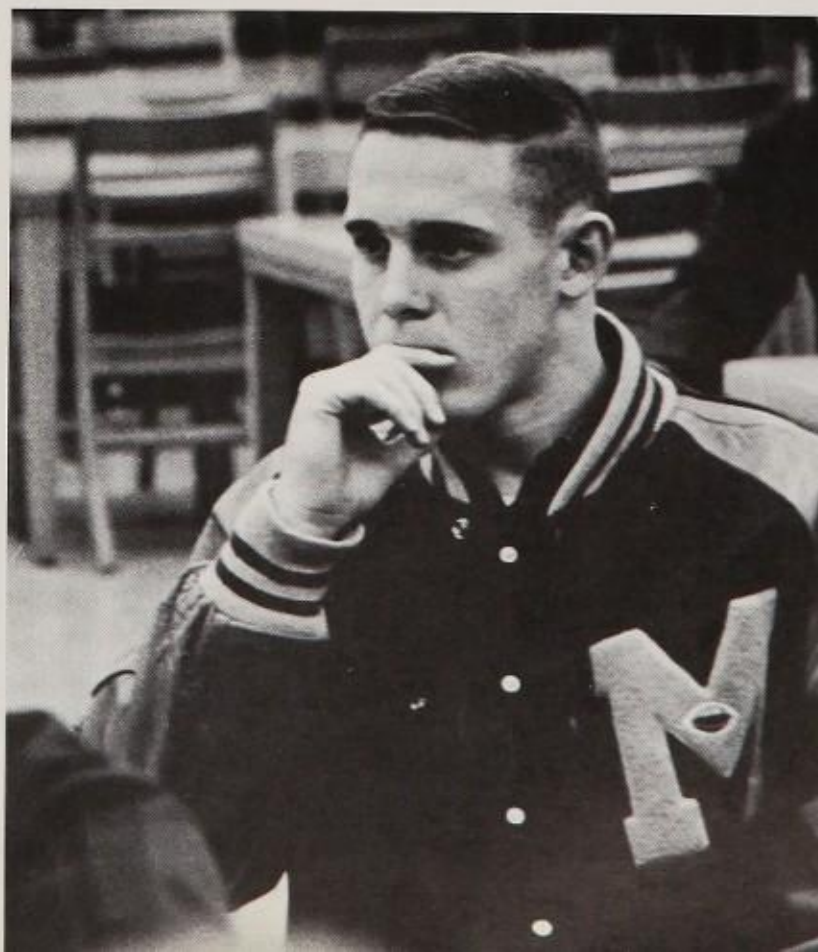

Student Council Secretary Bill Garth and President Brad Farber consider a motion that has been made to postpone school because of the spring fever epidemic.

Student Council

Revises Honor Point Count

An integral part of Murrah, the Student Council, permitted all students to participate in and share responsibilities of administration and organization of school activities. Funds from Council-sponsored activities, such as the Valentine Dance, were used to support projects of the Council and to send delegates to state and tri-state conventions. The Council, composed of the president from each homeroom, also sponsored the point system through which students earned honor letters and keys.

"Sure wish I could think of something to say so I could get my name in the minutes" ponders Student Council member Cliff Chunn at a Monday meeting.

"And here's my shortcut to Einstein's theory," explains MAO President Johnny Guyton.

Mu Alpha Theta

Sponsors Math Contest

Mu Alpha Theta, the mathematics honorary club, continued this year to engender keener interest in mathematics, to develop sound scholarship in that subject, and to promote the enjoyment of mathematics among high school students.

The annual banquet was held in October where the associate members were initiated. At the bi-monthly meetings, members learned of many jobs and opportunities available in the field of mathematics through informative speakers.

Paul Wilson carefully listens to discussion while presiding over the first state-wide National Honor Society convention.

State Math Supervisor, Mr. John Ethridge, informs Mu Alpha Theta members on "The Advanced Education Methods in Lower Grades" at the annual banquet.

"In seventy-five years Jackson should have a population of one and a half million," explains Mr. George Donovan from one of the local banks, as he shows slides of a model of this city during a bi-monthly meeting of the National Honor Society.

Honor Society

Organizes State Chapter

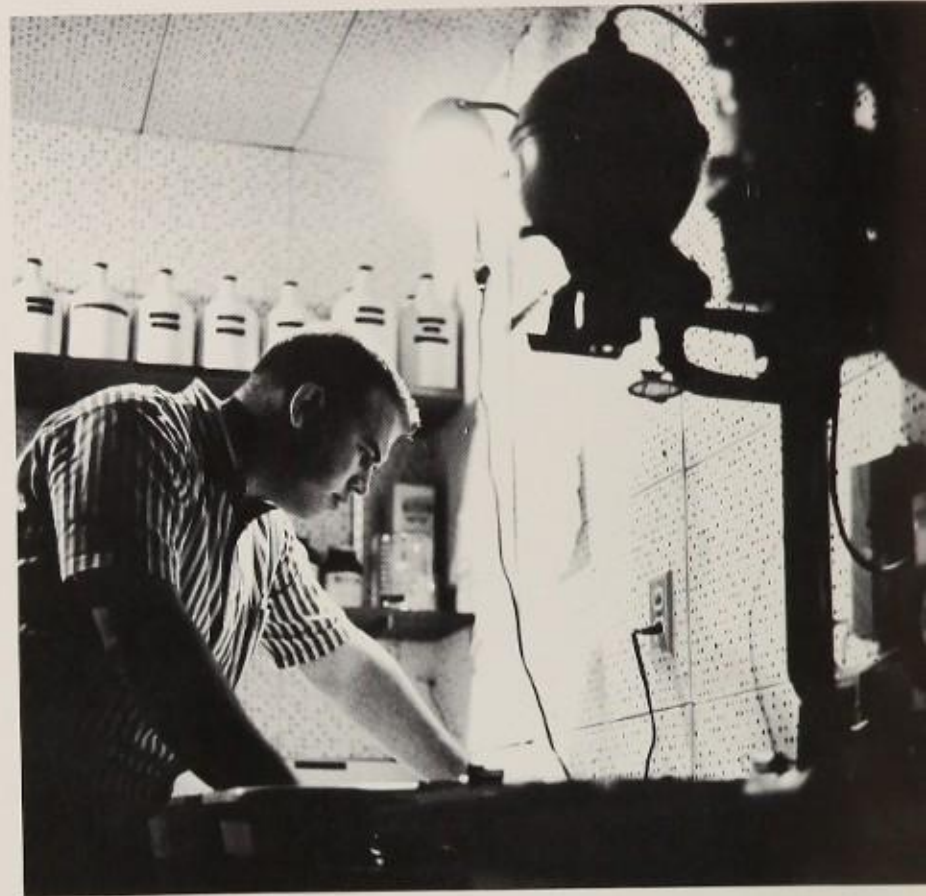

Under the leadership of Mr. Hunt, the National Honor Society sustained its standards of high grade excellence, character, and leadership. For its second year, the Society-sponsored tutoring service successfully aided many faltering students.

The largest endeavor of the Society was the establishment of a state organization, the first conference being held at Murrah in February. At that meeting, a state chapter was organized, and a constitution was adopted. Mike Coker, Murrah junior, was elected the organization's first president.

Résumé Staff Produces

First College-Size High School Annual

To create a yearbook different from any other annual in concept, mood, and impression was the constant purpose of the 1965 Résumé staff. Utilizing ideas gained from a summer visit to the American Yearbook Company in Topeka, Kansas, and from the National Scholastic Press Association Convention in Chicago, the staff dedicated itself to producing Murrah's first All-American yearbook.

Mr. Irving Lloyd, professional photographer and yearbook consultant, advised the students in drawing imaginative layouts and in taking professional-looking pictures. As each deadline approached, the staff members placed homework, other school activities, and even parents subordinate to the annual. When school ended in June, every Murrah student eagerly awaited the first college-size high school annual in the state of Mississippi — the 1965 Résumé.

Editor Bill Sims, who resembles Ole Miss tackle Stan Hindman in a University of Mississippi sweatshirt, patiently counts student life copy.

Earl Fyke, Clint Cavett, Camille Johnson, Tommy Thompson, and Pat Bush check the well-organized (?) and accurate budget.

"I wonder if Ian Fleming got his start this way," muses Sue Howard, while the other assistant editor, Becky Hendrick, stares at her exciting copy.

Assistant Editor Melinda McKinnon sets type with ink-stained fingers.

"Won't Mr. Hunter just die when he finds out we've put Ramblers inside all the Hoofbeats!" jokes Christy Johnson as she helps assemble the paper.

Hoofbeat Staff

Wins 'Pacemaker' Award

For the second time in three years the Hoofbeat won the ANPA's Pacemaker award as one of the top five papers in the entire nation.

All-American for fourteen consecutive semesters — Boasting of this distinction, an achievement rarely attained by any student publication, the Hoofbeat concluded another award-filled year.

Published in February as a vital part of the Safety Week, the 22-page prize-winning edition was the largest issue in Murrah's history. This issue also won first place in the National Traffic Safety Contest over 946 other schools.

"This ink will never come off my hands," thinks Co-Editor Trish Bradley disgustedly.

Counting papers for distribution, Hoofbeat Co-Editor Averyell Althaus pauses to scan an editorial.

"O.K. Bryan, you're initiated; but you have to promise never to tell about the dues," reprimand Bill Sims and Becky Hendrick.

While placing orders for Quill and Scroll jewelry, club members wonder who will be the speaker at the proposed banquet.

Quill And Scroll

Sponsors Hall Of Fame

Three members of Murrah's chapter of Quill and Scroll received first place awards in individual Q&S contests. Bob Anderson took the top award for editorials, Melinda McKinnon for best feature, and George Purvis was a double first place winner in photography.

During Safety Week, the chapter, composed of members of the three publications, presented Governor Johnson with an honorary membership in Quill and Scroll. Also, the chapter sponsored the annual Hall of Fame.

"Look Johnny, you tell Miss Musselwhite why we're in the red," rejoin Tish Lowe and Beverly Brooks.

"This is the last time I'm using the thesaurus," notifies Jeff Mangin to bewildered Elta Posey.

Literary Magazine

Inspires Future Writers

Pleiades, Murrah's literary publication, has encouraged students to use their literary talent. These young writers composed short stories, formal and familiar essays, and poems, which the staff, under the sponsorship of dependable Miss Blanche Musselwhite, judged for entrance into the publication.

The amusing student-faculty basketball game raised money for the Pleiades, since subscriptions substituted as tickets. While readers enjoyed the compositions, the creative work has encouraged students to choose a writing career.

Band Members

Receive Cadet Uniforms

Sporting new cadet-style uniforms, the Murrah Mustang Band concluded another successful year. Success came only after long hours of work, on and off the field, under the direction of Mr. Rodger Dollarhide with assistance from Drum Major Denny Douglas.

Possessing tremendous spirit, the band followed the football team in its first undefeated season. Aside from the gridiron, the Band performed at the school, presented a spring concert, and participated in the Mississippi Band Contest.

During a pep rally before the Tupelo game, drummer Jeff Goodrich sets the beat to "Go Murrah, go!"

Misses, Singers

Perform At School Activities

Highly regarded as a local performing group, the Murrah Singers, under the direction of Miss Karen Gilfoy, entertained for the annual First Federal Awards Banquet and for the Junior League Carnival Ball. Comprised of seventy-five voices, the select choir also performed for various clubs and social organizations.

Thirty-three high-stepping Murrah Misses, boosting the morale of the team and fans alike, executed precision routines during halftime. Directed by Mrs. Maida Starling, the Misses performed in pep rallies, football games, "The Gay Nineties," and "The Murrah Go-Round." Long hours of practice were culminated by the halftime performances at the Shrimp Bowl.

As the band plays the last note of "The Good Ship Lollipop," the Misses climatically fill the air with balloons.

The Murrah Misses patriotically perform to "Dixie."

"And in appreciation for your patience in putting up with us and our parking lot," acknowledges Mary Margaret Taylor as she presents a certificate.

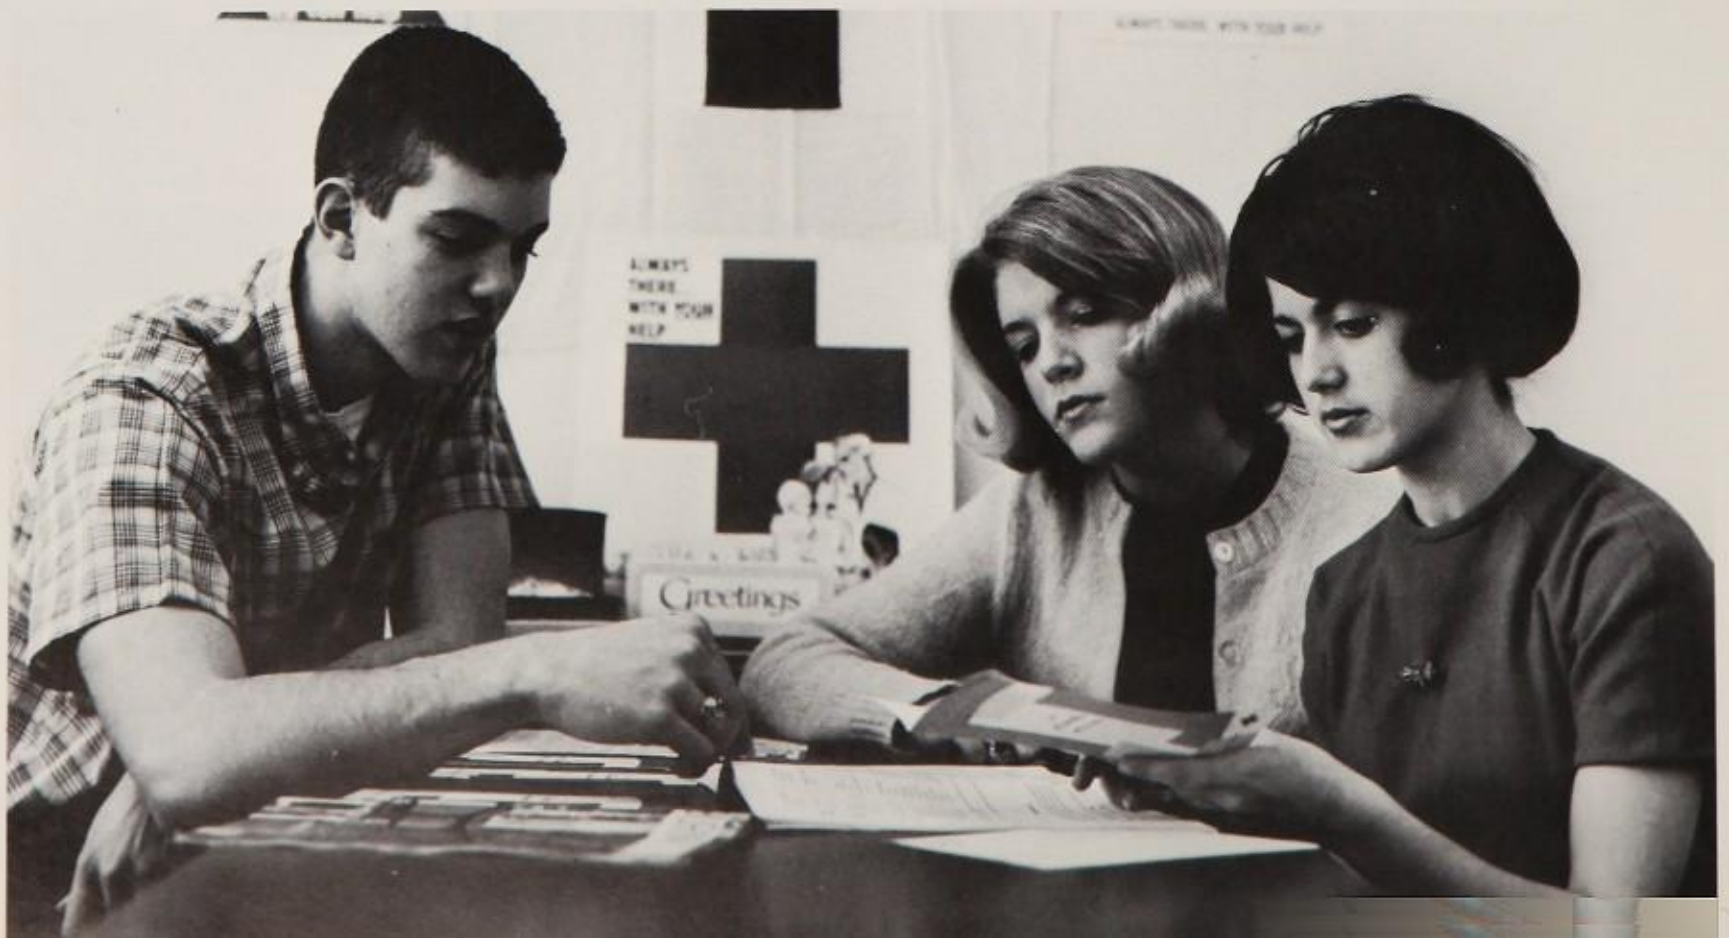

Service Clubs

Co-ordinate Safety Week

It's not the right of way that counts, it's the right way." Using this motto, the Safety Council launched the first Safety Week in three years. Hundreds of posters, displays, and banners sought to shock students into becoming more safety-minded.

During Christmas members of the Red Cross Council sent gift boxes overseas and collected toys which were given to needy children.

"Personally, I like Zanzibar," asserts president Ben Whitfield as Kathy Squires and Pat Thompson study a list of needy schools.

Grinning enthusiastically Leon C. Miller commends Donna Cowles on her performance in the musical.

"And now for the eyes," instructs Lynn Cornell.

Thespian Club

Hosts National Secretary

Few groups were as active at Murrah as the Thespian Troupe 514. Although membership required work and perseverance, one hundred hours of dramatic endeavors plus participation in two productions, the society boasted of over one hundred members. This year Murrah's troupe was host to a state Thespian workshop with Mr. Leon C. Miller, secretary of the National Thespian Society, as the special guest speaker and adviser.

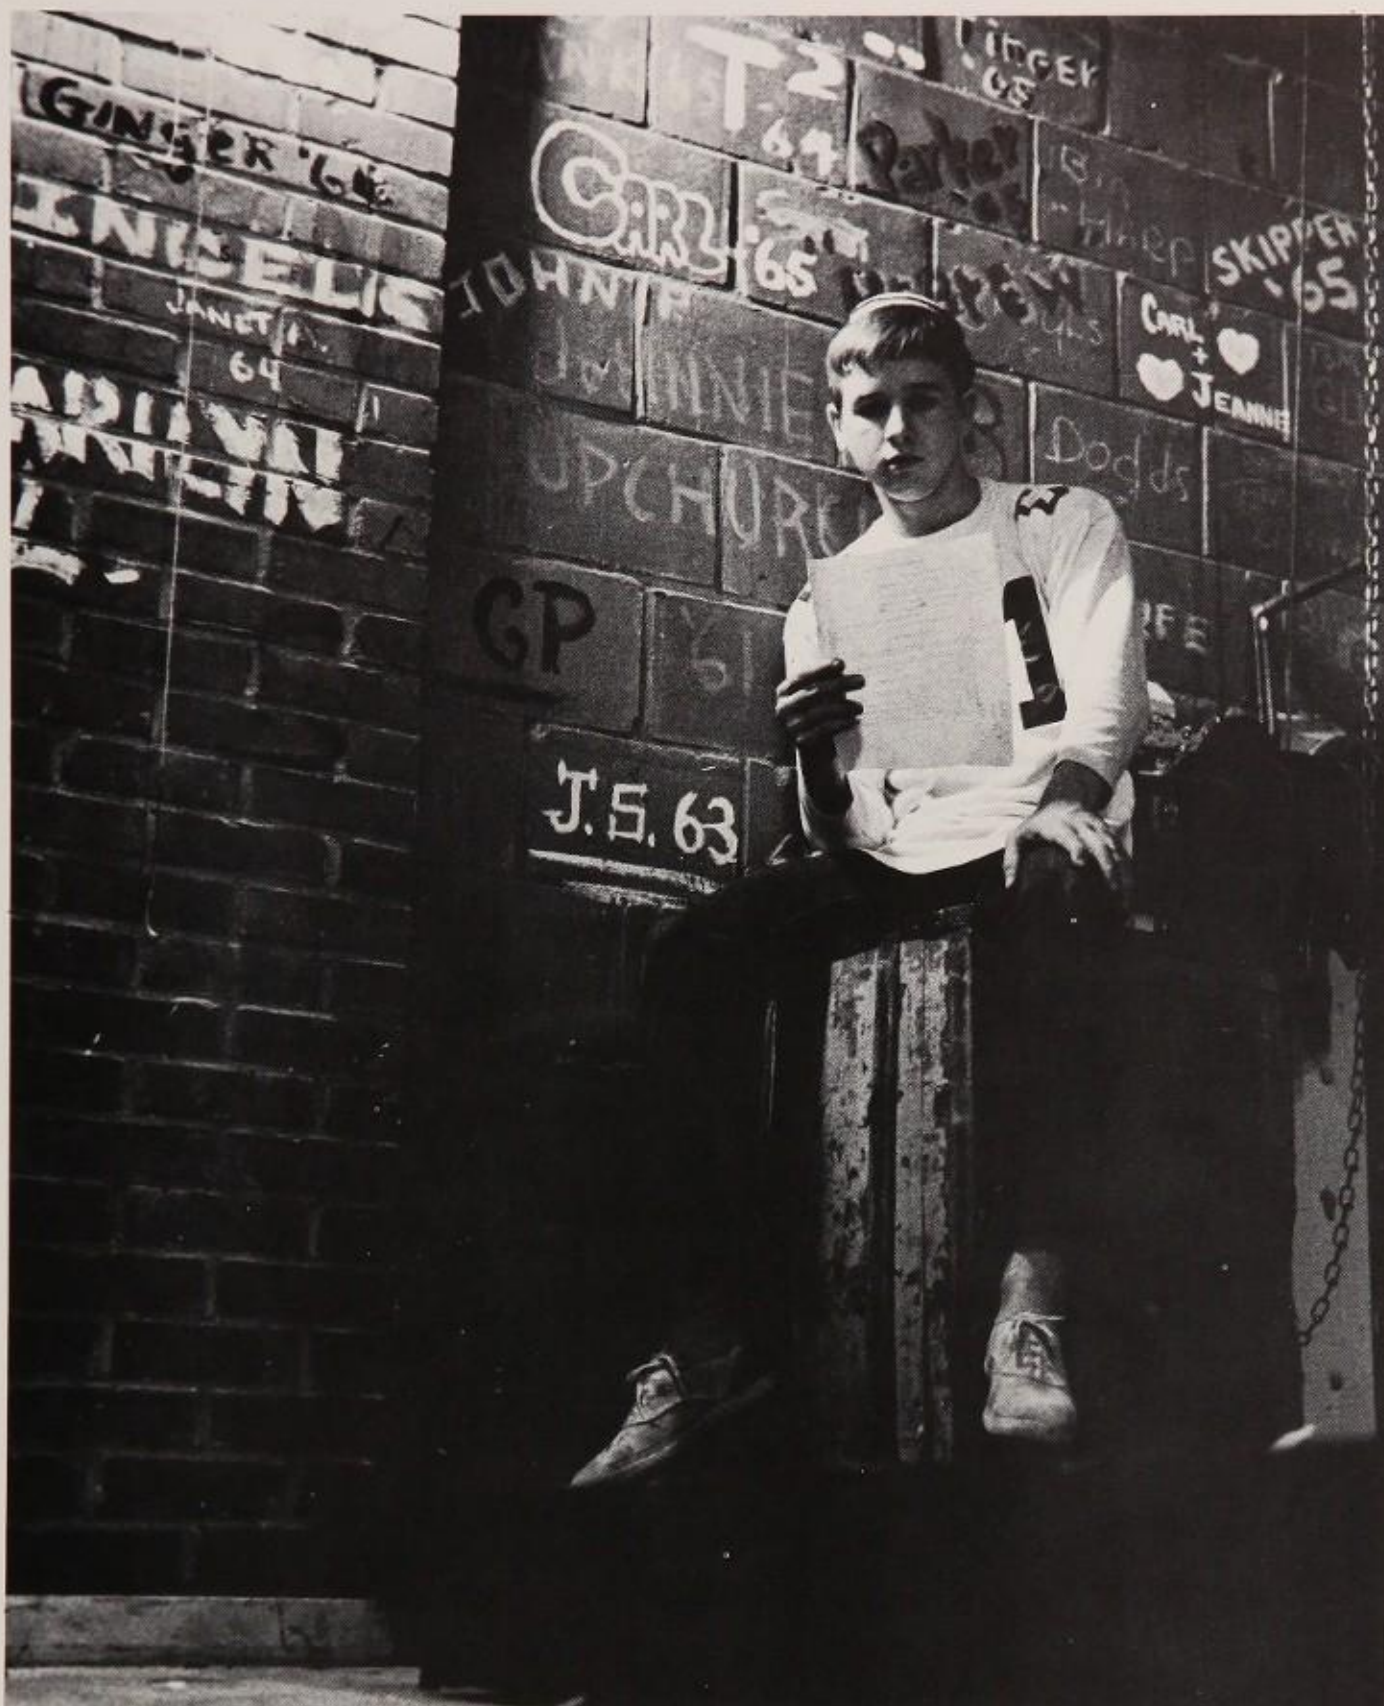

"I don't care what your mother told you, Tucker, point!"

"How about a little four page ad," pleads Pat Twente.

"If only they realized true talent," sighs Miss Gilfoy.

Outcast and unappreciated, actor John Bullock resolves that "someday they'll be sorry."

Theater Guild Clubs

Present 'The Sound Of Music'

Participation of group skits and literary criticism, Acting and Directing Club members applied their knowledge of drama. Promoting Murrah productions by posters and radio advertisements, the Publicity Club also sold tickets. Aiding stage crews between scenes, the Properties Club proved vital to the production. Lighting and stagecraft crews solved visual and technical problems.

Lighting expert Phil Carson awaits his cue.

"Ric, you know we should be doing the waltz, not the Freddie," remonstrates Kanet Welch during the ball scene in The Sound of Music.

"It would have been much easier if you had done it right the first time," reprimands Mr. McGee as he helps Marie Bryant and Larry McKay paint sets.

Talented Students

Transform Pupils Into Characters, Costume Actors, Outfit Stage

With "tricks of the trade," make-up artists converted cast members into dramatic characters. Demonstrations by members of the Little Theater revealed effective techniques.

Supplying appropriate costumes for the school productions was the task of the Costume Club. This year members presented a demonstration on costumes for the Thespian Workshop. Adding finishing touches to a courtyard scene was only the final stage in the work of the Scenic Design Club. During previous months, members designed sets, handbills, and program covers. Long week-end and after-school hours were devoted to creating the artistic backdrops.

Also applying its talent was the Choreography Club. Developing natural rhythm and grace, dancers proved an essential part of the productions.

Chief make-up artist Lynn Cornell converts popular major-ette Sara Jones into the wicked villainess of "Dirty Work at the Crossroads."

"Now where did this thing come from?" wonders Medico-Ed member Bill Harper.

"I wonder if Tom Jeff really thinks that his electric chair will work," muses Donald Nelson as he watches Tom Jeff Anderson apply some of the finishing touches to the intricate experiment.

"I'll just turn this little knob and we'll see what happens," says Mr. McNinch to Mark Dortch, watching intently.

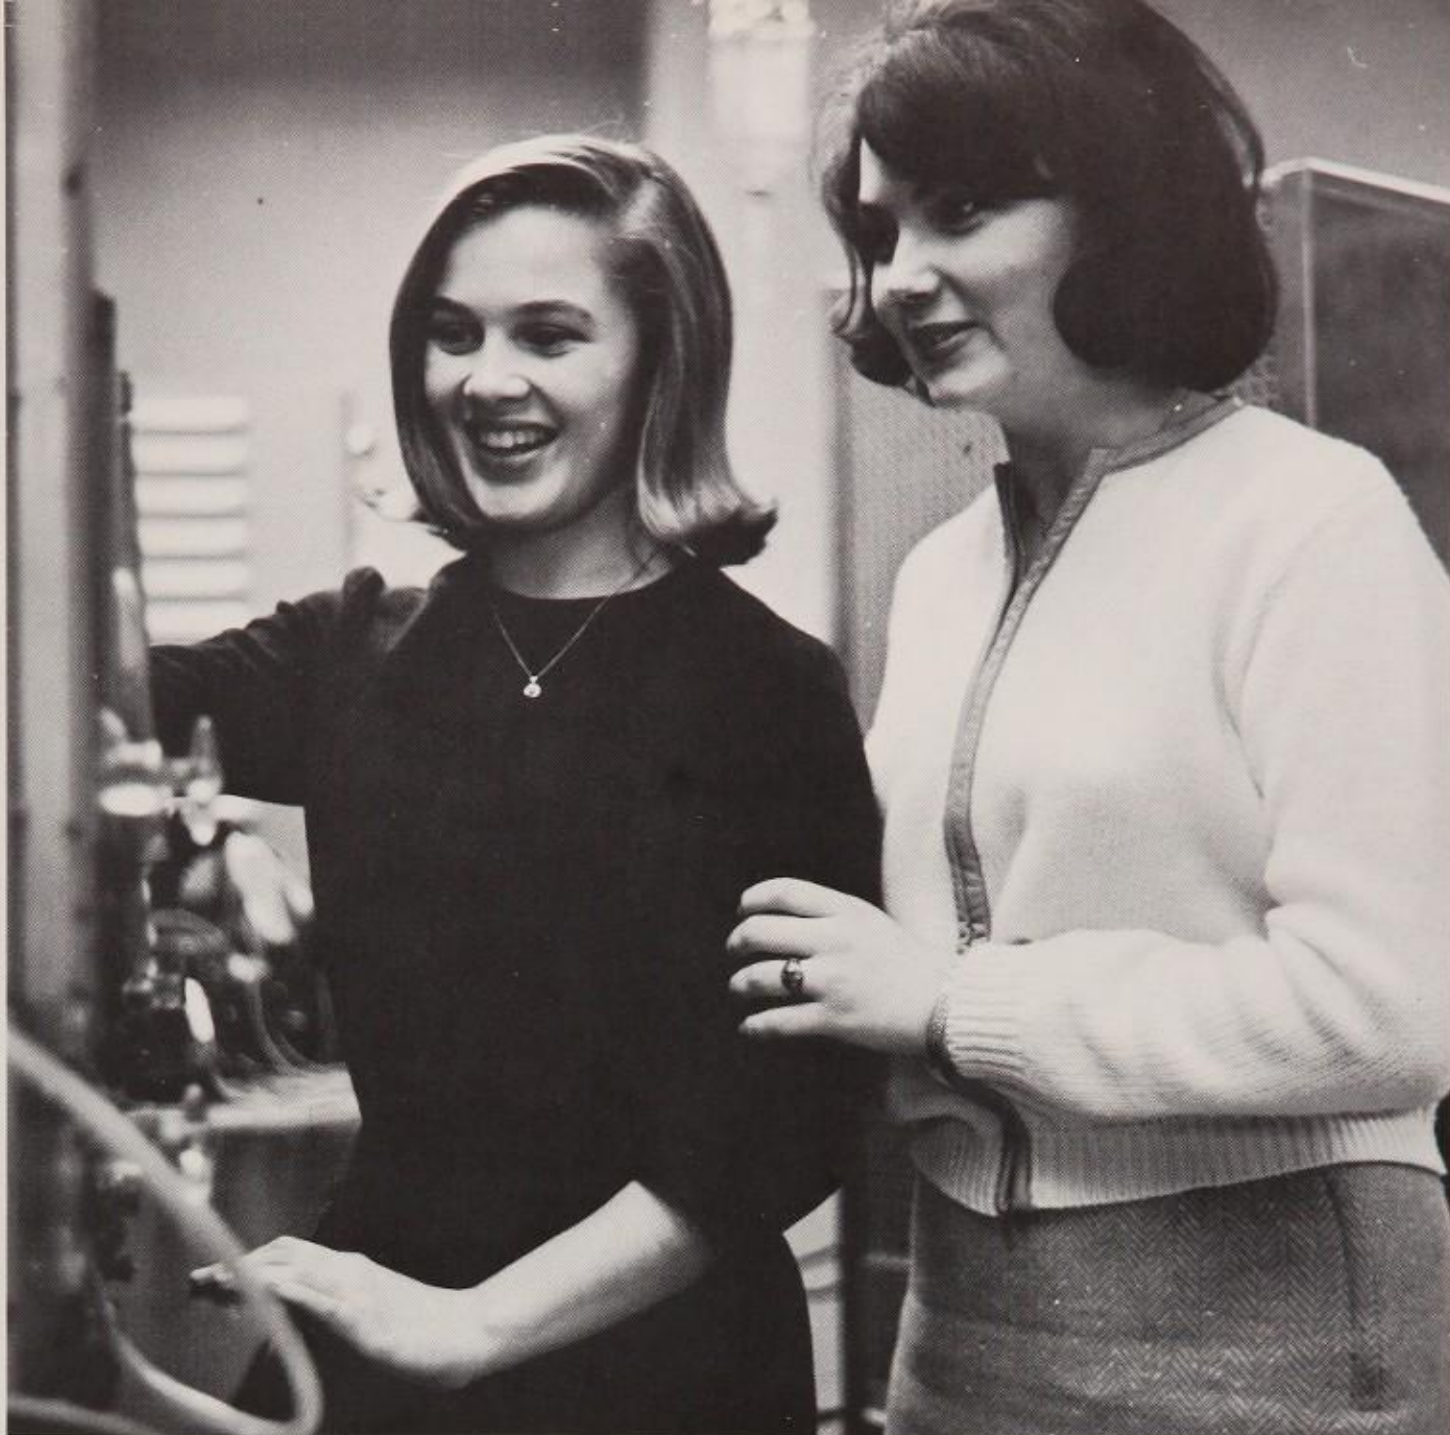

Medico-Eds

Visit Veteran's Hospital

Diversified programs acquainted Medico-Ed members with various fields of medicine. Doctors, nurses, and medical technicians informed students of vocational opportunities. Numerous films and field trips presented an inside view of the medical profession.

Interested students discovered ample opportunities for observing professional medical practices during frequent informative tours of the Veterans' Administration Center.

"Look, Tita, it's already turning blue and shooting sparks," excitedly coos Nat Wise, examining a mysterious hospital machine.

Looking down from the control tower, Jets Club member John Underwood and an airport official observe landing procedures.

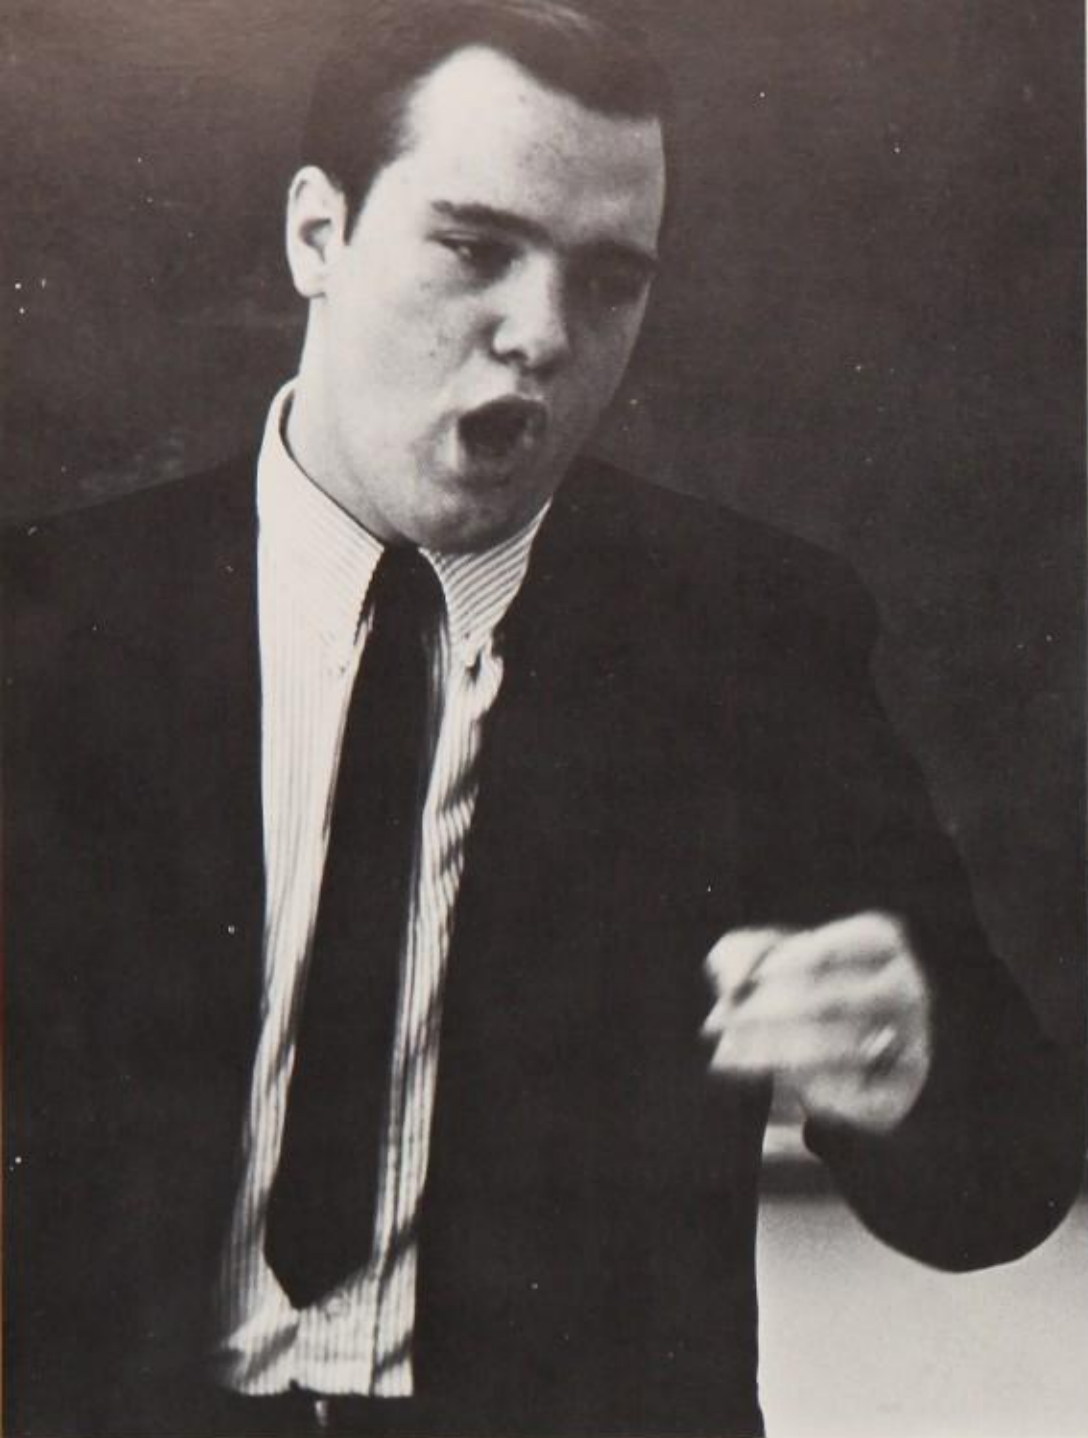

Jets Club

Tours Redstone Arsenal

Composed of a chemical and a physical club, the Junior Engineering Technical Society promoted interest in several scientific fields. Consisting of numerous and varied field trips, the club's activities also included an annual Big Brother's Day.

A tour of the Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville, Alabama climaxed the year's activities. Members observed stores of weapons and received information concerning the construction and applications of the Redstone missiles.

"Mike, if you would kindly let me finish my affirmative before you start, I could learn to appreciate you," warns Dolton McAlpin.

Debaters Bill Colmer, Dolton McAlpin, Louise Huffman and Mike Connelly proudly display a few of their many trophies.

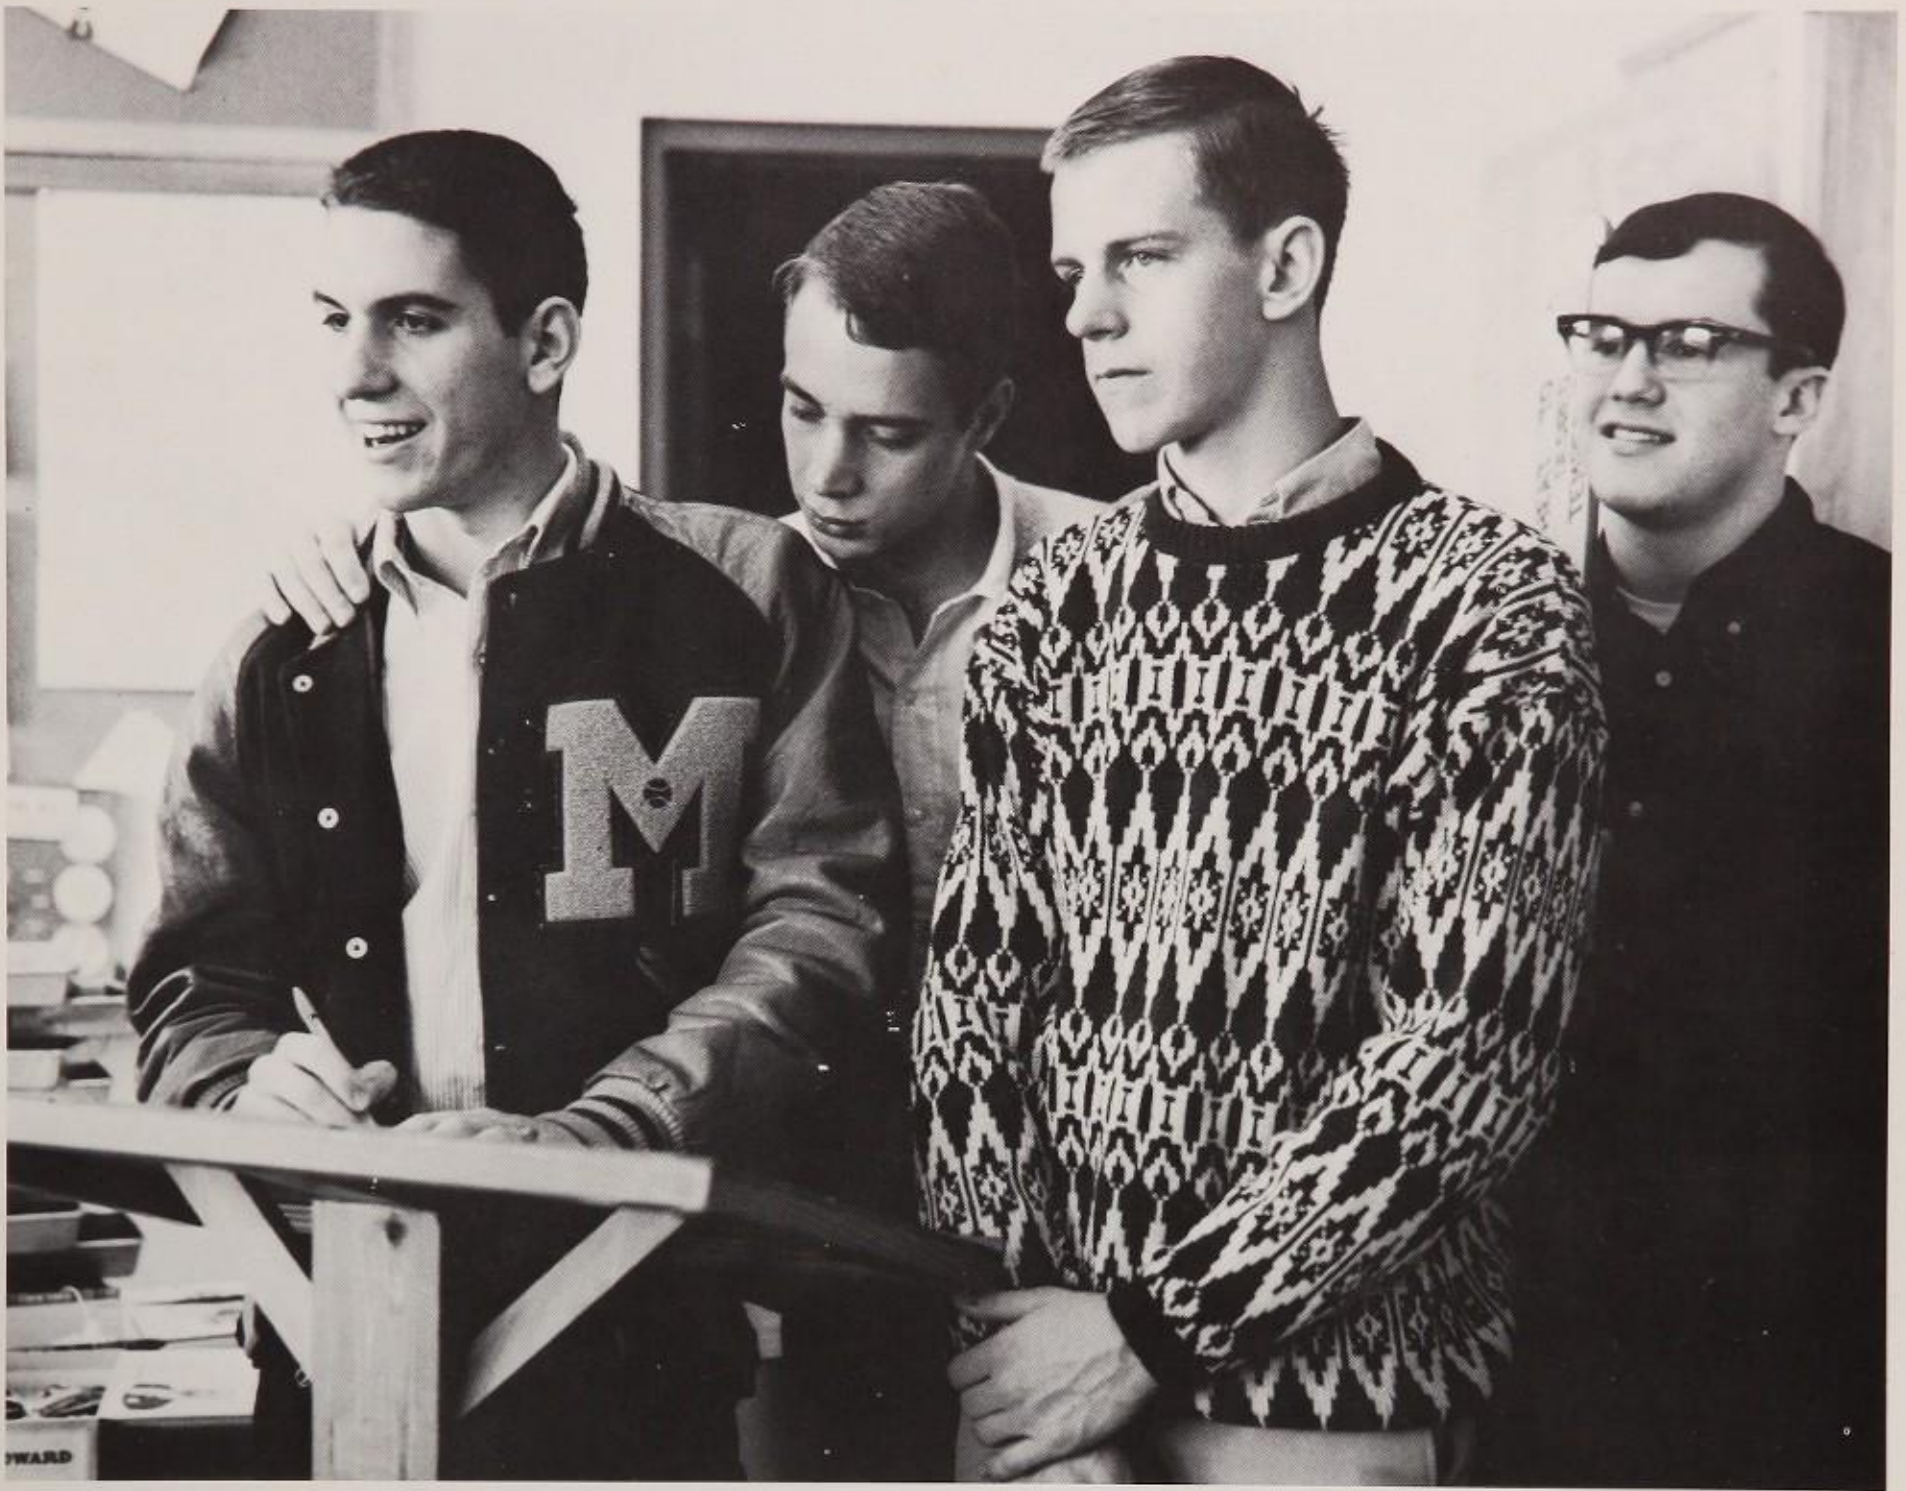

Debate Team

Captures State Tourneys

Developing interest in current affairs, the Debate Club furnished members opportunities for public speaking. Proving its vocal dexterity, the debate team captured top honors in district tournaments and the Thunderbird, Hattiesburg, and Meridian Invitationals. Club members learned techniques of negative and affirmative debating, methods of voice projection, and benefits of strategic thinking. Competing individually, members won high awards, including State Oratorical Contest.

"What do you mean, you don't know what this is?" demands Bill Colmer. "Obviously, it is a spider doing push-ups on a mirror."

"We're having snails for the monthly breakfast," jokes Hi-Y member Mark Loflin. "Straight from Mr. Lyon's aquarium" adds Tommy Horner. Tony Hewitt and Bobby Croswell are not amused.

Hi-Y Club

Visits Orphans At Christmas

Stressing community services, the Hi-Y club sponsored parties for the Baptist and Methodist Orphanages. Monthly breakfasts and outstanding speakers highlighted the club's activities, which included selling concessions during school productions. Demonstrating its leadership, the club successfully campaigned to elect one of its members Speaker of the House for the next Hi-Y legislature, to be held in December at the New Capitol.

During a Hi-Y Club meeting, President William Richardson presents Mary Welch with a certificate of honorary membership.

Y-Teen member Cheri Quinn makes one of many potato chip sales which provide the club with project funds.

Test Aptitude And Ability Of Proficient Students

Inspired by outstanding religious leaders, Y-Teens strove to develop Christian character. Adopting a child for Christmas and aiding hospitals and nursing homes were only a few of their services. Profits from the potato chip sale sent a delegate to the Mid-South Conference.

Combining concentration and strategic thinking, members of the chess club matched wits in weekly tournaments. Through original compositions, members of the Creative Writing Club developed imaginative styles. Club discussions presented new writing techniques.

Attending state conventions and touring historical centers furnished Junior Historical Society members with a knowledge of state history and government. Applying this knowledge, members composed essays.

Absorbed in an article on Choctaw scalping, Crawford Rhaley prepares a JHS paper.

Y-Teen members Jill Buckingham, Guy Lockhart, and Dianne Stage, plan the annual potato chip sale.

Surrounded by early spring, Creative Writing Club members John Powers and Ann Hord admire Eliot's poetry.

"Close your mouth, Carol Ann," teases Lucy, "even Tucker can make mistakes sometimes."

Keeping their eyes on the music, Band Club members Alan Wilson and Foster Collins display their musical skills during a Thursday club meeting.

"No, there's no tiger here," proclaims Bill Lane.

"And now, Cleopatra," anticipates Kendall Jones.

Language Club members Enid Elson, Ray Sherrard, and Donna Edwards study foreign customs.

Hobby Clubs

Promote Varied Interests

Through original composition and student conducting, Band Club members furthered their understanding of music. Music Masters found opportunities for musical expression in club talent shows. Films and tapes familiarized Foreign Language Club members with foreign customs and languages of other lands.

Studying lighting effects and pictorial arrangement, Photography Club members learned photographic techniques. Members of the Audio-Visual Club learned operation of projectors while Chaparrals studied the operations of automobiles.

"I told you that you shouldn't have taken it apart, George," reprimands Chuck Quarterman as Larry Hart solemnly looks on.

"Aw, coach, we were just initiating Tripp," joke M-Club members Steve Spaulding, Bob Smira, and Larry White.

David Mosal, Hunting and Fishing Club member, pops his fly as he gets an early start on the fish.

"You should have eaten your Wheaties today," quips Donnie Strange as he watches Bill Howard make a futile attempt to sink a putt.

Sportsmen

Pursue Outdoor Life

Numerous field trips furnished active members of the Hunting and Fishing Club opportunities for individual and group participation. Members of the Golf Club observed a rigid schedule of practice. Weekly matches were held in preparation for the city competition.

Assembling feathers, yarn, wire, paint, and hooks, members of the Fly-Tying Club designed colorful lures. Composed of lettermen from all major sports, the M-Club heard noted sportscasters and athletic directors discuss all aspects of sports.

"Let's take it down to homemaking and let the girls do it," suggests Fly-Tyer Holly Black, as Bob Bullock observes Dave Cameron.

Mustang spirit: pride in the school, devotion to training, and will to win... long, arduous hours on the sun-drenched, stone-hard field... practice, practice, and more practice... the blocked punt against Vicksburg, the crucial fourth down field goal at Yazoo City, and the Coker-to-Deaton touchdown pass against Greenville with three seconds remaining on the clock — sending the loyal Murrah fans into frenzied ecstasy... the injury-plagued basketball players fighting through the Big Eight schedule... the victorious spring sports—the perfect track season with the trip to the Louisiana meet, the baseball team and the District Six Championship along with the South Mississippi battle, the City Crown for the golf team, and the unfaltering tennis players.

Fighting Ponies

Whip Natchez, Vicksburg In Tight Defensive Battles

Murrah's spirited Mustangs opened the 1964 season with a 7-0 victory over Natchez. Taking the opening kickoff, the Ponies marched down-field to score on a sweep by Tim Coker.

Cliff Chunn and Bill Jones gained tremendous rushing yardage during the game, but several scoring threats were wiped out by penalties. The hard-hitting Mustang defense played a key role, stopping Rebel drives inside the ten.

"Block that punt!" screamed the crowd, and the Mustangs did, with Jimmy Vest crashing through the Vicksburg line and smothering the attempted kick. Vest recovered the pigskin and raced for the winning touchdown.

With less than three minutes remaining in the game, the Ponies had knotted the score at 7-7 on Tim Coker's touchdown and Tom Jeff Anderson's extra point kick. Vicksburg tried to run out the clock, but was forced to try the fateful punt. Vest's score, which came in the last minute of play, gave Murrah a 13-7 win.

Anderson's Toe

Gives Mustangs Win Over Yazoo, Tie With Greenville

Early scores by Cliff Chunn and Tim Coker gave the Mustangs a 13-point lead over Yazoo City, but the Indians struck for 14 points in the fourth quarter to take the lead.

With less than one minute remaining Yazoo City tried to punt; Murrah's Bill Nelson blocked the attempt and Bill Jones recovered on the ten yard line. Coker passed to Jimmy Carr at the two, but a loss and penalty drove the Ponies back to the twelve.

Only seven seconds remained in the contest as T. J. Anderson's field goal split the uprights to give Murrah a 16-14 victory.

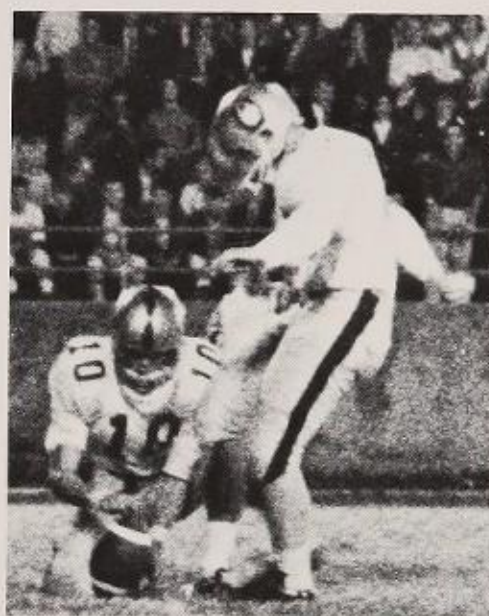

Murrah came through with a third straight story-book finish to tie Greenville. After falling behind by seven points, the Ponies evened the contest on a 26-yard Coker-to-Carr pass with five seconds left in the first half.

Greenville grabbed a 14-7 lead in the third period and stopped two deep Murrah drives with pass interceptions. With only seconds left a Hornet punt was deflected by Jimmy Vest, and the Mustangs began a race against time.

Coker completed a short pass to Carr, threw incomplete to stop the clock, and then connected with end Penny Deaton in the end zone. Three seconds showed on the clock when Anderson's placement gave the Ponies a thrilling 14-14 tie.

Unleash Powerful Offense To Rock Greenwood 53-0

Tim Coker threw three touchdowns passes, two to Bill Jones and one to Tommy Horner, to lead Murrah to a 53-0 win over Greenwood.

Bo Bowen ran for two scores; Cliff Chunn, Penny Deaton, and Sammy McCall each added a touchdown; and Tom Jeff Anderson booted five extra points to complete the scoring.

Penny Deaton makes a spectacular catch of a Coker pass.

Central Falls

To Powerful Mustangs, Murrah Shuts Out Tupelo

Intracity rival Central gave the Mustangs a scare before falling 21-6 on Homecoming. Central kicked off, held the Mustang offense, and forced a punt, which a Tiger returned all the way for a touchdown.

The Ponies struck back, Coker's scoring run giving the Mustangs a 7-6 lead. In the second quarter, Murrah fullback Bo Bowen fought off droves of tacklers and crashed for a TD. A 40-yard Coker pass to Jimmy Carr gained the final tally for the Mustangs.

Tupelo's Golden Wave were shut out 16-0 after Tim Coker and Cliff Chunn crashed for touchdowns. Jimmy Vest set up the first tally by blocking a punt. Tom Jeff Anderson added an extra point and field goal. Justin Alfred, Tommy Dorsey, and Charles O'Mara anchored the solid Mustang defense.

Cliff Chunn, aided by the aggressive Pony line, breaks in the open against the Corinth Indians. The Newell

Field scoreboard tells the story; the Mustangs have overwhelmed a tough team by 31 points.

Ponies Ramble

Corinth Loses 31-0, Meridian Wildcats Fall

Murrah's offense moves into action against Central, with Coker passing to Chunn. The Ponies scored 231 points to only 52 for the combined opposition throughout the year.

Playing their finest game of the season, the Mustangs crushed Corinth by a surprising 31-0 margin. Tim Coker raced 75 and 45 yards for scores, Cliff Chunn tallied on a 73 yard sprint, and Bo Bowen crashed for another touchdown.

Anderson kicked a 26-yard field goal and four extra points to complete the revenge victory over the Warriors, who killed the 1963 Ponies' chances for a North Big Eight title.

Murrah scored three quick touchdowns and coasted to a 19-6 victory over the Meridian Wildcats. Tim Coker accounted for two tallies, on a long pass to Bill Jones and a 55 yard run. Bo Bowen added another tally after Cliff Chunn picked off a Wildcat pass and returned it 60 yards to the two yard line.

Rival Provine

Falls to Mustangs, Ponies Take City Trophy

Completing regular season action, the Ponies defeated rival Provine 14-0. After a scoreless first half, Bill Nelson started a Mustang drive by blocking a Ram punt. Murrah recovered on the five and Tim Coker carried for the score.

In the fourth quarter, Nelson picked off a Provine pass at midfield; the Ponies marched downfield and Coker tallied on a short plunge.

Murrah's defense, anchored by Justin Alfred, Tommy Dorsey, Jimmy Vest, Hap Farber, and Nelson, held the dangerous Rams in check the entire game. It was the fourth straight Mustang victory over crosstown Provine.

Coker heads down the sidelines after eluding Provine tacklers.

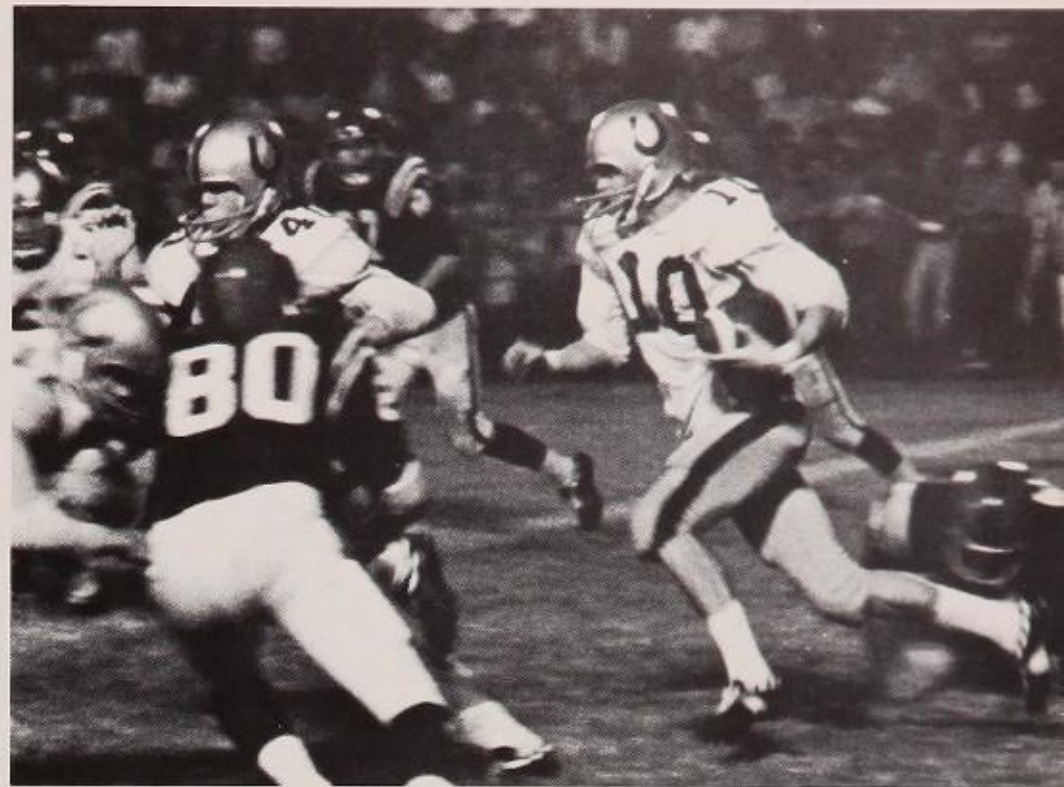

Ponies Travel

To Shrimp Bowl, Whip Hattiesburg Tigers

Although the 9-0-1 record for the regular season was the best in Murrah history, the Mustangs finished second to Columbus in the North Big Eight race. The Ponies accepted an invitation to play Hattiesburg in the Shrimp Bowl, a post-season classic in Biloxi.

A pair of scores by Cliff Chunn in the first period were set up by the alert Mustang defense, which recovered four fumbles and intercepted three passes during the game.

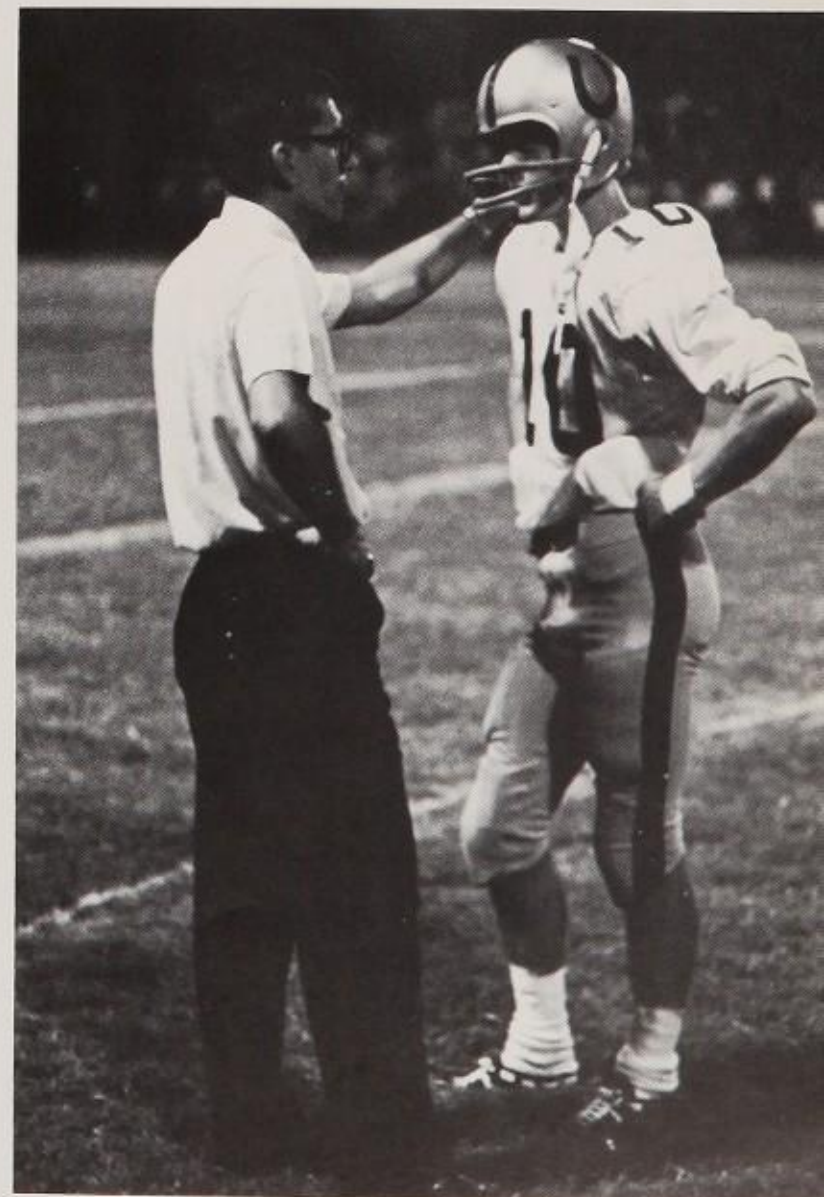

In the second period, a pass from Coker to Deaton gave the Ponies a third touchdown; the final tally came late in the game on a short plunge by Bowen.

Pony Players

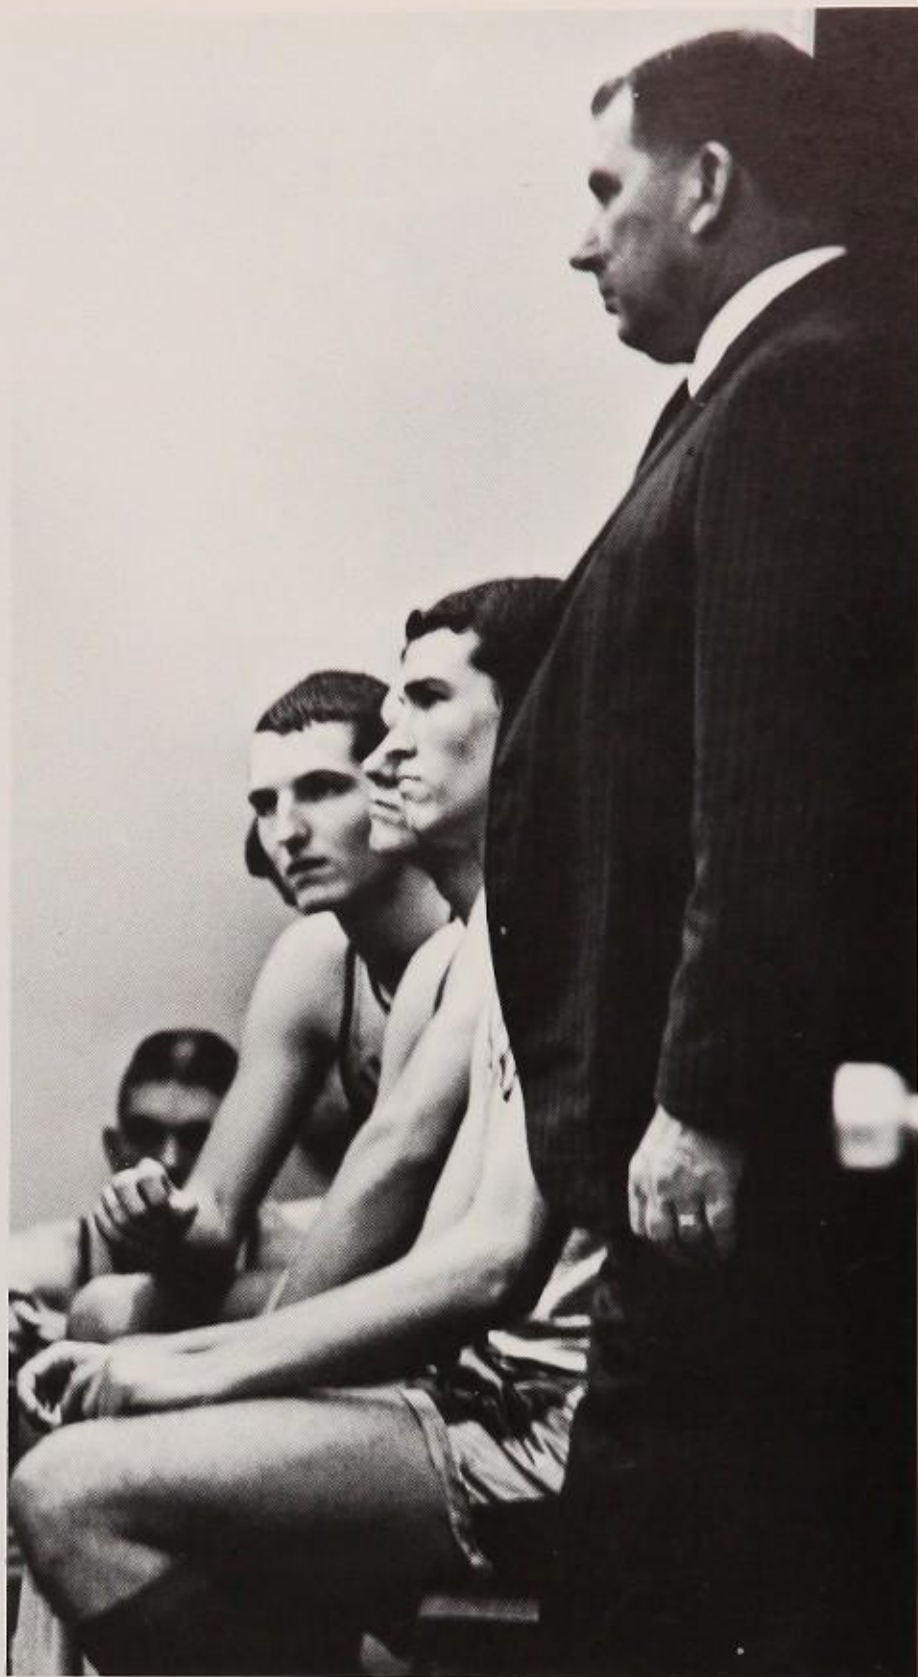

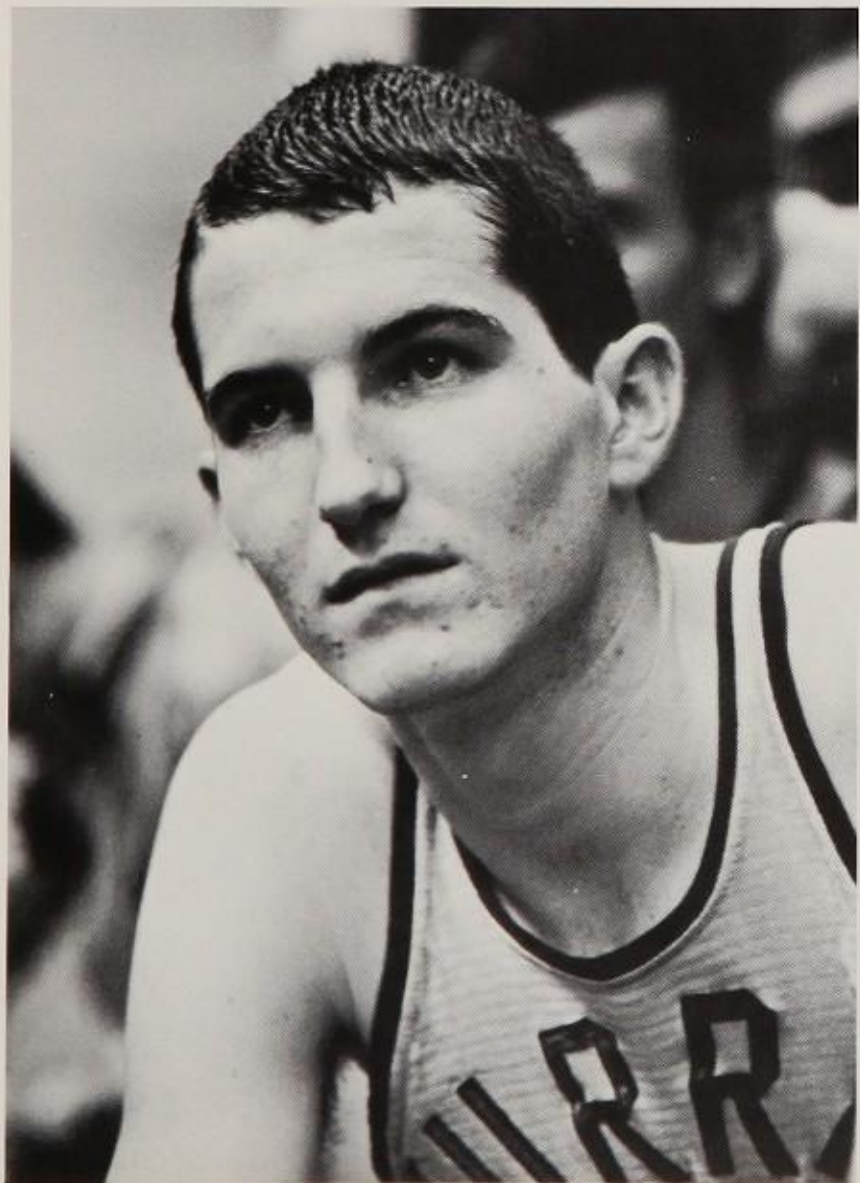

Shake Off Injuries, Fight Through Season

Murrah's injury-ridden Ponies turned in a fair 7-14 record in 1964-65. Seven of the losses were to Central and Forest Hill, two perennially tough teams who both reached the State AA tourney.

After losses to Forest Hill and Provine, the Mustangs bounced back to defeat Vicksburg and capture fourth place in the Murrah Invitational. Yazoo City fell for the Ponies' second victory, but Central tripped Murrah in a close contest.

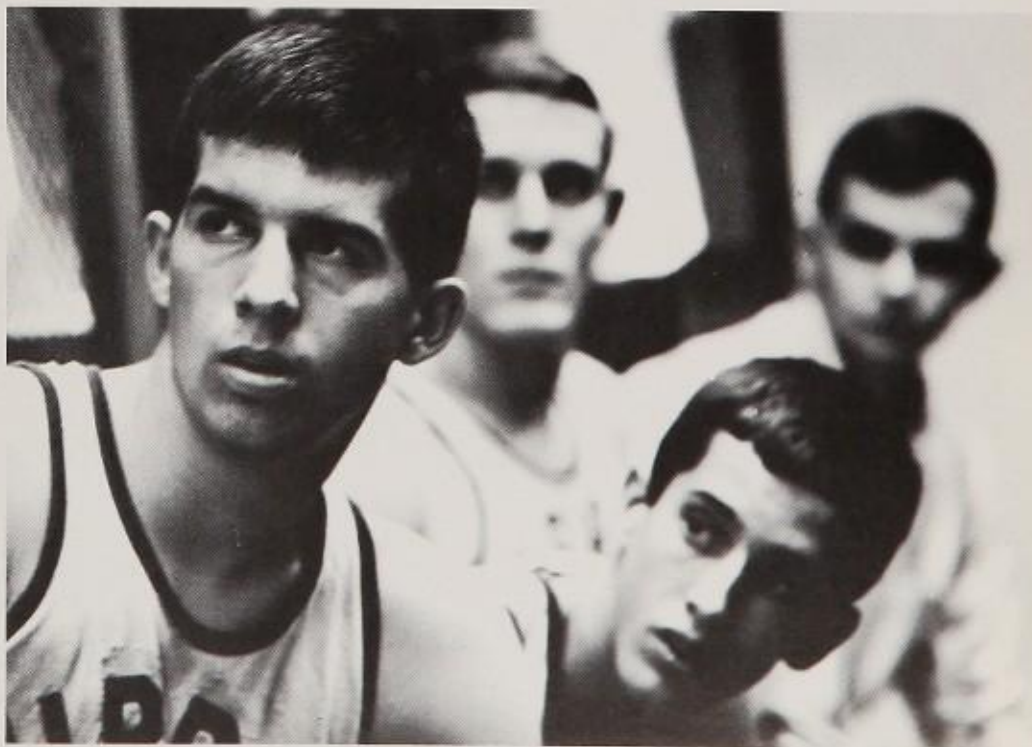

In the Rebel Classic, Florence squeaked by the Mustangs 50-48; Brookhaven fell, becoming the third Murrah victim. The Ponies edged a tough Raymond team to take fourth place in the Hinds County Tournament. Coker Palmer poured in 30 points, top single-game total for the year.

In the stretch the Mustangs started clicking, and Vicksburg, Brookhaven, and Yazoo City lost to the roundballers. Then disaster struck at the North Big Eight Tourney, as Columbus played a fantastic game to defeat the Mustangs. Brad Farber, who paced the city with a 16.9 scoring average, injured a leg and was lost for the remainder of the season.

Despite crippling injuries and sicknesses, the Ponies fought through the end of the schedule. The season came to an end in the District Six Tourney, as Clinton dropped the Mustangs 55-44.

Murrah's swift trackmen, perennial cinder powers in Mississippi, raced to their finest season in 1965. The Mustangs, taking honors in both state and regional competition for the first time, went undefeated in nine meets.

The Ponies won first place in the Jackson Daily News Relays, District Six, South Mississippi, State, City, and Big Eight, in addition to dual victories over Utica and Meridian.

In the State meet, the Mustangs amassed 39 points, the highest total ever earned by any team. The Murrah relay teams won all three races, Ronnie Tomlin won the 880 run, and Jimmy Carr finished first in the broad jump.

Literally running away from the opposition, the Ponies scored an unbelievable 67 points in the Big Eight Conference meet. The Mustangs placed first in the 440 and mile relays; Ronnie Tomlin won the 880, Jimmy Carr the broad jump, and Brian Smith the high jump. In addition to running on the winning relay teams, Brad Farber triumphed in the 100 and 440. It was the Ponies' seventh victory in nine years.

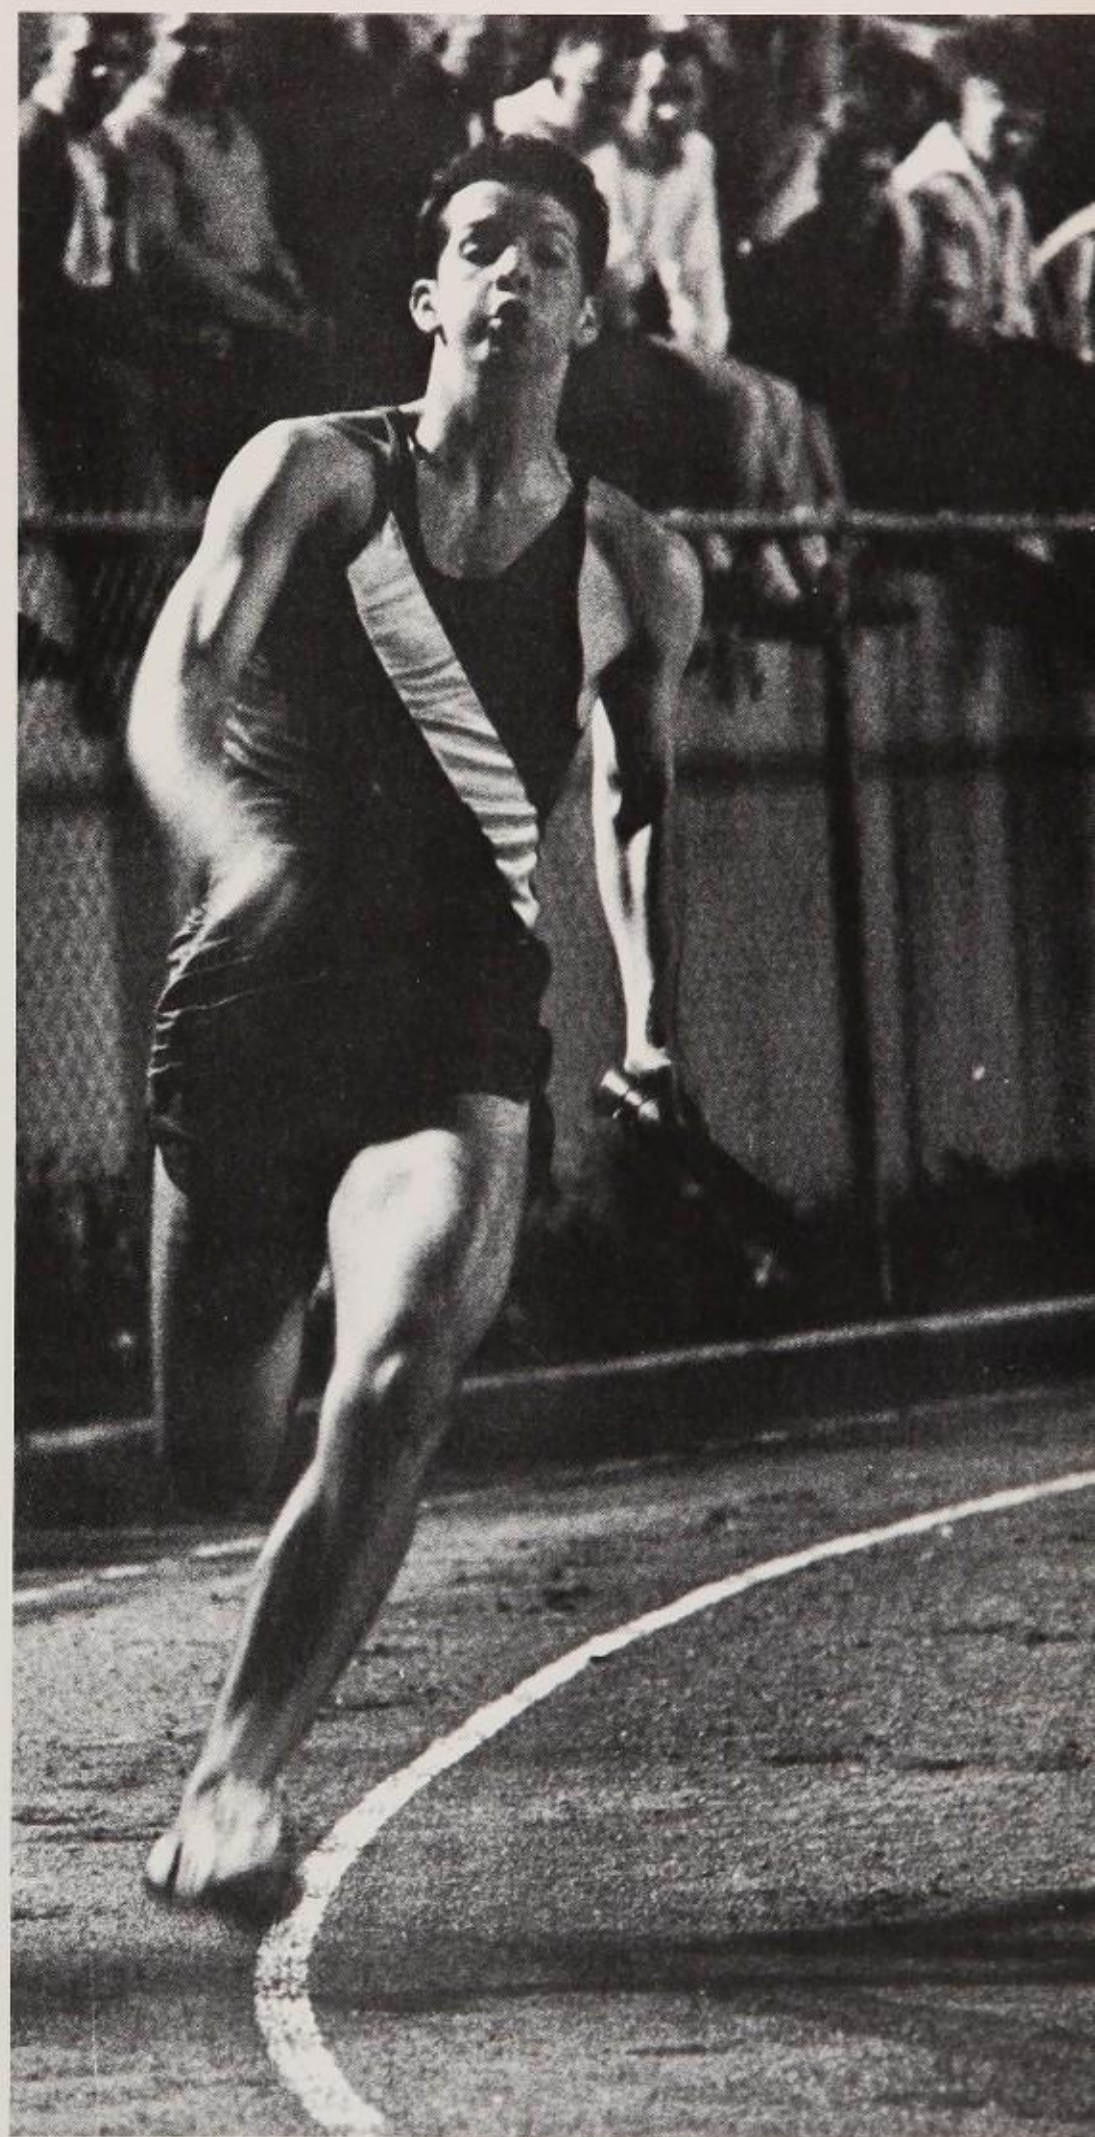

Sam McCall rounds the curve on the first leg of the 880-yard relay in the JDN Relays.

Jimmy Carr strains for every inch in the broad jump. Hampered by a foot injury, Carr still won the State for the second year.

Thinclads Romp

Break Many Meet Records, Take Two Events In Preptacular

Facing the top teams from other Southern states, the Mustangs journeyed to the Preptacular in Alexandria, Louisiana, and placed in the five events in which they were invited.

Brad Farber won the 440 in a dazzling 48.5 seconds, while Ronnie Tomlin placed third in the 880. The Pony relay teams took third in the 440, second in the 880, and won the mile with a fantastic 3:19.7 clocking.

Jimmy Vest tops the pole vault bar to place second in the JDN.

Ronnie Tomlin, stellar Mustang half-miler, takes the lead in the Jackson Daily News Relays sprint medley.

Pony Diamondmen

Win District Six, City Crowns

Finish Second In South Mississippi

Posting a fine 15-5 record, the 1965 Pony baseballers fought to one of the best seasons in Murrah diamond history. The Mustangs advanced through district and regional competition to the South Mississippi finals, where they lost to state champion Biloxi.

Led by pitcher Coker Palmer, the Ponies won nine games before being sidetracked by Vicksburg. The Mustangs bounced back to win the District Six crown and defeated Meridian in the first round regional contest.

After downing Biloxi in the first game of the best-of-three series, the Mustangs were edged twice and eliminated from the tourney. Murrah, coached by Kermit Davis and Buddy Crosby, posted a 6-1 intracity record to capture the city championship.

Coker Palmer led the team in both hitting (.386) and runs batted in (20) with Jimmy Carr finishing second in both areas (.328 and 18 R.B.I.'s). Palmer paced the mound staff with a 9-4 record, while Lanny Bradford (4-0) and Bobby Croswell (2-0) posted perfect slates.

Golfers Win City

Place High In Tournaments, Take Sixth In Big 8 Conference

Winning Murrah's eighth straight citywide crown, the 1965 Mustang golf team placed high in all eight matches and tournaments.

In addition to the city victory, the Mustang golfers won a dual match with Vicksburg and a triangular meet with Natchez and Vicksburg. The linksmen also placed well in tournaments: second in Meridian, third in Hattiesburg, third in Jackson, fourth in Laurel, and sixth in the 23-team Big Eight Conference.

Netmen Win

Go Unbeaten In Seven Matches, Take Four District Six Titles

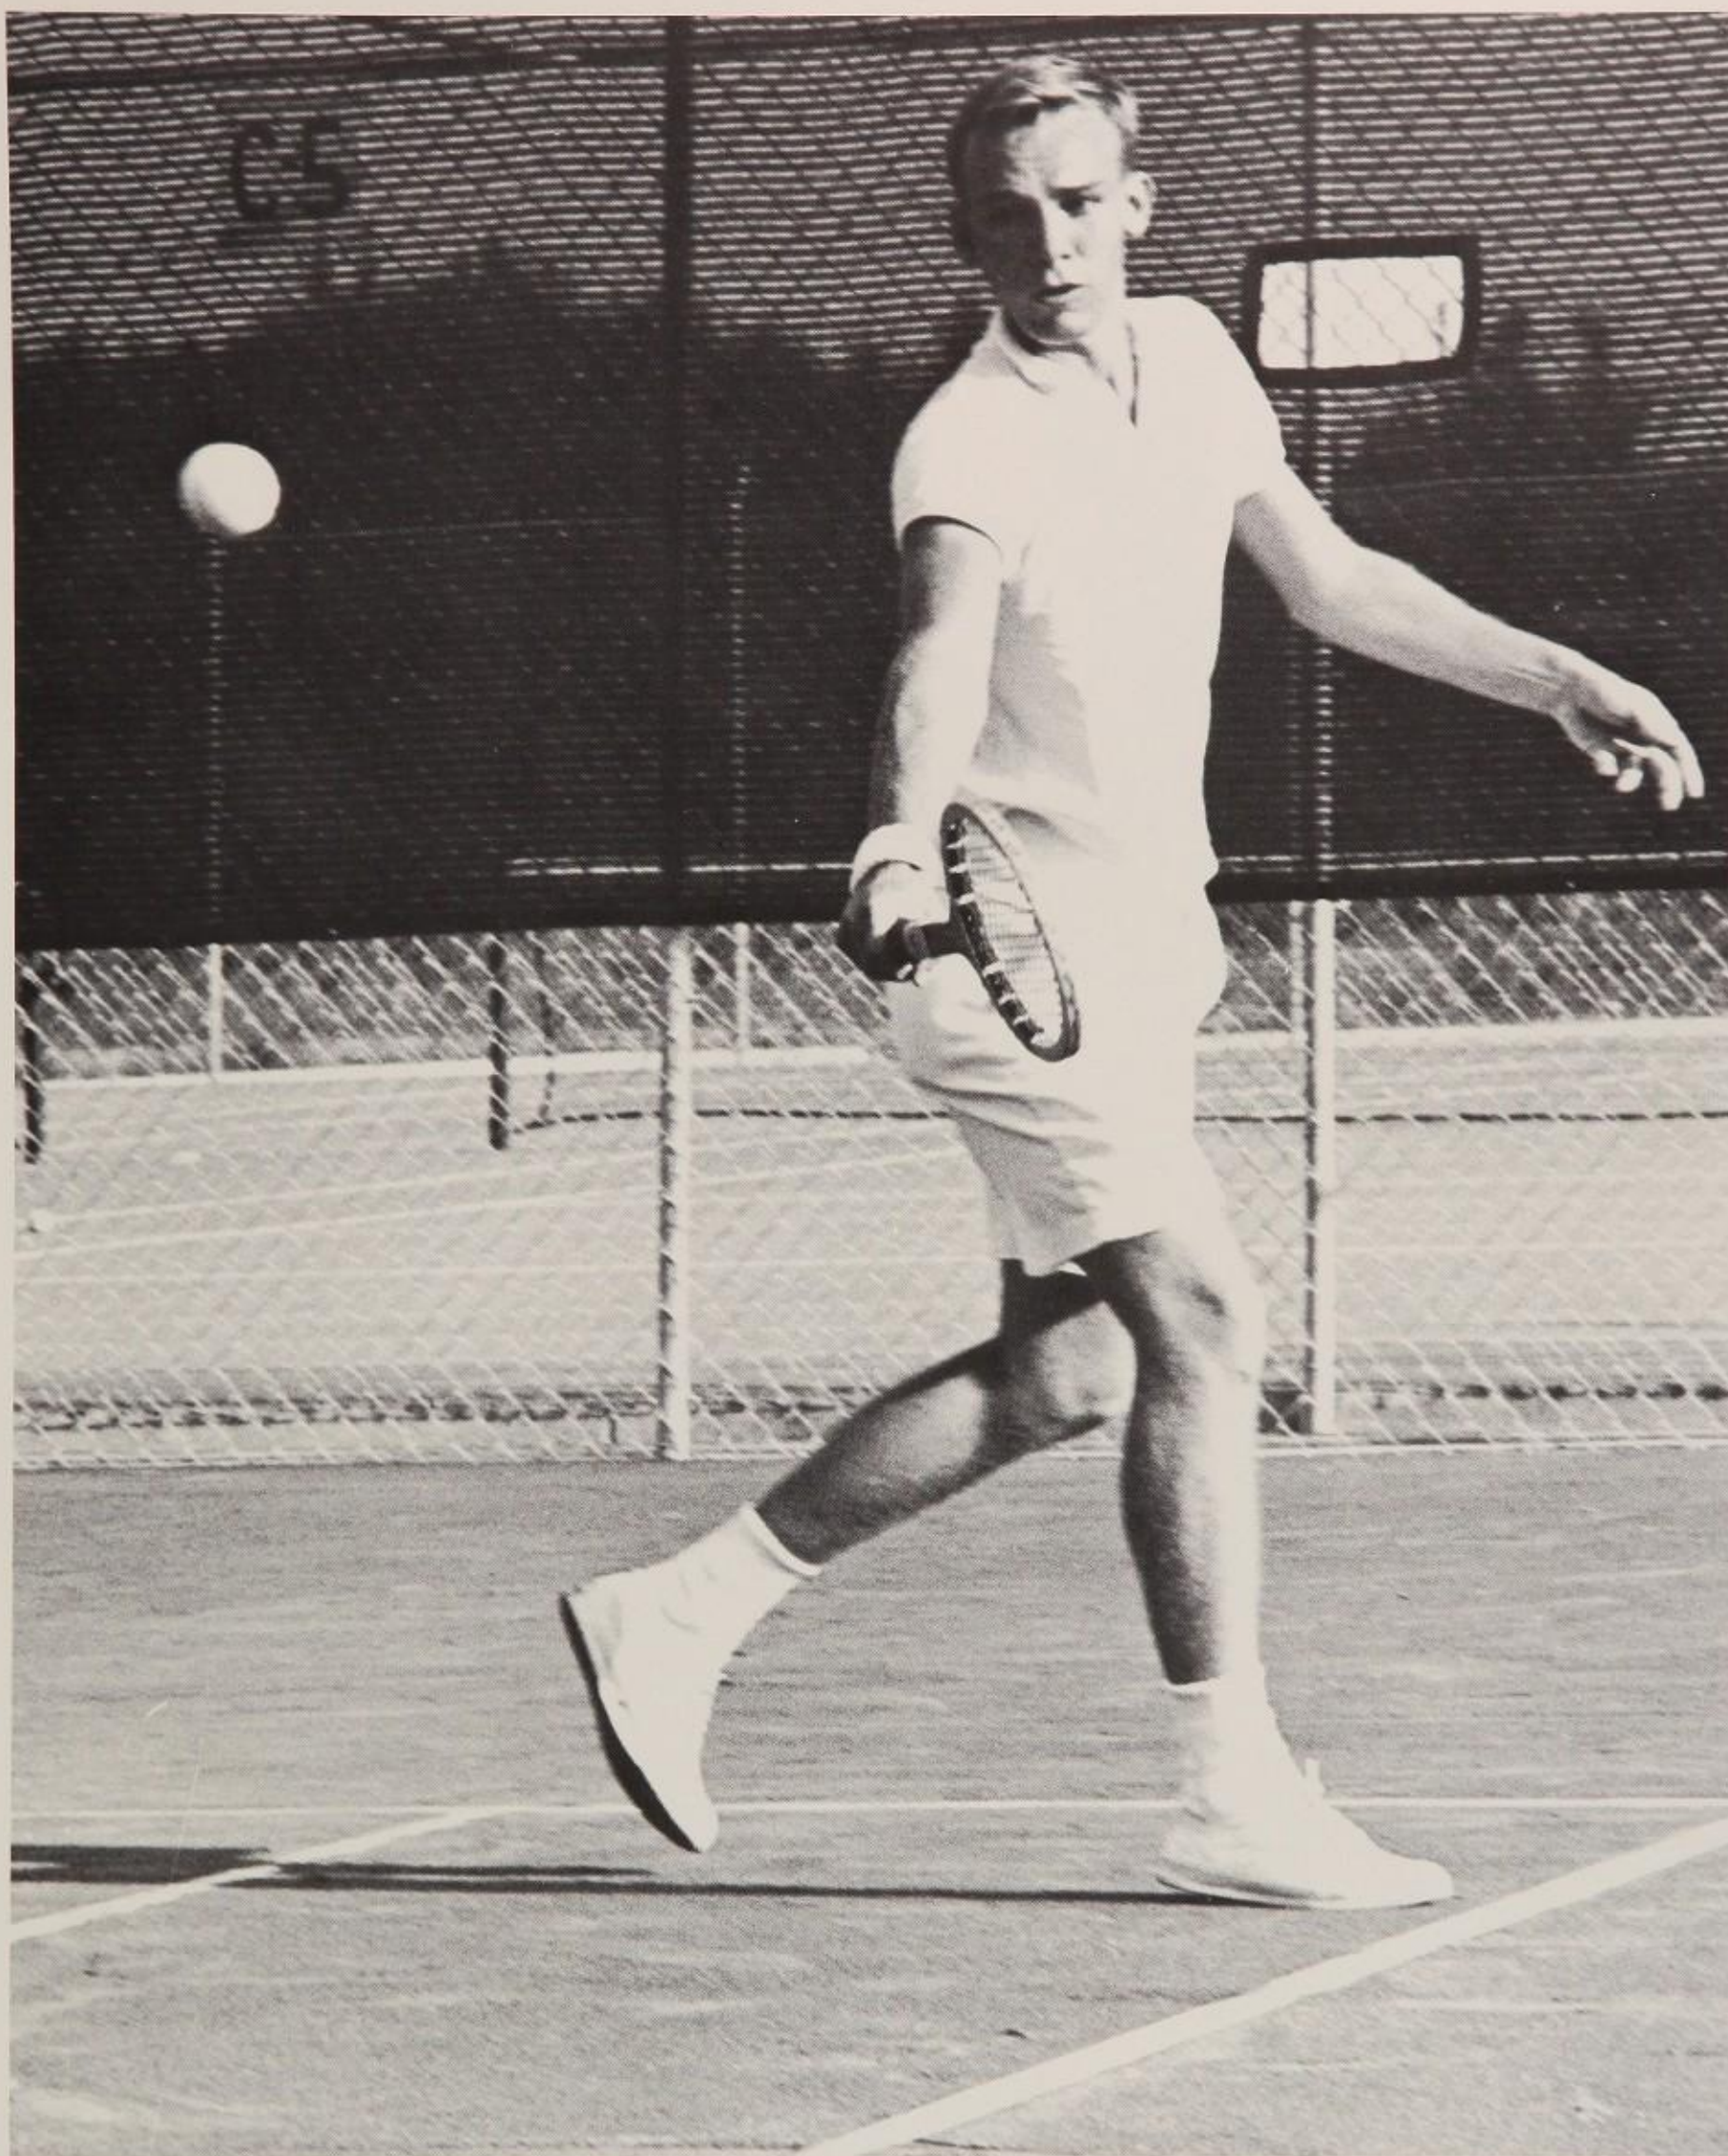

Under the experienced leadership of Coach M. B. Hunter, Murrah's tennis team enjoyed its best season in history. The netters finished undefeated and beat Laurel for the first time.

In District Six competition, boys' singles standout Erskine Wells defeated Provine's Bill Hester, the defending state champion. Anne Burwell and Camille Johnson won in girls' doubles, while Pat Boggan and Charles Witt took a victory in mixed doubles. Ben Graves and Quint Corban took second place in boys' doubles.

Classes '65

Senior class officers—Tim Coker, president; Bill Nelson, vice-president; Sally Fran Ross, co-reporter; and Cliff Chunn, secretary—stand in varied degrees of attention as they listen to Co-reporter Carolyn Bruno sing the fight song.

Capable Officers

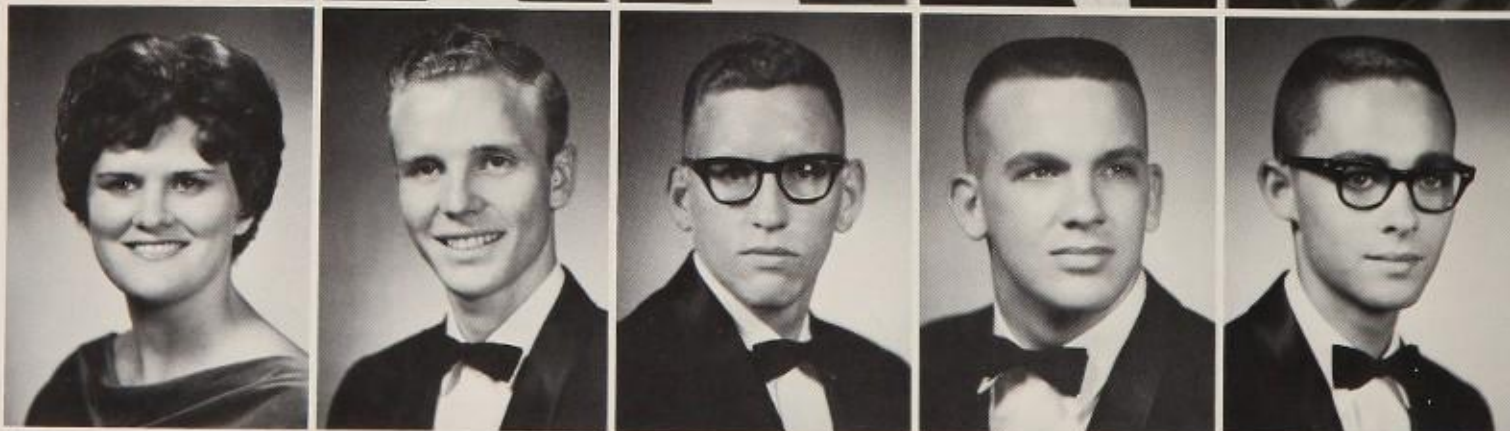

Take Helm of Senior Class

Seniors freely met the challenge handed them as the energetic leaders of Murrah. The first class to undergo Sophomore Orientation was the first class to participate, as seniors, in a class meeting with no faculty member present—one of the most meaningful events of the student's high school career. The Senior Class produced nineteen National Merit Semi-Finalists; and seniors, on and off the field, led the Mustang football team to an undefeated season. Feeling the pressures and pleasures of their class's position, seniors labored over tests required for college entrance and supported the athletic teams, prepared for exams and enjoyed senior parties. At the conclusion of a memorable year accented by the Prom and climaxed by graduation, seniors viewed the past with nostalgia, yet regarded the future with anticipation.

Junior Officers

Support Class Framework

Lowerclassmen no longer but not yet to the top, the "in-betweens" explored their new role in the student body of Murrah. The middleclassmen eagerly awaited the chance to display their ability in student activities and to advance to the school's highest position.

Studies, extra-curricular activities, and clubs afforded various creative opportunities for further growth and development. Selecting the class rings, taking college preparatory tests, hosting the Junior-Senior Prom and campaigning in the spring elections added the finishing touches to the Juniors' unforgettable year.

Welcomed by the third year of sophomore orientation, the newcomers poured into Murrah with anticipation, the fear of getting lost, and the thrill of more freedom. The tenth graders campaigned with enthusiasm in the election of the class officers. The lowerclassmen also enjoyed and enhanced many school activities such as homecoming, pep rallies, victory dances, a melodrama, the musical, spring elections, and various other school projects.

Twelve months ago this yearbook had its beginning—the beginning of an entirely new concept in annuals. We have attempted to make the Résumé imaginatively “alive” through realism in photography and romanticism in layout make-up. The work was hard; the hours, long...but we enjoyed every minute.

Now, here is your Résumé. Our only request is that you treasure this yearbook—a constant reminder of youth, excitement, and vigor...of days you wish you can relive...you cannot—but this yearbook can.

Bill Sims

We want to express our appreciation to those people who have made our work much easier...to Mrs. Dorothy Bermejo, who was our representative at the yearbook plant...to Mr. Julian Hendrick, who was our liason with the American Yearbook Company...to the photographers at Pippen's Studio, who were patient in arranging 1500 pictures...to Mr. Irving Lloyd, who gave us valuable information on photography...and a very special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. John C. Underwood and to Mr. and Mrs. William D. Sims, who were a constant source of inspiration when the work seemed too difficult; and the time, too short.
